TITLE 3—THE PRESIDENT

PROCLAMATION 3150

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER, 1956

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, as a people, we are greatly blessed, both materially and spiritually, and it is fitting that we should recognize the hand of God in every matter affecting us individually and as a Nation; and

WHEREAS, with this precept in mind, the Congress, by a joint resolution approved April 17, 1952, provided that the President "shall set aside and proclaim a suitable day each year, other than a Sunday, as a National Day of Prayer, on which the people of the United States may turn to God in prayer and meditation"; and

WHEREAS the appointed day is one on which to give solemn thought to the mercies bestowed upon us, to lift up our voices in unified thanks for the spiritual blessings we enjoy, especially the profound blessing of freedom, and to acknowledge in all things the presence of Almighty God:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, in consonance with the Congressional resolution, do hereby proclaim Wednesday, September 12, 1956, as a National Day of Prayer, on which all of us, in our places of business, in our places of worship, in our homes, and in our hearts, may beseech God to continue to watch over us in our daily lives and in the conduct of our national affairs. Let us also render thanks to Him for the manifold bounties vouchsafed us throughout our history.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this 29th day of August in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and [SEAL] fifty-six, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-first.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

By the President:

JOHN FOSTER DULLES,
Secretary of State.

PROCLAMATION 3151

CONSTITUTION WEEK, 1956

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS on September 17, 1787, after four months of debate, hindered by sharp differences of view and by wise compromises, the outstanding leaders of our Republic, who were meeting in convention at Philadelphia, signed the Constitution of the United States of America; and

WHEREAS the story of the framing, signing and adoption of that epochal document constitutes one of the most significant chapters in the history of our country; and

WHEREAS it is fitting that every American should reflect upon the vision and fortitude of our forebears in creating a charter designed "to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty" for themselves and for the fortunate millions who were to follow them as citizens of this Nation; and

WHEREAS the Congress, by a joint resolution approved August 2, 1956, has requested the President to set aside the week beginning September 17 of each year as Constitution Week, a time for the contemplation and commemoration of the historic acts which resulted in the formation of our Constitution:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the period beginning September 17 and ending September 23, 1956, as Constitution Week; and I urge the people of the United States to observe that week with appropriate ceremonies and activities in their schools and churches, and in other suitable places. I also urge them at that time to give solemn and grateful thought to that eventful week in September 1787 when our Constitution was signed, delivered to the Continental Congress, and made known to the people of the country, thus laying the foundation for the birth of a new Nation.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

PROCLAMATION 3152

MODIFICATION OF RESTRICTIONS ON IMPORTS OF CERTAIN VIRGINIA-TYPE PEANUTS

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, pursuant to section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended (7 U. S. C. 624), I issued Proclamation No. 3019 on June 8, 1953 (67 Stat. C 46), limiting to 1,709,000 pounds (aggregate quantity) the imports of peanuts, whether shelled, not shelled, blanched, salted, prepared, or preserved (including roasted peanuts, but not including peanut butter) which may be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption in any 12-month period beginning July 1 in any year, which proclamation was amended by Proclamation No. 3025 of June 30, 1953 (67 Stat. C 54) and by Proclamation No. 3095 of May 16, 1955 (69 Stat. C 32);

WHEREAS the said Proclamation No. 3095 amended the said Proclamation No. 3019 so as to establish thereafter as the quota year for peanuts the 12-month period beginning August 1 in any year;

WHEREAS the total quantity of such peanuts which may be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption under the said Proclamation No. 3019, as amended, during the 12-month period beginning August 1, 1956, has already been entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption;

WHEREAS, pursuant to section 22 (d) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, the United States Tariff Commission has made a supplemental investigation to determine whether there is a deficit in the domestic supply of Virginia-type peanuts, shelled (not including peanuts blanched, salted, prepared, or preserved), of sizes averaging in representative samples not more than 40 kernels per ounce, such as to require an increase in the quantity of such peanuts which may be permitted to be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption during the early part of the quota year beginning August 1, 1956, to meet essential requirements of domestic users of such peanuts, and, if so, what additional quantity or quantities of such peanuts may be permitted to be so entered or withdrawn without materially interfering with or rendering ineffective the program of the Department of Agriculture with respect to peanuts;

WHEREAS the United States Tariff Commission has submitted to me a report of its findings and recommendation in connection with the said supplemental investigation; and

WHEREAS, on the basis of said supplemental investigation and report of the Tariff Commission, I find that the domestic supply of Virginia-type peanuts is not sufficient to meet the essential requirements of domestic users of such peanuts and that such deficit may be permitted to be supplied from peanuts of foreign origin, but only under the conditions and subject to the fee hereinafter proclaimed, without rendering or tending to render ineffective, or materially interfering with, the said program of the Department of Agriculture with respect to peanuts, or reducing substantially the amount of any product processed in the United States from peanuts with respect to which such program is being undertaken:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the said section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, do hereby proclaim that the said Proclamation No. 3019, as amended, is hereby modified so as to permit an unlimited quantity of peanuts of the Virginia type, shelled (not including peanuts blanched, salted, prepared, or preserved), of sizes averaging in representative samples not more than 40 kernels per ounce, to be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption during the period beginning on the day following the date of this proclamation and ending at the close of business on 10 September 1956, subject to a fee of 7 cents per pound, but not more than 50 per centum ad valorem: Provided That the said fee shall be in addition to any other duties imposed on the importation of such peanuts.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this 29th day of August in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and [SEAL] fifty-six, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-first.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter I—Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior

Subchapter B—Hunting and Possession of Wildlife

PART 5—TRANSPORTATION OF GAME MAMMALS TO AND FROM MEXICO

Basis and purpose. By Articles III and V of the convention between the United States and the United Mexican States for the protection of migratory birds and game mammals, concluded February 7, 1936 (50 Stat. 1311), the high contracting parties agreed not to permit the transportation over the American-Mexican border of migratory birds or game mammals, dead or alive, their parts or products, without a permit of authorization provided for that purpose by the Government of each country.

In implementing the convention cited, the Congress of the United States, by the Act of June 20, 1936 (49 Stat. 1555; effective March 15, 1937), amended section 4 of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of July 3, 1918 (40 Stat. 755; 16 U. S. C. 705) by adding a new sentence declaring it to be unlawful to import into the United States from Mexico, or to export from the United States to Mexico, any game mammal, dead or alive, or parts or products thereof, except under permit or authorization of the Secretary of the Interior in accordance with such regulations as he shall prescribe having due regard to the laws of the United Mexican States relating to the exportation and importation of such mammals or parts or products thereof and the laws of the State, District, or Territory of the United States from or into which such mammals, parts or products thereof, are proposed to be exported or imported, and the laws of the United States prohibiting the importation of certain live mammals injurious to the interests of agriculture and horticulture.

Section 4 of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, as amended to implement that portion of the convention between the United States and the United Mexican States restricting the transportation of game mammals to and from Mexico was first implemented by Regulation 12 adopted by the Secretary of Agriculture (predecessor in function to the Secretary of the Interior) and proclaimed by the President in Proclamation 2245, July 30, 1937 (2 F R 1360; see also 50 CFR, 1938 ed., 2.2). In subsequent codifications of Title 50, CFR, the pertinent provisions of this regulation have been included in Part 6—Migratory Birds and Certain Game Mammals and have been carried forward to the present as § 6.7 in substantial conformity with the regulation as originally adopted.

In connection with a concurrent revision of Part 6,[1] it is deemed advisable so to revise that part as to confine its provisions to migratory birds and to codify regulations governing the transportation of game mammals to and from Mexico in a separate part. Since no substantive changes are being made through the co-tion being taken herein, notice and public procedure on this amendment is not required (60 Stat. 238; 5 U. S. C. 1003) and the amendment shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

The following regulations constituting a new Part 5—Transportation of Game Mammals to and from Mexico are adopted.

Sec.
5.1 Definition of game mammals.
5.2 Transportation of game mammals to and from Mexico.

AUTHORITY: §§ 5.1 and 5.2 issued under sec. 4, 40 Stat. 755, as amended; 16 U. S. C. 705. Interpret or apply E. O. 10250, 16 F. R. 5385, 3 CFR, 1951 Supp.

§ 5.1 Definition of game mammals. The species of game mammals under the terms of the convention between the United States and the United Mexican States for the protection of migratory birds and game mammals, concluded February 7, 1936 (49 Stat. 1311), include antelope, mountain sheep, deer, bear, peccary, squirrel, rabbit, and hare.

§ 5.2 Transportation of game mammals to and from Mexico—(a) To Mexico. Game mammals, or parts or products thereof, taken in and transported from a State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, may be transported to Mexico, if the importation thereof is not prohibited by law or regulation of that country, upon presentation to the collector of customs at the port of exit of the certificate of an official, warden, or other officer of the game department of such State, Territory, or District, that such game mammals, or parts or products thereof, which must be listed in the certificate, were taken or acquired and are being transported in compliance with the laws and regulations of such State, Territory, or District.

(b) From Mexico. Game mammals, dead or alive, their parts or products, may be transported from Mexico into the United States if accompanied by a Mexican export permit, and if alive by such permit as may be required under regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury (19 CFR 12.26) relating to the transportation of wild birds and other animals under humane and healthful conditions: Provided, That their possession in any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, shall be subject to the laws of such State, Territory, or District.

NOTE: For Bureau of Animal Industry regulations relating to importation of certain animals and poultry and certain animal and poultry products from Mexico, see 9 CFR Part 92.

Issued at Washington, D. C., and dated August 27, 1956.

FRED G. AANDAHL,
Acting Secretary of the Interior.

PART 6—MIGRATORY BIRDS

Basis and purpose. By notice of proposed rule making published on June 2, 1956 (21 F. R. 3799), the public was invited to participate in the preparation of amendments to the regulations under section 3 of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of July 3, 1918, as amended (40 Stat. 755; 16 U. S. C. 704), by submitting views, data, or arguments in writing to the Director, Fish and Wildlife Service, Washington, D. C., within the period of thirty days from the date of such publication.

No written data, views, or arguments have been received in direct response to the notice of proposed rule making. In contemplation, however, of the present revision and republication of Part 6, Title 50, CFR, those provisions of these regulations which are of particular interest to the several States and their hunting populations were reviewed at meetings held in May and June with the four Flyway Councils which represent the game departments of the States in the Atlantic, Mississippi, Central, and Pacific Flyways. All relevant suggestions and recommendations presented at these meetings have received appropriate consideration in the preparation of this revision.

In the interest of improving the format of these regulations, clarifying their provisions, and conforming them to existing administrative practices, certain editorial changes have been made, but changes affecting the substantive text are few in number.

In connection with the present revision of Part 6, it is deemed advisable so to revise the part as to confine its provisions to migratory birds and to codify in a separate part the existing provisions of Part 6 which govern the transportation of game mammals to and from Mexico. Accordingly, by action taken concurrently with this revision of Part 6, all regulations previously included in that part, relating to the transportation of game mammals to and from Mexico, are being codified as Part 5.[1]

The accompanying revision of Part 6 incorporates under new section numbers and section headings schedules prescribing hunting seasons and daily bag and possession limits for the 1956–57 seasons on rails, gallinules, woodcock, and mourning and white-winged doves as previously adopted and published on August 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 5737). It also includes hunting seasons, daily bag and possession limits, and other conditions to govern the taking of waterfowl, coots, and Wilson's snipe during the 1956–57 seasons. The hunting dates for waterfowl, coots, and Wilson's snipe, as prescribed in the schedules for these species, are based upon recommendations submitted by the several State game departments. These hunting dates were supplied by the State game departments in response to an invitation to submit recommendations for hunting seasons conforming to prescribed season lengths and falling within a framework of opening and closing dates as established by this Department.

NOTE: The hunting seasons and bag and possession limits set forth in tabular form in paragraphs (a) and (b) of § 6.41 were originally prescribed through an amendment to former paragraph (4a) of § 6.4 (e) published on August 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 5738), with an effective date thirty days thereafter. Section 6.41 (c) represents a rearrangement, in tabular form without substantive change, of former paragraph 4 (b) of § 6.4 (e) which was added to Part 6 on July 17, 1954 (19 F. R. 4426).

Paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of § 6.46 constitute redesignations of former paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of § 6.4 (e), as last amended August 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 5728). Paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 6.46 now prescribe hunting seasons on rails and gallinules in Alabama, Michigan, and North Dakota beginning on November 7 in Alabama, and on October 1 in both Michigan and North Dakota; the fixing of such seasons having been deferred until a later date when former paragraphs (2) and (3) of § 6.4 (e) were last amended. Former paragraph (4) of § 6.4 (e) has been omitted in this revision of Part 6 as being unnecessary and provision has been made for the taking of gallinules with coots in the Pacific Flyway States under paragraph (f) of § 6.51.

Paragraph (a) of § 6.51 is a redesignation of former paragraph (4c) of § 6.4 (e) which was added to Part 6 on July 26, 1955 (20 F. R. 5327). Paragraph (b) of § 6.51 presents in tabular form the substance of footnote 1 to former paragraph (1) of § 6.4 (e) as last amended on August 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 5738). Paragraphs (c), (d), (e), and (f) of § 6.51 constitute redesignations of former paragraphs (5), (6), (7), and (8) of § 6.4 (e), and prescribe open season dates and bag and possession limits on migratory waterfowl, coots, and Wilson's snipe for 1956–1957.

Part 6 is completely revised and republished to read as follows:

C. 703), provides that, unless and except as permitted by regulations adopted by the Secretary of the Interior in the manner prescribed by the Act and included in this part, it shall be unlawful at any time, by any means or in any manner, to pursue, hunt, take, capture, kill, attempt to take, capture, or kill, possess, offer for sale, sell, offer to barter, barter, offer to purchase, purchase, deliver for shipment, ship, export, import, cause to be shipped, exported, or imported, deliver for transportation, transport or cause to be transported, carry or cause to be carried, or receive for shipment, transportation, carriage, or export, any migatory bird, or any part, nest or egg of any such birds, included in the terms of the conventions cited in § 6.1.

§ 6.3 Hunting methods. The provisions of this section shall govern the methods by which any person may take migratory game birds on which open seasons are prescribed in this part.

(a) Permitted methods. Migratory game birds may be taken—

(1) Only with bow and arrow, or with a shotgun (not larger than No. 10 gauge and incapable of holding more than three shells) fired from the shoulder;

(2) In the open or from a blind or other place of concealment on land or water;

(3) From a floating craft, including a sailboat or a boat or other craft having a motor attached when such sailboat, boat or other craft with motor attached is beached, resting at anchor, or fastened within or tied immediately alongside of any type of fixed hunting blind;

(4) On or over properly shocked grain, standing crops (including aquatics), flooded standing crops, flooded harvested crop lands, or grains found scattered solely as a result of normal agricultural harvesting; or

(5) By the aid of a dog, motorboat, sailboat, or other craft when used solely as a means of picking up injured or dead waterfowl, coots, rails or gallinules.

(b) Prohibited methods. Migratory game birds may not be taken—

(1) With a trap, snare, net, rifle, swivel gun, or machine-gun;

(2) With a shotgun of any description originally capable of holding more than three shells, the magazine of which has not been cut off, altered, or plugged with a one-piece metal or wooden filler, incapable of removal without disassembling the gun, so as to reduce the capacity of the said gun to not more than three shells in the magazine and chamber combined;

(3) From or by means, aid or use of a sinkbox (battery), motor-driven conveyance, motor vehicle, or aircraft of any kind;

(4) From or by means of a sailboat or other boat or floating craft having a motor attached unless such boat, craft, or sailboat is beached, resting at anchor or fastened within or tied immediately alongside of any type of fixed hunting blind or is used solely as a means of picking up injured or dead waterfowl, coots, rails or gallinules;

(5) By the use or aid of livestock as a blind or means of concealment;

(6) By the use or aid of live ducks or geese as decoys;

(7) By means or aid of any motor-driven land, water, or air conveyance or sailboat used for the purpose of or resulting in the concentrating, driving, rallying, or stirring up of waterfowl and coots; or

(8) By the aid of salt, or shelled or shucked or unshucked corn, wheat, or other grains, or other feed or means of feeding similarly used to lure, attract, or entice such birds to, on, or over the area where hunters are attempting to take them. As used in the preceding sentence, the terms "shelled or shucked or unshucked corn, wheat, or other grains," or "other feed or means of feeding similarly used," shall not be construed as including properly shocked grain, standing crops (including aquatics), flooded standing crops, flooded harvested crop lands, or grains found scattered solely as a result of normal agricultural harvesting.

(c) Exceptions. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to apply to the taking of migratory nongame birds as permitted in § 6.5, nor to apply to propagating, scientific, depredation-control or other operations in accordance with the terms of permits or other authorizations issued pursuant to this part.

NOTE: Section 1 of the Migratory Bird Hunting Stamp Act of March 16, 1934 (48 Stat. 451; 16 U. S. C. 718a), as last amended by the Act of July 30, 1956 (70 Stat. 722), provides (with certain exceptions not pertinent to the hunting of such birds as permitted in this part) that no person who has attained the age of sixteen (16) years shall take any migratory waterfowl (brant, wild ducks, geese, and swans) unless at the time of such taking he has on his person an unexpired Federal migratory bird hunting stamp (commonly referred to as a Duck Stamp), validated by his signature written across the face of the stamp in ink prior to his taking such birds. Persons who have not reached their sixteenth (16) birthday may take migratory waterfowl as permitted in this part without such stamp. Section 9 of the Act defines the term "take" to mean pursue, hunt, shoot, capture, collect, kill, or attempt to pursue, hunt, shoot, capture, collect, or kill.

§ 6.4 Open seasons, limits, and other provisions. (a) Migratory game birds may be taken from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset during the open seasons prescribed except as hereinafter provided in this part.

(b) A person may take in any one day during the open seasons prescribed therefor not to exceed the numbers of migratory game birds permitted in this part which numbers shall include all birds taken by any other person who for hire accompanies or assists him in taking such birds. When so taken such birds may be possessed in the numbers specified in this part, except that no person on the opening day of the season may possess any migratory game birds in excess of the applicable daily limits and no person may possess any freshly killed migratory game bird during the closed season for such bird.

(c) Nothing in this part shall be deemed to permit the taking of migratory birds on any reservation or sanctuary established under the Migratory Bird Conservation Act of February 18, 1929, as amended (45 Stat. 1222; 16 U. S. C. 715), or any area of the United States set aside under any other law, proclamation, or executive order for use as a bird, game, or other wildlife reservation, breeding ground, or refuge, or on any area designated as a closed area under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act except so far as may be permitted by the Secretary.

(d) No migratory bird may be taken at any time, by any means, from, on, or across any highway, road, trail, or other right-of-way, whether public or private, within the exterior boundaries of any established national wildlife refuge.

(e) Open seasons only on such migratory game birds as are therein designated, daily bag and possession limits, and exceptions to the hours of hunting stated in paragraph (a) of this section shall be as prescribed annually in §§ 6.41 through 6.51.

(f) Whenever the Secretary shall find that emergency State action to prevent forest fires in any extensive area has resulted in the shortening of the season during which the hunting of any species of migratory game bird is permitted and that a compensatory extension or reopening of the hunting season for such birds will not result in a diminution of the abundance of birds to any greater extent than that contemplated for the original hunting season, the hunting season for the birds so affected may, subject to all other provisions of this subchapter, be extended or reopened by the Secretary upon request of the chief officer of the agency of the State exercising administration over wildlife resources. The length of the extended or reopened season in no event shall exceed the number of days during which hunting has been so prohibited. The extended or reopened season will be publicly announced.

(b) During any one calendar week the number of such birds permitted to be transported out of or into any State or to a foreign country shall not exceed for one person the number permitted in this part to be in the possession of one person where taken.

(c) Any such birds transported from any State not later than 48 hours following the close of the open season therein may continue in transit for such additional time immediately after shipment, not to exceed 5 days, as is necessary to deliver them to their destination.

(e) Any package or container in which such birds are transported shall have the name and address of the shipper and of the consignee and an accurate statement of the numbers and kinds of birds therein contained clearly and conspicuously marked on the outside thereof.

§ 6.8 Limitations upon transportation and importation. Nothing contained in this part shall be construed to permit the transportation of migratory game birds, or parts thereof, from, to, or through any State or to or through Canada, Mexico, or other foreign country contrary to the laws of the place in which taken or from, to, or through which transported; nor shall any such birds be imported from Canada, Mexico, or other foreign country contrary to the laws of the place in which taken or from, to, or through which transported.

RESTRICTIONS APPLICABLE TO POSSESSION

Any commercial cold storage or locker plant receiving, possessing, or having in custody migratory game birds shall maintain accurate records showing the numbers and kinds of such birds, the dates received and disposed of, and the names and addresses of the persons from whom such birds are received and to whom such birds are delivered. Such records shall be produced at any reasonable time for inspection by any officer authorized to enforce this part. The records so required to be maintained shall be retained by the person or persons responsible for their preparation and maintenance for a period of one year following the close of the open season on migratory game birds prescribed for the area in which such cold storage or locker plant is located.

§ 6.10 Termination of possession by hunters. For the purposes of this part, the ownership and possession of birds legally taken by any hunter shall be deemed to have ceased when such birds have been delivered by him to (a) a post office; (b) a common carrier; or (c) a commercial cold storage or locker plant for transportation to some person other than the hunter.

§ 6.11 Possession of live migratory waterfowl. Any person, without a permit, may possess and transport for his own use lawfully acquired live migratory waterfowl.

CONTROL OF DEPREDATING BIRDS

§ 6.61 Depredation permits. Upon receipt of information from the owner, tenant, sharecropper, or other person that migratory birds are injuring his crops or other property on the land on which he resides, or over which he exercises control, together with a statement of the location of the area, the nature of the crops or other interests being injured, the extent of such injury, and the particular species of birds committing the injury, an investigation will be made, and if it is determined from such investigation that the injury complained of is substantial and can be so abated, permits to kill, frighten, or otherwise herd the birds may be issued by the Secretary. Such permits shall specify the time during which, the means and methods by which, the person or persons by whom the birds may be killed, frightened, or herded, the disposition to be made of the birds killed, and such other restrictions, including a requirement for the submission of reports of operations, as may be deemed necessary and appropriate in the circumstances of the particular case.

§ 6.62 Depredating blackbirds and grackles. Any person, without a permit, may kill yellow-headed, red-winged, bicolored red-winged, tri-colored red-winged, and Brewer's blackbirds and all grackles under the conditions and restrictions prescribed in this section when found committing or about to commit serious depredations upon any agricultural crop or ornamental or shade trees.

(a) No birds killed pursuant to this section nor the plumage of such birds shall be sold or offered for sale.

(b) Every person availing himself of the privileges of this section shall permit at all reasonable times, and particularly during any operations thereunder, any Federal or State game or deputy game agent, warden, protector, or other game law enforcement officer free and unrestricted access to the premises on which such operations have been or are being conducted and shall furnish promptly to such officer whatever information regarding said operations the officer may require.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to permit the killing of any of the aforesaid birds in violation of any State law or regulation, and if a State permit to kill the birds is required, such permit must be procured before the privileges conferred by this section are exercised.

§ 6.63 Designated species of depredating birds in California. In any county in California in which meadowlarks; horned larks; Gambel's, Nuttall's, golden-crowned, white-crowned, and other crowned sparrows; goldfinches, and California woodpeckers, Lewis woodpeckers, and flickers are, under extraordinary conditions, seriously injurious to agricultural or other interests, the agricultural commissioner, without a permit, may kill or cause to be killed under his general supervision and direction, such of the aforesaid migratory birds as may be necessary to safeguard from their depredations any agricultural or horticultural crop in such county, subject to the conditions and restrictions prescribed in this section.

(a) No birds shall be killed except when necessary to protect crops from their depredations, and no birds killed pursuant to this section, or the plumage or any other part thereof, shall be sold or removed from the area upon which they have been killed, but such birds shall be totally destroyed on said area, except that such specimens as may be needed for scientific purposes may be salvaged by or under the direction of the agricultural commissioner or on the order of the State Department of Agriculture or the Secretary.

(b) Any commissioner exercising the privileges conferred by this section shall keep a record of the persons authorized by him to kill such birds and of the number of birds killed by each such person, as well as by himself, and shall submit a report thereon to the Secretary whenever requested so to do and in any event on or before December 31 of each year during the continuance of this section.

§ 6.64 Depredating purple gallinules in Louisiana. Landowners, sharecroppers, tenants, and their bona fide employees, actually engaged and employed in the production of rice in Louisiana, without a permit, may shoot purple gallinules (Ionornis martinica) when found committing or about to commit serious depredations on growing crops of rice on the premises owned or occupied by such persons or on which such persons are employed, subject to the following conditions and restrictions prescribed in this section.

(a) No purple gallinules may be killed under this section except from May 1 to August 15, both dates inclusive.

(b) No purple gallinules killed under this section shall be transported or sold or offered for sale except that they may be transported to such place within the vicinity as may be necessary to bury or otherwise destroy their carcasses: Provided, That the Secretary, State agricultural departments, colleges, or other public institutions may requisition such numbers of the birds so killed as may be needed for scientific investigations: And provided further, That purple gallinules killed under authority of this section may be donated to charitable institutions for food purposes.

(c) Every person availing himself of the privileges of this section shall permit at all reasonable times, and particularly during any operations thereunder, any Federal or State game or deputy game agent, warden, protector, or other game law enforcement officer free and unrestricted access to the premises on which such operations have been or are being conducted and shall, furnish promptly to such officer whatever information regarding said operations the officer may require.

(d) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to permit the killing of any of the aforesaid birds in violation of any State law or regulation, and if a State permit to kill the birds is required, such permit must be procured before the privileges conferred by this section are exercised.

(e) Any person exercising the privileges conferred by this section shall keep a record of the number of birds killed by him and shall submit a report thereon to the Secretary whenever requested so to do and in any event on or before December 31 of each year during the continuance of this section.

WILDLIFE DEVELOPMENT AREAS

§ 6.71 Approval of area development program. With respect to any lands which have been or may hereafter be acquired by the United States for future use as a migratory bird sanctuary or other wildlife refuge, subject to an outstanding possessory estate, the owner of such outstanding estate may, in accordance with a program for the development of the area and the limitation of shooting during such development period, approved by the Secretary, take such measures as are calculated to maintain and increase the waterfowl population of the area in question, and engage in the shooting of migratory birds within the limitations set forth in the approved program.

§ 6.72 Revocation of program approval. Approval of any such program may be revoked by the Secretary upon a finding that the terms of such program have been violated by the proponents thereof. Following such revocation, all rights and privileges derived from the existence of an approved area development program shall cease.

§ 6.73 Notice and hearing. Prior to any determination by the Secretary that the terms of an approved area development program have been or are being violated by the proponent thereof, a notice shall be sent to said proponent specifying the character, time, and locality of the alleged violation and designating a representative of the Secretary with whom the proponent of the program may discuss any controverted issue of fact or interpretation in an effort to reach an amicable agreement of understanding. Thereupon, the said proponent shall cease and desist from the commission of acts specified in such notice for a period of sixty days, or if the case be finally determined during such 60-day period then only until such final determination. If, within 30 days after such notice has been received, no such agreement or understanding is reached then the Secretary may, after allowing such further opportunity for hearing as he deems proper, make and promulgate a final order revoking approval of the development area program. Thereupon, the provisions of § 6.3 shall be fully applicable to the area in question.

A majority of the seasons prescribed herein are identical, so far as opening date is concerned, with those previously prescribed and in effect immediately prior to the publication of this revision. None of the remaining opening dates prescribed herein, and which amend previously existing opening dates, will begin within a period of less than thirty days from the publication hereof. Since this revision of Part 6 does not materially affect privileges heretofore granted, and as it is desirable that its provisions be uniformly applied throughout the hunting seasons (some of which begin on September 1), it has been determined that the revision may become effective when published under the provisions of the exceptions provided in section 4 (c) of the Administrative Procedure Act of June 11, 1946 (60 Stat. 237). Accordingly, this revision shall become effective upon publication.

Issued at Washington, D. C., and dated August 27, 1956.

FRED G. AANDAHL,
Acting Secretary of the Interior.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter I—Agricultural Marketing Service (Standards, Inspections, Marketing Practices), Department of Agriculture

PART 53—LIVESTOCK, MEATS, PREPARED MEATS, AND MEAT PRODUCTS (GRADING, CERTIFICATION, AND STANDARDS)

OFFICIAL UNITED STATES STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF VEAL AND CALF CARCASSES AND FOR GRADES OF VEALERS AND SLAUGHTER CALVES

On July 21, 1956, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5503) regarding the amendment of the official United States standards for grades of veal and calf carcasses and for grades of vealers and slaughter calves, under the provisions of sections 203 and 205 of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U. S. C. 1622 and 1624), as amended by Public Law 272, 84th Congress.

After due consideration of all relevant material submitted pursuant to the notice, and under the aforesaid sections of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, the official United States Standards for grades of veal and calf carcasses and for grades of vealers and slaughter calves are amended as specified below.

1. The official United States standards for grades of veal and calf carcasses (7 CFR 53.107–53.111) are amended to read as follows:

§ 53.107 Differentiation between veal, calf, and beef carcasses. Differentiation between veal, calf, and beef carcasses is made primarily on the basis of the color of the lean, although such factors as texture of the lean; character of the fat; color, shape, size, and ossification of the bones and cartilages; and the general contour of the carcass are also given consideration. Typical veal carcasses have a grayish pink color of lean that is very smooth and velvety in texture and they also have a slightly soft, pliable character of fat and narrow, very red rib bones. By contrast, typical calf carcasses have a grayish red color of lean, a harder, flakier type of fat, and somewhat wider rib bones with less pronounced evidences of red color. Calf carcasses with maximum maturity for their class have lean flesh that is usually not more than moderately red in color, their rib bones usually have a small amount of red and have only a slight tendency toward flatness, and such carcasses are not noticeably "spready" or "barrelly" in contour. Such carcasses, when split, have cartilages on the ends of the chine bones that are entirely cartilaginous, there is cartilage in evidence on all vertebrae of the spinal column and the sacral vertebrae show distinct separation. Carcasses with evidences of more advanced maturity than described in this paragraph are classified as beef.

§ 53.108 Classes of veal and calf carcasses. Class determination is based on the apparent sex condition of the animal at time of slaughter. Hence, there are three classes of veal and calf carcasses—steers, heifers, and bulls. While recognition may sometimes be given to these different classes on the market, especially in the case of calf carcasses that are approaching beef in maturity, the differences between the various classes are so slight that accurate description of them is impractical. Therefore, the grade standards which follow are equally applicable to all classes of veal and calf carcasses.

§ 53.109 Application of standards. (a) Veal and calf carcasses are graded on a composite evaluation of three general grade factors—conformation, finish, and quality. These factors are concerned with the proportions of the various wholesale cuts and the proportions of fat, lean, and bone in the carcass and the quality of the lean. Carcasses qualifying for any particular grade may vary with respect to their relative development of the three grade factors and there will be carcasses which qualify for a particular grade, some of the characteristics of which may be typical of another grade. Because it is impractical to describe the nearly limitless numbers of such recognizable combinations of characteristics, the standards for each grade describe only carcasses which have a relatively similar development of conformation, finish, and quality and which are also representative of the lower limit of each grade.

(b) The quality of the lean flesh is determined from the development of its color, texture, firmness, and marbling, as observed in a cut surface, in relation to the apparent maturity of the animal from which the carcass was produced. In grading carcasses or sides in which direct observation of these characteristics is not possible, quality of the lean is evaluated indirectly from its apparent color and general firmness together with the quantity and quality of certain fat deposits, all in relation to the apparent evidences of maturity. The fat deposits considered in this indirect evaluation of quality, in descending order of their importance, are as follows: (1) The fat intermingled within the lean between the ribs called "feathering", (2) the streaking of fat within and upon the inside flank muscles, (3) the fat covering over the diaphragm muscle or "skirt", (4) the covering of external fat, and (5) the kidney and pelvic fat. The standards for each grade specify only one general level of development of the quality-indicating characteristics described in this paragraph, and these characteristics apply only to carcasses which are typical in maturity for their class. In order to qualify for a specific grade, carcasses with evidences of more advanced maturity than typical for their class are required to have a slightly greater development of these characteristics than described. Conversely, carcasses with evidences of less maturity than typical for their class may qualify for a given grade with a slightly lesser development of these characteristics. Because of the greater range in maturity among calf carcasses, a somewhat greater variation in these evidences of quality is present among carcasses within each grade of that class than is present among carcasses within each grade of veal.

(c) While the standards described rather definite degrees of external finish and of kidney and pelvic fat for each grade of veal and calf, consideration of variations in the quantities of these fats is restricted almost entirely to carcasses of the lower grades which have a development of external and kidney and pelvic fats that is substantially different from their development of feathering, fat streaking in the inside flank muscles and fat covering over the skirt. In such carcasses, variation in the quantities of external fat and of kidney and pelvic fats is given a very limited consideration in the evaluation of quality. In the higher grades, particularly the higher grades of calf, variation in the quantities of these fats is given no consideration. The quality or firmness of the external and kidney and pelvic fats, however, is given consideration as an indicator of quality in all grades.

(d) Inasmuch as all carcasses do not have a comparable development of conformation and quality, examples of the extent to which superiority in quality may compensate for deficiencies in conformation, and vice versa, are indicated for each grade.

(e) The standards for veal and calf carcasses contained in §§ 53.107–53.111 and those for beef carcasses contained in §§ 53.102–53.106 together provide the basis for grading carcasses within the full range of maturity of the bovine species. Although the grade standards for this full range of maturity are contained in three separate standards, it is the intent that the three standards be considered as a continuous series. Therefore, in determining the grade requirements for a carcass which has a degree of maturity that is not typical of that specified in one of the three standards, it is necessary to interpolate between the standards for the kind of carcass (veal, calf or beef) being graded and the standards for the kind of carcass which is most closely adjacent to it in maturity.

§ 53.110 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of veal carcasses—(a) Prime. (1) A veal carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Prime grade is blocky and compact and tends to be broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be thickly fleshed and has a rather plump, full, well-rounded appearance. Rounds tend to be thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be full and plump. Shoulders and breast tend to be thick.

(2) There is usually a thin covering of firm fat over the rump, loin and back which also usually extends over most of the tops of the shoulders and outsides of the legs. There is a modest amount of extensive feathering between the ribs, a modest amount of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and a modest covering of fat over the skirt. The flanks are thick, full and firm. Kidney and pelvic fat is firm and usually is moderately abundant. The cut surface of the lean is moderately firm; fine-textured; grayish pink in color; and velvety to sight and touch.

(3) To qualify for the Prime grade a carcass must possess the minimum requirements for evidences of quality regardless of the extent that its conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Prime. However, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Prime grade may compensate, on an equal basis and without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Prime as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Prime grade may have conformation equivalent to the mid-point of the Choice grade and remain eligible for Prime.

(b) Choice. (1) A veal carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Choice grade is moderately blocky and compact and tends to be moderately broad in proportion to its length. It is slightly thick-fleshed and has a slightly plump appearance. Rounds are slightly thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be moderately full and plump. Shoulders and breast tend to be moderately thick.

(2) There is usually a very thin covering of moderately firm fat over the loin and back which also usually partially covers the tops of the shoulders and outsides of the legs. There is a slight amount of feathering between the ribs, a slight quantity of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and a slight covering of fat over the skirt. The flanks are moderately thick, full and firm. There is usually a moderate quantity of kidney and pelvic fat which is moderately firm. The cut surface of the lean is slightly firm; fine-textured; grayish pink in color; and slightly moist to sight and touch.

(3) To qualify for the Choice grade a carcass must possess the minimum requirements for evidences of quality regardless of the extent that its conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Choice. However, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Choice grade may compensate, on an equal basis and without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Choice as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Choice grade may have conformation equivalent to the mid-point of the Good grade and remain eligible for Choice.

(c) Good. (1) A veal carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Good grade tends to be slightly blocky and compact and tends to be slightly broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be slightly thin-fleshed and has little or no evidence of plumpness. Loin, back, and rounds are slightly thin and nearly flat. Shoulders and breast tend to be slightly thin.

(2) There is usually an extremely thin covering of fat over the back and loin but usually practically no fat covering over the tops of the shoulders or outsides of the legs. There are traces of feathering between the ribs, traces of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and traces of fat covering over the skirt. The flanks are slightly thick and firm. There is usually a small amount of kidney and pelvic fat. The cut surface of the lean is fine-textured but slightly soft, slightly dark grayish pink in color, and rather moist to sight and touch.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the mid-point of the Good grade may have evidences of quality equivalent to the minimum for the upper third of the Standard grade and remain eligible for Good. Also, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Good grade may compensate, without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Good on the basis of a half grade superior quality for a third of a grade of deficient conformation as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Good grade may have conformation equivalent to the minimum of the upper third of the Standard grade and remain eligible for Good.

(d) Standard. (1) A veal carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Standard grade is thinly fleshed and is rangy, angular, and narrow in relation to its length. Rounds are thin and tapering and slightly concave. Loin and back are depressed. Shoulders and breast are thin.

(2) External fat covering is usually limited to very thin patches over the loin and back and a small quantity of fat around the base of the tail. There is practically no feathering between the ribs, practically no streaking of fat in the inside flank muscles, and practically no covering of fat over the skirt. The flanks are thin and slightly soft. There is usually a slight amount of kidney and pelvic fat. The cut surface of the lean is fine-textured but moderately soft and moist and slightly dark grayish pink in color.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the mid-point of the Standard grade may have evidences of quality equivalent to the minimum for the upper third of the Utility grade and remain eligible for Standard. Also, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Standard grade may compensate, without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Standard on the basis of a half grade superior quality for a third of a grade of deficient conformation as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Standard grade may have conformation equivalent to the minimum of the upper third of the Utility grade and remain eligible for Standard.

(e) Utility. (1) A veal carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the utility grade is very thinly fleshed and is very rangy and angular and very narrow in relation to its length. Rounds are very thin and moderately concave. Loin and back are very depressed. Shoulders and breast are very thin.

(2) There is usually practically no external fat covering except for very small deposits around the base of the tail and over the outsides of the shoulders. There is no feathering between the ribs, no fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and no covering of fat over the skirt. The flanks are soft and very thin. There is usually only a very slight amount of kidney and pelvic fat. The cut surface of the lean is soft and moist and dark grayish pink in color.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the mid-point of the Utility grade may have evidences of quality equivalent to the minimum for the upper third of the Cull grade and remain eligible for Utility. Also, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Utility grade may compensate, without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Utility on the basis of a half grade superior quality for a third of a grade of deficient conformation as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Utility grade may have conformation equivalent to the minimum of the upper third of the Cull grade and remain eligible for Utility.

(f) Cull. (1) A typical Cull grade veal carcass is extremely thin-fleshed and is extremely rangy and angular and extremely narrow in relation to its length. Rounds are concave and extremely thin. Loin and back are extremely depressed. Shoulders and breast are extremely thin.

(2) There is usually no external fat covering and no feathering between the ribs nor streaking of fat in the inside flank muscles. The flanks are extremely thin and very soft. There is usually practically no kidney or crotch fat. The cut surface of the lean is very soft and very moist and dark grayish pink in color.

§ 53.111 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of calf carcasses—(a) Prime. (1) A calf carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Prime grade is blocky and compact and tends to be broad in proportion to its length. It is thickly fleshed and has a plump, full, well-rounded appearance. Rounds tend to be thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be full and plump. Shoulders and breast tend to be thick.

(2) There is usually a slightly thick covering of very firm fat over the back, loin, and rump which also usually completely covers the tops of the shoulders and outsides of the legs. There is a moderate amount of very extensive feathering between the ribs, a moderate quantity of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and a moderate covering of fat over the skirt. The flanks are very thick, full, and firm. Kidney and pelvic fat is very firm and usually is abundant. The cut surface of the lean is firm, fine-textured, light grayish red in color, and velvety to sight and touch. There is a small amount of marbling in the rib eye muscle. Calf carcasses which are approaching beef in maturity and development will have a moderate amount of marbling.

(3) To qualify for the Prime grade a carcass must possess the minimum requirements for evidences of quality regardless of the extent that its conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Prime. However, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Prime grade may compensate, on an equal basis and without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Prime as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Prime grade may have conformation equivalent to the mid-point of the Choice grade and remain eligible for Prime.

(b) Choice. (1) A calf carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Choice grade tends to be moderately blocky and compact and tends to be moderately broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be moderately thick-fleshed and has a moderately plump appearance. Rounds tend to be moderately thick and bulging. Loin and back tend to be moderately full and plump. Shoulders and breast tend to be moderately thick.

(2) There is usually a moderately thin covering of firm fat over the loin and back which also usually covers most of the tops of the shoulders and outsides of the legs. There is a small amount of rather extensive feathering between the ribs, a small quantity of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and a small amount of fat covering over the skirt. The flanks are thick, full and firm. Kidney and pelvic fat is firm and usually is moderately abundant. The cut surface of the lean is moderately firm; fine-textured; and light grayish red in color; and there are traces of marbling in the rib eye. Calf carcasses approaching beef in maturity and development have a slight amount of marbling.

(3) To qualify for the Choice grade a carcass must possess the minimum requirements for evidences of quality regardless of the extent that its conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Choice. However, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Choice grade may compensate, on an equal basis and without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Choice as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Choice grade may have conformation equivalent to the mid-point of the Good grade and remain eligible for Choice.

(c) Good. (1) A calf carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Good grade tends to be slightly blocky and compact and tends to be slightly broad in proportion to its length. It tends to be only slightly thick-fleshed and has a slightly plump appearance. Rounds are slightly thick but have little evidence of plumpness. Loin and back are very slightly full and plump. Shoulders and breast are slightly thick.

(2) There is usually a very thin covering of fat over the loin and back which also partially covers the tops of the shoulders and outsides of the legs. There is a slight amount of feathering between the ribs, a slight quantity of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and a slight amount of fat covering over the skirt. The flanks are moderately thick, full, and firm. There is usually a small amount of kidney and pelvic fat which is moderately firm. The cut surface of the lean is slightly soft; fine-textured; slightly dark grayish red in color; and somewhat moist to sight and touch.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the mid-point of the Good grade may have evidences of quality equivalent to the minimum for the upper third of the Standard grade and remain eligible for Good. Also, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Good grade may compensate, without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Good on the basis of a half grade superior quality for a third of a grade of deficient conformation as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Good grade may have conformation equivalent to the minimum of the upper third of the Standard grade and remain eligible for Good.

(d) Standard. (1) A calf carcass possessing typical, minimum qualifications for the Standard grade tends to be thinly fleshed, rangy, and angular and tends to be narrow in relation to its length. Rounds are thin and tapering and very slightly concave. Loin and back are slightly shallow and depressed. Shoulders and breast are thin.

(2) There is usually an extremely thin covering of fat over the back and loin but usually practically no fat covering over the tops of the shoulders or outsides of the legs. There are traces of feathering between the ribs, traces of fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and traces of fat covering over the skirt. The flanks are slightly thick and firm. There is usually a slight amount of kidney and pelvic fat. The cut surface is moderately soft and moist and slightly dark grayish red in color.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the mid-point of the Standard grade may have evidences of quality equivalent to the minimum for the upper third of the Utility grade and remain eligible for Standard. Also, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Standard grade may compensate, without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Standard on the basis of a half grade superior quality for a third of a grade of deficient conformation as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Standard grade may have conformation equivalent to the minimum of the upper third of the Utility grade and remain eligible for Standard.

(e) Utility. (1) A calf carcass possessing typical, minimum requirements for the Utility grade is very thinly fleshed and is very rangy and angular and very narrow in relation to its length. Rounds are very thin and moderately concave. Loin and back are very shallow and depressed. Shoulders and breast are very thin.

(2) There are usually only a few very thin patches of external fat over the loin and back and very small deposits of fat around the base of the tail and over the outsides of the shoulders. There is practically no feathering, practically no fat streaking in the inside flank muscles, and practically no fat covering over the skirt. The flanks are soft and very thin. There is usually only a very slight amount of kidney and pelvic fat. The cut surface of the lean is soft and moist and dark grayish red in color.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the mid-point of the Utility grade may have evidences of quality equivalent to the minimum for the upper third of the Cull grade and remain eligible for Utility. Also, a development of quality which is superior to that specified as minimum for the Utility grade may compensate, without limit, for a development of conformation which is inferior to that specified for Utility on the basis of a half grade superior quality for a third of a grade of deficient conformation as indicated in the following example: A carcass which has evidences of quality equivalent to the mid-point of the Utility grade may have conformation equivalent to the minimum of the upper third of the Cull grade and remain eligible for Utility.

(f) Cull. (1) A typical Cull grade calf carcass is extremely thin-fleshed and is extremely rangy and angular and extremely narrow in relation to its length. Rounds are concave and extremely thin. Loin and back are extremely depressed. Shoulders and breast are extremely thin.

(2) There is usually no external fat covering and no feathering between the ribs, fat covering over the skirt, nor streaking of fat in the inside flank muscles. The flanks are extremely thin and very soft. There is usually practically no kidney or crotch fat. The cut surface of the lean is very soft and very moist and dark grayish red in color.

2. Paragraph (d) of § 53.123 of the official United States standards for grades of vealers is amended to read as follows:

(d) Standard. Vealers possessing the minimum requirements for Standard grade tend to be rangy, upstanding, long and thin of neck, narrow over the back, loin, and rump, and shallow in the twist. They are thin-fleshed, and there is a distinctly sunken or hollowed-out appearance over the back, loin, and rounds. Hips and shoulders appear moderately prominent. There is an extremely thin fat covering over portions of the back and loin that is difficult to detect in the live animal. Such vealers may show the heavy bones, thick hide, prominent hips and shoulders associated with coarseness, or they may show the small bones, tight hide, and angularity denoting overrefinement.

3. Paragraph (d) of § 53.124 of the official United States standards for grades of slaughter calves is amended to read as follows:

(d) Standard. Calves possessing the minimum requirements for Standard grade tend to be rangy, upstanding, long and thin of neck, narrow over the back, loin, and rump, and shallow in the twist. They tend to be thinly fleshed, and there is a slightly sunken or hollowed-out appearance over the back, loin, and rounds. Hips and shoulders appear somewhat prominent. There is a very thin fat covering that is discernible only over portions of the back and loin. Such calves may show the heavy bones, thick hide, prominent hips and shoulders associated with coarseness; or they may show the small bones, tight hide, and angularity denoting over-refinement.

These amendments change the grade name "Commercial" to "Standard" wherever it occurs in the standards conforming them in that respect with the grade names for young slaughter cattle and beef produced therefrom. The changes in phrasing of the veal and calf carcass grade standards will facilitate their interpretation and conform them with color photographs used by the Department of Agriculture to illustrate the minimum requirements of the respective grades. The changes in phrasing will not result in any change in the manner in which the standards will be applied. The amendments correct a typographical error contained in the notice published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of July 21, 1956, in which in referring to permissible compensation by superior quality for inferior conformation the words "conformation" and "quality" were inadvertently reversed in several instances.

The foregoing amendments will become effective on October 1, 1956.

TITLE 21—FOOD AND DRUGS

Chapter I—Food and Drug Administration, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

PART 146—GENERAL REGULATIONS FOR THE CERTIFICATION OF ANTIBIOTIC AND ANTIBIOTIC-CONTAINING DRUGS

ANIMAL FEED CONTAINING ANTIBIOTIC DRUGS

By virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 507, 59 Stat. 463, 61 Stat. 11, 63 Stat. 409, 67 Stat. 389; sec. 701, 52 Stat. 1055; 21 U. S. C. 357, 371) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (20 F. R. 1996), the regulations for certification of antibiotic and antibiotic-containing drugs (21 CFR Part 146; 21 F. R. 1417) are amended as indicated below:

Section 146.26 Animal feed containing penicillin • • • is amended as follows:

1. Paragraph (a) is amended by adding thereto the following new subparagraph:

(5) Furazolidone 0.00083 percent, 3-nitro-4-hydroxyphenol arsonic acid not less than 0.0025 percent and not more than 0.0075 percent, with or without nitrofurazone 0.0056 percent.

2. Paragraph (b) (1) is amended by adding thereto the following new subdivision:

(v) Furazolidone 0.00083 percent, 3-nitro-4-hydroxyphenol arsonic acid not less than 0.0025 percent and not more than 0.0075 percent, and nitrofurazone 0.0056 percent.

Notice and public procedure are not necessary prerequisites to the promulgation of this order, and I so find, since it was drawn in collaboration with interested members of the affected industry, since it relaxes existing requirements, and since it would be against public interest to delay providing for the amendments set forth above.

I further find that animal feeds containing antibiotics and the other drugs specified in these amendments need not comply with the requirements of sections 502 (l) and 507 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act in order to insure their safety and efficacy, provided they comply with the regulations set forth in § 146.26.

This order shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER, since both the public and the affected industry will benefit by the earliest effective date, and I so find.

PART 609—STANDARD INSTRUMENT APPROACH PROCEDURES

PROCEDURE ALTERATIONS

The standard instrument approach procedure alterations appearing hereinafter are adopted to become effective when indicated in order to promote safety. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and therefore is not required.

Part 609 is amended as follows:

NOTE: Where the general classification (LFR, VAR, ADF, ILS, GCA, or VOR), location, and procedure number (if any) of any procedure in the amendments which follow, are identical with an existing procedure, that procedure is to be substituted for the existing one, as of the effective date given, to the extent that it differs from the existing procedure; where a procedure is cancelled, the existing procedure is revoked; new procedures are to be placed in appropriate alphabetical sequence within the section amended.

1. The low frequency range procedures prescribed in § 609.6 are amended to read in part:

In the Matter of City Specialty Stores, Inc., a Corporation, Doing Business Under the Trade Names of Oppenheim-Collins and Franklin Simon

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission—charging a corporation in New York City operating the retail chains of Oppenheim-Collins and Franklin Simon stores in the eastern United States, with violating the Fur Products Labeling Act through failing to disclose in advertisements in newspapers and otherwise the names of animals producing certain fur products, the fact that certain products were artificially colored, and the country of origin of certain furs; setting forth the names of other animals than those producing the fur; misrepresenting prices as reduced from purported regular prices which were in fact fictitious; misrepresenting savings by means of comparative price claims not based on current market values; and misrepresenting value of products—and an agreement between counsel containing consent order to cease and desist.

On this basis, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist which became, on August 17, the decision of the Commission.

The order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That respondent, City Specialty Stores, Inc., a corporation, doing business under the trade names of Oppenheim-Collins or Franklin Simon, or under any other name, and its officers, representatives, agents and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the introduction into commerce, or the sale, advertising, or offering for sale in commerce, or the transportation or distribution in commerce, of any fur product, or in connection with the sale, advertising, offering for sale, transportation, or distribution of any fur product which is made in whole or in part of fur which has been shipped and received in commerce, as "commerce", "fur" and "fur product" are defined in the Fur Products Labeling Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

Falsely or deceptively advertising fur products through the use of any advertisement, representation, public announcement, or notice, which is intended to aid, promote or assist, directly or indirectly, in the sale or offering for sale of fur products, and which:

1. Fails to disclose:

(a) The name or names of the animal or animals producing the fur or furs contained in the fur products as set forth in the Fur Products Name Guide, and as prescribed under the rules and regulations;

(b) That the fur products contain or are composed of bleached, dyed, or otherwise artificially colored fur when such is a fact;

(c) The name of the country of origin of imported furs contained in fur products;

2. Contains the name or names of any animal or animals other than the name or names provided for in paragraph 5 (a) (1) of the Fur Products Labeling Act;

3. Represents directly or by implication:

(a) That the regular or usual price of any fur product is any amount which is in excess of the price at which the respondents have usually and customarily sold such products in the recent regular course of their business;

(b) That fur products are of a certain value or quality unless such representations or claims are true in fact;

4. Makes use of comparative prices or percentage savings claims unless such compared prices or claims are based upon the current market value of the fur product or upon a bona fide compared price at a designated time.

By "Decision of the Commission", etc., report of compliance was required as follows:

It is ordered, That respondent City Specialty Stores, Inc., a corporation, doing business under the trade names of Oppenheim-Collins and Franklin Simon, shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order, to cease and desist.

Issued: August 17, 1956.

By the Commission, Commissioner Gwynne not participating.

Subchapter A—Meat Inspection Regulations

PART 18—REINSPECTION AND PREPARATION OF PRODUCTS

GLANDS AND ORGANS FOR USE IN PREPARING PHARMACEUTICAL, ORGANOTHERAPEUTIC, OR TECHNICAL PRODUCTS

On July 25, 1956, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5594) a notice of a proposed amendment of § 18.15 of the Meat Inspection Regulations (9 CFR 18.15). After due consideration of all relevant matters submitted in connection with the notice, and pursuant to the authority conferred by the Meat Inspection Act, as amended (21 U. S. C. 71–91) and section 306 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U. S. C. 1306), the aforesaid section of the regulations is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 18.15 Glands and organs for use in preparing pharmaceutical, organotherapeutic, or technical products. (a) (1) Glands and organs which are not used as food products, such as cotyledons, ovaries, prostate glands, tonsils, spinal cords, and detached lymphatic, pineal, pituitary, parathyroid, suprarenal, and thyroid glands, may be shipped interstate either by establishments operating under inspection or by those which do not operate under inspection: Provided, That the containers shall be plainly marked "For pharmaceutical purposes," "For organotherapeutic purposes," or "For technical purposes," without any reference to inspection.

(2) Organs in this category may be brought into and stored in edible product departments of inspected establishments or shipped with edible product if packaged in suitable containers which will in no way interfere with the maintenance of sanitary conditions or constitute an interference with inspection.

(b) Glands or organs which are regarded as food products, such as pancreatic glands, livers, testicles, and thymus, may be shipped interstate or brought into official establishments for pharmaceutical, organotherapeutic, or technical purposes, only if U. S. inspected and passed and so identified.

The purpose of the foregoing amendment is to include pancreatic glands in the category of edible products and make this a food material subject to all requirements of the Meat Inspection Regulations.

This amendment shall become effective upon the expiration of 30 days after the date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(b) Assessments shall be levied upon handlers at rates established by the Secretary. Such rates may be established upon the basis of the committee's recommendations and other available information. Such rates may be applied to specified containers used in the production area.

(c) At any time during, or subsequent to, a given fiscal period the committee may recommend the approval of an amended budget and an increase in the rate of assessment. Upon the basis of such recommendations, or other available information, the Secretary may approve an amended budget and increase the rate of assessment. Such increase shall be applicable to all tomatoes which were regulated under this part and which were handled by the first handler thereof during such fiscal period.

§ 1014.43 Accounting. (a) All funds received by the committee pursuant to the provisions of this subpart shall be used solely for the purposes specified in this part.

(c) The committee may make recommendations to the Secretary for one or more of the members thereof, or any other person, to act as a trustee for holding records, funds, or any other committee property during periods of suspension of this subpart, or during any period or periods when regulations are not in effect and, if the Secretary determines such action appropriate, he may direct that such person or persons shall act as trustee or trustees for the committee.

(b) The Secretary, upon recommendation of the committee, may determine that it is appropriate for the maintenance and functioning of the committee that some of the funds remaining at the end of a fiscal period which are in excess of the expenses necessary for committee operations during such period may be carried over into following periods as a reserve for possible liquidation. Upon approval by the Secretary, such reserve may be used upon termination of this order to liquidate the affairs of the committee: Provided, That upon termination of this part any monies in the reserve for liquidation which are not required to defray the necessary expenses of committee liquidation shall be returned upon a pro rata basis to all persons from whom such funds were collected.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

§ 1014.48 Research and development. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may establish or provide for the establishment of marketing research and development projects designed to assist, improve, or promote the marketing, distribution, and consumption of tomatoes. The expenses of such projects shall be paid from funds collected pursuant to § 1014.42.

Such safeguards may include requirements that:

(1) Handlers shall file applications with the committee to handle tomatoes pursuant to §§ 1014.53 and 1014.54; or

(c) Insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned, the length of time for which an inspection certificate is valid may be established by the committee with the approval of the Secretary.

(d) When tomatoes are inspected in accordance with the requirements of this section, a copy of each inspection certificate issued shall be made available to the committee by the inspection service.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[17 CFR Part 239]

REVISION OF FORM FOR REGISTRATION STATEMENT

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that the Securities and Exchange Commission has under consideration a proposed revision of Form S-6 (§ 239.16) under the Securities Act of 1933 and that a public hearing on the proposed revision will be held in Room 193 at its offices, 425 Second Street NW., Washington, D. C., on November 15, 1956, at 10:00 a. m.

Form S-6 is used for registration of securities under the above act by unit investment trusts which are currently issuing securities, including periodic payment plan certificates. The revised form would also be used for registering securities of unincorporated management investment companies having a sponsor but not having a board of directors or persons performing similar functions.

A registration statement on Form S-6 consists largely of certain of the information and documents which would be required in a registration statement under the Investment Company Act of 1940 if such a statement were currently being filed. Registrants on this form are thus permitted to base their registration statements under the 1933 act upon the information and documents filed with the Commission in the original registration statement and in subsequent reports under the 1940 act.

Form S–6 is being revised at this time to bring it into line with a proposed revision and consolidation of Forms N–8B–2 and N–8B–3 (§§ 274.12 and 274.13) under the 1940 Act. These revisions are also being considered in connection with certain proposed changes in the Commission's Statement of Policy relating to investment company sales literature generally.

A copy of the proposed revision of Form S–6 is attached hereto.[1]

Any person interested in presenting his views on the proposed revision of Form S–6 at the public hearing should, not later than 5:30 p. m. on November 12, 1956, submit to the Commission in writing a statement of his intention to appear at the hearing, together with a written statement of his views, and should limit his request for time to make oral presentation so as to provide an opportunity for all interested persons to be heard.

In addition all other interested persons are invited to submit their views and comments on the proposed form, in writing, to the Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C., on or before October 31, 1956. Except where it is requested that such communications not be disclosed, they will be considered available for public inspection.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

CONSOLIDATION OF FORMS FOR REGISTRATION STATEMENTS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that the Securities and Exchange Commission has under consideration a proposed revision and consolidation of Forms N–8B–2 and N–8B–3 (§§ 274.12 and 274.13) under the Investment Company Act of 1940, and that a public hearing on the proposed revision will be held in Room 193 at its offices, 425 Second Street, NW., Washington, D. C., on November 15, 1956, at 10:00 a. m.

Form N–8B–2 is used for registration statements filed under that Act by unit investment trusts which are currently issuing securities, including those which issue periodic payment plan certificates. Form N–8B–3 is used for registration statements filed by unincorporated management investment companies currently issuing periodic payment plan certificates. The revised form would be used by any unit investment trust which proposes to issue securities, or any unincorporated management investment company which proposes to issue periodic payment plan certificates.

The proposed revision is the first general revision of these forms since they were adopted in 1942. As a result of the experience gained over the intervening years, and in view of the fact that the form is now used chiefly by newly organized companies, the Commission believes that these forms can be simplified and consolidated into a single form for both of the types of companies mentioned above. Much of the historical information relating to the operation of companies which were in existence at the time of the passage of the act is no longer of importance and hence the requirements for furnishing such information have been omitted from the proposed revision.

Registration statements on this form serve as a basis for furnishing the information required for registration statements under the Securities Act of 1933. Accordingly, the proposed new form has been drafted with registration under that act particularly in mind. The proposed form is also being considered in connection with certain proposed changes in the Commission's Statement of Policy relating to sales literature of investment companies generally.

A copy of the proposed form is attached hereto.[1]

Any person interested in presenting his views on the above proposal at the public hearing should, not later than 5:30 p. m. on November 12, 1956, submit to the Commission in writing a statement of his intention to appear at the hearing, together with a written statement of his views, and should limit his request for time to make oral presentation so as to provide an opportunity for all interested persons to be heard.

In addition, all other interested persons are invited to submit their views and comments on the proposed form, in writing, to the Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C., on or before October 31, 1956. Except where it is requested that such communications not be disclosed, they will be available for public inspection.

By the Commission.

I concur. The records of the Bureau of Land Management will be noted accordingly.

Parts of the released lands are State or privately owned. The minerals in these lands are not reserved to the United States.

The restored lands are grazing lands, located in Bighorn County, Wyoming. They are not suitable for cultivation nor for small tract development. The soil supports a sparse stand of sagebrush, saltsage, and grass. The lands are within Wyoming Grazing District No. 1.

No application for the restored lands may be allowed under the homestead, desert-land, small tract, or any other nonmineral public-land law unless the lands have already been classified as valuable or suitable for such type of application, or shall be so classified upon the consideration of an application. Any application that is filed will be considered on its merits. The lands will not be subject to occupancy or disposition until they have been classified.

Subject to any valid existing rights and the requirements of applicable law, the restored lands are hereby opened to filing of applications, selections, and locations in accordance with the following:

Such applications and selections will be considered as filed on the hour and respective dates shown for the various classes enumerated in the following paragraphs:

All applications presented by persons other than those referred to in this paragraph will be subject to the applications and claims mentioned in this paragraph.

(2) All valid applications under the Homestead, Desert Land, and Small Tract Laws by qualified veterans of World War II or of the Korean Conflict, and by others entitled to preference rights under the act of September 27, 1944 (58 Stat. 747; 43 U. S. C. 279–284 as amended), presented prior to 10:00 a. m. on October 3, 1956, will be considered as simultaneously filed at that hour. Rights under such preference right applications filed after that hour and before 10:00 a. m. on January 2, 1957, will be governed by the time of filing.

(3) All valid applications and selections under the non-mineral public-land laws, other than those coming under paragraphs (1) and (2) above, presented prior to 10:00 a. m. on January 2, 1957, will be considered as simultaneously filed at that hour. Rights under such applications and selections filed after that hour will be governed by the time of filing.

Persons claiming veterans preference rights must enclose with their applications proper evidence of military or naval service, preferably a complete photostatic copy of the certificate of honorable discharge. Persons claiming preference rights based upon valid settlement, statutory preference, or equitable claims must enclose properly corroborated statements in support of their claims. Detailed rules and regulations governing applications which may be filed pursuant to this notice can be found in Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

b. The restored lands have been open to applications and offers under the mineral-leasing laws. They will be open to location under the United States mining laws beginning at 10:00 a. m. on January 2, 1957.

[Docket No. G-10707]

NORTHERN NATURAL GAS CO.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

AUGUST 27, 1956.

Take notice that Northern Natural Gas Company (Applicant), a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Omaha, Nebraska, filed an application on July 3, 1956, for a certificate of public convenience and necessity, pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, authorizing construction and operation of natural gas facilities as hereinafter described.

Applicant states that it has entered into a gas purchase contract with Skelly Oil Company (Skelly), whereby Applicant will purchase surplus residue gas from three of Skelly's gasoline plants located in the vicinity of Applicant's Skellytown Compressor Station. It is contemplated that delivery of the gas will be made initially at the Schafer and Crawford Plants and future deliveries will also be made at the Kingsmill Plant in accordance with the gas purchase contract. Applicant alleges that the additional volumes proposed to be purchased from Skelly will supplement Applicant's total gas supply.

Applicant proposes to construct and operate the following facilities in the vicinity of Applicant's Skellytown, Texas, Compressor Station for the purpose of receiving and transporting the natural gas purchased from Skelly:

(a) 1.5 miles of 10-inch line from Skelly's Crawford Gasoline Plant to a point on Applicant's present 24-inch line north of Applicant's Skellytown Compressor Station, and related measuring facilities.

(b) 0.16 mile of 8-inch line from Skelly's Schafer Gasoline Plant to a point on Applicant's present 20-inch line southeast of the Skellytown Compressor Station, and related measuring facilities.

(c) A 440-horsepower compressor unit to be located on the line to be constructed from the Schafer Plant to Applicant's 20-inch line.

The cost to construct the proposed facilities is estimated to be $154,700, which Applicant will finance out of funds on hand.

Applicant states that Skelly uses a portion of the residue gas from its gasoline plants for secondary oil recovery operations and has contracted to sell surplus gas to Applicant with the condition that any certificate issued by the Federal Power Commission include satisfactory assurance that Skelly can continue to use the residue gas for these operations.

Applicant estimates that Skelly will deliver an average of 8,700 Mcf per day to Applicant during the first full year of operation. Of this amount, it is estimated that 3,000 Mcf per day will be delivered at the Schafer Plant and the balance at the Crawford Plant. The first deliveries are expected to commence on or about October 1, 1956, and gas will become available at the Kingsmill Plant not earlier than January 1958, when additional volumes will become available.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, hearing will be held on September 24, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a noncontested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before September 15, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 1-3597]

HOUSTON OIL COMPANY OF TEXAS

NOTICE OF APPLICATION TO STRIKE FROM LISTING AND REGISTRATION, AND OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

AUGUST 28, 1956.

In the matter of Houston Oil Company of Texas, Common Stock, File No. 1-3597.

New York Stock Exchange has made application, pursuant to section 12 (d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule X-12D2-1 (b) promulgated thereunder, to strike the above named security from listing and registration thereon.

The reasons alleged in the application for striking this security from listing and registration include the following:

The stockholders on April 24, 1956, adopted a plan of complete liquidation of the Company, authorized sale of all its properties and assets other than cash and accounts and note receivable as of December 31, 1955, and further authorized dissolution of the Company. By letter dated June 6, 1956, the Company advised stockholders that the sale had been consummated on that date and that a first liquidating distribution of $162 per share would be made commencing June 7, 1956. Dealings on the Exchange were suspended before the opening of the trading session on July 30, 1956. A letter from the applicant indicates possible further liquidating payments of perhaps $4.50 per share.

Upon receipt of a request, on or before September 14, 1956, from any interested person for a hearing in regard to terms to be imposed upon the delisting of this security, the Commission will determine whether to set the matter down for hearing. Such request should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person requesting the hearing and the position he proposes to take at the hearing with respect to imposition of terms. In addition, any interested person may submit his views or any additional facts bearing on this application by means of a letter addressed to the Secretary of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C. If no one requests a hearing on this matter, this application will be determined by order of the Commission on the basis of the facts stated in the application and other information contained in the official file of the Commission pertaining to the matter.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

COMSTOCK URANIUM-TUNGSTEN CO., INC.

ORDER TEMPORARILY SUSPENDING EXEMPTION, STATEMENT OF REASONS THEREFOR, AND NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

AUGUST 28, 1956.

I. Comstock Uranium-Tungsten Company, Inc., a Nevada corporation, with its principal office located at 405 Henderson Bank Building, Elko, Nevada, having filed with the Commission on April 8, 1955, a notification and offering circular, and subsequent amendments thereto, relating to an offering of 440,000 shares of its common capital stock, 2 cents par value at 50 cents per share, for an aggregate of $220,000, for the purpose of obtaining an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, pursuant to the provisions of section 3 (b) thereof and Regulation A promulgated thereunder; and

II. The Commission having reasonable grounds to believe that the offering is being and will be made in such a manner as to operate as a fraud and deceit upon purchasers and prospective purchasers, in that

(A) The failure of the company appropriately to amend or supplement its offering circular and sales literature, when it knew that certain of its officers, directors and promoters were selling personal shares of the issuer's stock in competition with the Regulation A offering, constitutes a fraud and deceit upon the purchasers.

(B) The failure of the company appropriately to amend or supplement its offering circular and sales literature when it knew:

(1) That it had lost a portion of its interest in "Desert Scheelite," its major property,

(2) That Utah Uranium Brokers were no longer serving as underwriters results in the use of an offering circular and sales literature that contain untrue statements of material facts and omissions to state material facts necessary to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rules 223 and 261 of the general rules and regulations under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, that the exemption under Regulation A be, and it hereby is, temporarily suspended.

Notice is hereby given, that any persons having any interest in the matter may file with the Secretary of the Commission a written request for hearing; that, within 20 days after receipt of such request, the Commission will, or at any time upon its own motion may, set the matter down for hearing at a place designated by the Commission for the purpose of determining whether this order of suspension should be vacated or made permanent, without prejudice, however, to the consideration and presentation of additional matters at the hearing; and that notice of the time and place of said hearing will be promptly given by the Commission.

By the Commission.

AUTHORITY: §§ 483.101 to 483.194 issued under sec. 5, 62 Stat. 1072; 15 U. S. C. 714c. Interpret or apply sec. 2, 63 Stat. 945, sec. 104, 64 Stat. 198, 67 Stat. 358, 70 Stat. 966; sec. 407, 63 Stat. 1051, 68 Stat. 583, 70 Stat. 6; 7 U. S. C. 1641, 1642; 7 U. S. C. 1427.

GENERAL

§ 483.101 General statement. Commodity Credit Corporation (referred to in this subpart as "CCC") pursuant to this subpart will conduct a Wheat Export Program (referred to in this subpart as the "program") under which a person or firm who has exported wheat produced in the United States may apply for payment in the form of a certificate that is redeemable in wheat held in the inventory of CCC. The offer is made to encourage the movement of wheat by the commercial grain trade from points of production into export channels and also to exercise the rights, obtain the benefits and fulfill the obligations of the United States under the International Wheat Agreement. The program will be administered by Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture and information pertaining to the program may be obtained from any of the CSS offices listed in § 483.180.

ELIGIBILITY FOR PAYMENT BY CCC

§ 483.105 General conditions of eligibility. (a) Payment under this program will be made to an exporter in connection with the net quantity of wheat exported from the United States to a designated country and the net quantity of wheat in customs bond in Canada exported in like manner from Canadian ports, excluding West Coast Canadian ports, pursuant to a sale to a foreign buyer for which the exporter receives a Notice of Registration from the Director, Grain Division, Commodity Stabilization Service (referred to in this subpart as the Director), in accordance with § 483.136, subject to the terms and conditions set forth in this subpart. Payment also will be made to an exporter for wheat exported prior to sale and for which the exporter has received a Notice of Registration from the Director, subject to the terms and conditions of this subpart, particularly § 483.109.

(b) Sales to foreign buyers under the International Wheat Agreement, and outside the Wheat Agreement, may be made pursuant to this program. Countries designated as IWA and non-IWA are defined in § 483.106. A sale under the IWA differs from a non-IWA sale only in that the former is recorded under the Wheat Agreement against quotas of the buying country and of the United States, normally pursuant to request of the buyers; and that a sale under the Wheat Agreement is subject to open quota balances and other requirements as set forth in this subpart. Final determination of recordability under the Wheat Agreement is under the jurisdiction of the Wheat Council (see § 483.121), but an exporter's rights under this subpart are not altered by any action of the Wheat Council.

(c) Payment under this subpart will be made only with respect to foreign sales of wheat made on and after September 4, 1956, except that such sales made prior to September 4, 1956, which are registered as provided herein not later than September 7, 1956, and which are in accordance with all other provisions of this subpart, will be eligible to receive payment in kind based on the export payment rate in effect from 12:01 a. m., e. d. t. to 3:30 p. m., e. d. t., September 4, 1956.

(d) A sale which involves wheat produced outside the United States, or a mixture of wheat which is partly derived from wheat produced outside the United States is not eligible for registration under the program. However, in the event the Director determines that such a mixture is exported unintentionally, payment may be made but only on that portion which it is established to his satisfaction was produced in the United States.

(e) Wheat exported pursuant to any program wherein the CCC sales price reflects an export allowance or on which an export allowance has been obtained under an IWA program, or wheat which is sold by CCC under conditions specifically excluding such wheat from exportation under this program, shall not be eligible for payment under this subpart.

§ 483.106 Designated countries. (a) With respect to sales made for recording under the Wheat Agreement, a designated country shall be any country or territory which has been designated in a rate announcement (See § 483.130) as having a quota open for IWA Sales.

(b) With respect to sales not specifically made for recording under the Wheat Agreement, a designated country shall be a destination outside the continental limits of the United States, excluding Alaska, Hawaii or Puerto Rico, and also excluding (1) any country or area listed as Sub-Group A of Group R of the Comprehensive Export Schedule issued by the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, U. S. Department of Commerce unless a license for shipment or transshipment thereto has been obtained from such Bureau; (2) Macao unless specific license for shipment or transshipment thereto has been obtained from the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, U. S. Department of Commerce; or (3) Hong Kong in the case of any commodity for which a specific license is required by regulations of the U. S. Department of Commerce under the Export Control Act of 1949, unless such specific license for shipment or transshipment thereto has been obtained from the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, U. S. Department of Commerce.

(c) Exports of wheat under this program shall be made only to the country and buyer named in the Declaration of Sale and the exporter shall not ship, transship or cause to be transshipped to any other country unless the exporter obtains, prior to export, written authority from the Director to export to a designated country or a buyer other than named in the Declaration of Sale.

§ 483.107 Date of exportation. (a) Wheat sold for export in a specified export rate period announced by CCC, must be exported before the end of that period in order for the exporter to obtain the export payment rate applicable to that sale, unless an extension is obtained in writing from CCC changing the export date to a later period. In the event that export takes place after the specified rate period and the exporter has not obtained an extension to change the export date to a later period, the export payment rate will be that which was in effect at time of sale, or time of giving Notice of Sale, whichever is lower, for the period in which actual export takes place. It will be the policy to grant an extension if it can be shown that exportation under the contract has been delayed by circumstances beyond the exporter's or importer's control and is not due to intentional violation of the contract.

(b) With respect to sales under the Wheat Agreement, notwithstanding any other provision of this subpart except paragraph (a) of this section, wheat sold for recording against quotas of any IWA crop year must be exported not later than July 31 of such crop year unless later exportation is authorized (1) by announcement issued in connection with a rate announcement (see § 483.130), or (2) in specific cases by prior written approval of the Director.

§ 483.108 Excess quantities loaded. Payment will not be made on quantities loaded on vessels, cars or truck which exceed the quantity shown on the Declaration of Sale plus any loading tolerance specified in the contract, which loading tolerance shall not exceed 10 percent. A new Declaration of Sale and a new Notice of Registration are required for any additional quantity loaded.

§ 483.109 Wheat exported prior to sale. (a) In connection with any quantity of wheat exported prior to sale, payments will be made only on that portion thereof which has been reported in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section and only on sales made by the actual exporter of such wheat, and not to any other party who buys such wheat and re-sells it to a designated country.

(b) In order to receive export payment on wheat exported prior to sale the exporter must have reported the exportation of such wheat to the Director within seven days after the date of such exportation as defined in § 483.188 unless additional time for reporting is granted in writing by the Director. This report must include the following information:

(1) Date of exportation.
(2) Port of exportation.
(3) Country and port of original destination of wheat.
(4) Name of ocean vessel upon which loaded.
(5) Quantity in bushels.
(6) Class and grade.
(7) The report shall also contain a statement that the vessel contains other wheat sold by the exporter filing the report, as provided in paragraph (c) of this section.

(c) Only wheat which is loaded on a vessel which also carries wheat sold by the same exporter shall be reported under paragraph (b) of this section, and shall be eligible for export payment when sold. In the case of full cargo shipments the unsold portion shall not exceed one-third of the total cargo. In the case of part cargo lots the unsold portion shall not exceed 2,000 metric tons. The exporter should obtain separate bill or bills of lading for both the unsold and sold quantities of wheat exported.

(d) At such time as the wheat is sold, the exporter shall report the sale to the Director as provided in § 483.135, and shall submit all other reports and documents as required by this subpart. In reporting the sale the exporter must state that the wheat sold was reported to the Director, as provided in paragraph (b) of this section. This may be done by the use of code word "Abroad."

(e) The export rate applicable to such sale shall be that rate in effect at time of sale, or time of giving Notice of Sale, whichever is the lower, for the export rate period current at that time which applies (1) to the port from which the wheat was exported, and (2) to the country shown in the Declaration of Sale.

(f) All other conditions of this subpart, except as modified by this section are applicable to sales described in this section.

§ 483.110 Evidence of export. Evidence of export and specified supporting documents, must be submitted in accordance with § 483.147.

§ 483.111 Reentry or diversion. If any quantity of wheat shipped under this subpart is unloaded in the United States or Canada prior to being imported into some country other than the United States or Canada, or because of the exporter's action or with his consent is at any time unloaded in the United States or Canada or diverted to another country while enroute, payment may be withheld, or if payment already has been made, the exporter may be required to make refund as deemed apprcpriate by the Vice President, CCC: Provided, That if the wheat with respect to which payment may be withheld or refund required under this section is lost, destroyed or damaged, the amount of the payment withheld or refund required shall not exceed the amount realized or which might reasonably be realized by the exporter over the price at which it was sold to the designated country. The exporter shall notify the Director immediately upon becoming cognizant of any unloading or diversion of wheat with respect to which payment may be withheld or refund required under this section and furnish information as to the condition of such wheat and any claim he may have in connection with any damage or loss thereto or destruction thereof.

PROVISIONS APPLICABLE EXCLUSIVELY TO IWA SALES

§ 483.120 Program period—IWA. With respect to sales under the Wheat Agreement, notwithstanding any other provisions of this subpart, sales transactions for recording against quotas of any IWA crop year must be entered into not later than July 31, of such crop year.

§ 483.121 Recording in the Wheat Council's records. (a) The Wheat Agreement provides that a transaction or part of a transaction in wheat-grain between participating exporting and importing countries is eligible for entry in the Wheat Council's records against guaranteed quantities of those countries for a crop year:

(1) Provided (i) it is at a price not higher than the maximum nor lower than the minimum (i. e., the equivalents of the basic maximum and minimum prices) in effect during the crop year in which the loading periods specified in the transaction falls and (ii) the exporting and importing countries have not agreed that it shall not be entered against their guaranteed quantities, and

(2) To the extent that (i) both the importing and exporting countries concerned have unfilled quantities for the crop year, and (ii) the loading period specified in the transaction falls within that crop year.

§ 483.122 IWA maximum and minimum prices. Maximum and/or minimum price equivalents under the Wheat Agreement will be announced from time to time by CCC. The Wheat Agreement provides that to such maximum prices may be added such marketing costs and carrying charges as may be agreed between buyer and seller, and that such carrying charges may accrue for the buyer's account only after an agreed date specified in the contract under which the wheat is sold. (See § 483.135 (b) (5).)

§ 483.123 Status of IWA quotas. There will be issued not less often than weekly, a statement as to the status of quotas of importing and exporting countries. Any exporter upon request, addressed to the office indicated in § 483.178 will be furnished with all information that is available as to the status of the fulfillment of quotas under the Wheat Agreement.

EXPORT PAYMENT RATES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

§ 483.130 Announcement of rates. Export payment rates will be announced from Washington, D. C., daily or at intervals of up to 7 days. Rates will be released at approximately 3:31 p. m., e. s. t. (see § 483.194), and will remain in effect through 3:30 p. m., e. s. t., on the expiration date stated in the announcement at which time a new announcement will be made. No rates will be announced on Saturday, and rates effective at 3:31 p. m., e. s. t., on Friday will be in effect through 3:30 p. m., e. s. t., of the market day succeeding Saturday unless the announcement specifically provides otherwise. Announcements will be available through a press release, ticker service, and through Commodity Stabilization Service Offices at Portland (Oregon), Minneapolis, Kansas City (Missouri), Dallas, Chicago, and New Orleans. Different rates of payment for separate coasts or ports, various classes of wheat, destinations, periods of exportation, etc., may be announced simultaneously.

§ 483.131 Determination of rates. The rate in effect at the time of sale to the foreign buyer, or the time of giving Notice of Sale as required by § 483.135 (a), whichever rate is the lower, shall be the rate applicable to the sale. The supporting evidence of sale submitted by the exporter in form prescribed in § 483.137 (d), will be the basis for determining the time of sale. The factors which may be determinative of the time of sale, are:

(a) Time of the exporter's filing a cablegram or mailing a written acceptance of a definite offer to purchase received from the foreign buyer.

(b) Time of receipt by the exporter of a cablegram or other written acceptance from the foreign buyer of a definite offer by the exporter to sell or the time of receipt by the exporter of a cablegram or other written notification from his agent that the foreign buyer has accepted a definite offer by the exporter to sell.

(c) Time of filing by the exporter of a cablegram or time of mailing of a written confirmation of the booking of a shipment or shipments to be made pursuant to an open offer of the exporter to sell or a standing order of the buyer to purchase. It must be clear from the evidence, however, that the exporter is empowered by the terms of the open offer or standing order to firm the contract by issuing a confirmation. For example, if he is authorized to confirm the sale at a price which may be established at his option, the evidence must show that such is the understanding between buyer and seller, otherwise it will be necessary for the buyer also to confirm the price, and receipt of the buyer's confirmation will establish the time of sale.

(d) Sales may be made through a third principal party, but in such cases, in determining the time of sale, no substantially greater lapse of time for receipt of buyer's confirmation will be recognized than would have elapsed had the exporter been dealing directly with the ultimate foreign buyer. In such a transaction, the evidence of sale required by § 483.137 (d) shall include documents exchanged between the exporter, the ultimate foreign buyer and the intermediate third party.

(e) A sale shall not be considered as entered into until the purchase price has been established, and time of sale shall be the earliest date on which a firm contract exists between buyer and seller and on which a firm price has been established as provided in paragraph (a), (b), or (c) of this section. In order to receive payment at the announced rate in effect at the time of sale, it is important that the exporter give timely Notice of Sale as required by § 483.135 (a), and present documentary evidence that the sale was consummated at such time.

(f) If export is wholly by truck or rail and the time of sale cannot be determined on the basis of the factors set forth in paragraph (a), (b) or (c) of this section, or by any other means, the sale will be deemed to have been made at the time of issuance of inland bill of lading, or if none is issued, at the time of clearance through United States Customs. If export is by ocean carrier and time of sale cannot be determined as outlined above, the sale will be deemed to have been made at the time of issuance of ocean carrier bill of lading, or if none is issued, at the time the wheat is loaded on board ocean carrier.

(g) If the time of day at which the sale was consummated is not established and two payment rates are in effect on the day the sale was consummated, the time of consummation of sale will be deemed to be at the time the lower of the two rates was in effect.

REGISTRATION OF SALES

§ 483.135 Notice of Sale—(a) Time. (1) The exporter shall file a Notice of Sale as soon as possible after consummation of the sale, (see § 483.178). (In the case of IWA Sales, in order to comply with the terms of the Wheat Agreement, the report of transactions must reach the Wheat Council in London not later than 10 days after date of consummation of the sale).

(2) Notices of Sale should normally be filed by telegraph, although telephone may be used. Telephoned notices should be confirmed immediately by telegraph.

(3) In order for the exporter to be assured of the current rate of payment, the telegram reporting sale must be filed by 3:30 p. m., e. s. t. (or the telephone call must be made by that time), on the expiration date for such rate as shown in the rate announcement.

(b) Information required. In giving Notice of Sale the exporter must report the following information:

(1) Date of Sale.

(2) Whether the sale is IWA or Non-IWA.

(3) If PL–480, the Authorization Number.

(4) Contract quantity in bushels and the contract loading tolerance, if any, in percentage, but not in excess of ten percent.

(5) The sale price must be shown on a f. o. b. vessel bulk basis, except that on exports from West Coast ports the price may be given on an instore basis. In the case of IWA transactions, if, because of marketing costs and carrying charges as provided for in § 483.122, the sales price exceeds the maximum price, the Notice of Sale must show the total price and the amount thereof included for marketing costs and carrying charges, each shown separately. The f. o. b. or the instore price shown should include all charges and commissions necessary to the sale and moving of the wheat to the f. o. b. or the instore position. For example, a selling agent's commission would be included, whereas guaranteed out-turn insurance would not be included.

(6) The Coast of Export.

(7) Country of destination.

(8) Name of purchaser. (Where the sale involves more than one purchaser, the Notice of Sale should contain the name of one purchaser and the word "others".)

(9) The number of the import license, buying permit, or similar authorization applicable to the sale, for those countries where such is required for IWA transactions, unless otherwise authorized by the Director. (Where the sale involves more than one purchaser, the Notice of Sale should contain one license number and the word "others".)

(10) Delivery period specified in contract.

(11) Class and grade of wheat, and protein content when protein is specified in contract.

(12) If under subparagraph (6) of this paragraph, more than one coast of export is shown, indicate the CSS Commodity Office (Chicago, Dallas or Portland), to which the exporter will submit Application for Wheat Export Payment.

(13) The word "Abroad" for wheat exported prior to sale. (See § 483.109 (d).)

(14) Such additional information in individual cases as may be requested by the Director.

§ 483.136 Notice of Registration. (a) Upon receipt of the Notice of Sale, the Director will issue a Notice of Registration by telegram unless he determines that to do so would not be in the best interests of the program. A notice of registration is a condition precedent to the exporter receiving payment under this subpart. Accordingly, before concluding a transaction it may be to the exporter's advantage in instances involving sales of an unusual nature to ascertain from the office indicated in § 483.178, whether the sale may be registered, or to condition his sales upon his receiving a notice of registration under this subpart.

(b) In the telegram of registration, the Director may utilize the code letters "PIK" to indicate "Registered for Payment in Kind."

(c) Each Notice of Registration will include a registration number which shall be shown on the Declaration of Sale (see § 483.137), and on the Application for Wheat Export Payment, CCC Form 357, and in all correspondence with reference to the transaction.

§ 483.137 Declaration of Sale and evidence of sale—(a) Time of submission and required copies. (1) The exporter shall prepare a Declaration of Sale (CCC Form No. 359), and mail or deliver it normally within two days after receipt of CCC's Notice of Registration. (See § 483.178.)

(2) The Declaration of Sale must be submitted in an original and three copies all of which shall be signed in an original signature by the exporter or his authorized representative. One copy of the Declaration of Sale will be acknowledged and returned to the exporter.

(3) Only one Declaration of Sale normally should be submitted by the exporter for each sale identified by a Registration Number assigned in the Notice of Registration (see § 483.136 (c)), although this is not mandatory. If more than one Declaration of Sale is submitted, the letters A, B, C, etc., shall be added to Registration Numbers on the respective declarations.

(b) Information required. The information to be entered on the Declaration of Sale, is as follows:

(1) The Registration Number.

(2) Whether sale is IWA or Non-IWA.

(3) If PL–480, the Authorization Number.

(4) Date and time of sale and of filing Notice of Sale.

(5) Name of purchaser, or purchasers.

(6) The number of each import license, buying permit, or similar authorization applicable to the sale for those countries where such are required. All applicable numbers shall be so entered even though such numbers were reported in the Notice of Sale.

(7) Contract quantity in bushels, and if the contract provides for a loading tolerance, the amount of such tolerance but not to exceed ten percent.

(8) Country of destination.

(9) Delivery period specified in the contract.

(10) Class and grade of wheat, and protein content when specified in the contract.

(11) The sales price in the case of bulk wheat must be given on an f. o. b. vessel, bulk basis, on exports from Gulf and East Coast ports and on an instore or f. o. b. vessel, bulk basis, on exports from the West Coast ports. In the case of IWA transactions, if, because of marketing costs and carrying charges as provided for in § 483.122, the sale price of wheat exceeds the IWA maximum price, the declaration shall show the total price and amount thereof included for marketing costs and carrying charges, each shown separately. The f. o. b. or the instore price shown should include all charges and commissions necessary to the sale and the moving of the wheat to the f. o. b. or the instore position. For example, a selling agent's commission would be included, whereas guaranteed outturn insurance would not be included.

(12) Export rate per bushel of wheat in effect as determined by § 483.131.

(13) Coastal area from which it is anticipated exportation will be made.

(14) CSS Commodity Office to which Application for Wheat Export Payment will be submitted.

(15) Such additional information in individual cases as may be requested by the Director.

(c) Name in which filed. The Declaration of Sale must be filed in the name of the exporter who sold the wheat to the foreign buyer. If a sale is made under a trade name, the Declaration of Sale may be filed under such name provided the name of the actual exporter and the relationship between the two is clearly established by an appropriate signature on the Declaration and all related documents, such as:

American Grain Company
(Trade Name)
U. S. Grain Company
(s) John Smith, Secretary

(d) Evidence of sale. Supporting evidence of sale, in one copy only, must be filed with each Declaration of Sale. Such evidence may be in the form of certified true copies of offer and acceptance or other documentary evidence of sale including contracts between exporter and buyer. In transactions involving a third principal party (see § 483.131 (d)), the evidence shall include documents exchanged between the exporter, the ultimate foreign buyer, and the intermediate third party.

OBLIGATION AND DEFAULT

§ 483.140 Exporter's agreement with CCC. The Notice of Sale by the exporter and the Notice of Registration by the Director shall constitute an agreement by the exporter to export the quantity of wheat within the prescribed period stated in the Notice of Sale, in consideration of the undertaking of CCC to make an export payment, subject to the terms and conditions of this subpart.

§ 483.141 Cancellation of sale or failure to export. (a) The exporter shall notify the Director promptly in every case where, after giving Notice of Sale as required in § 483.135, a sale is cancelled by the exporter or by the importer, and he must state the reason for such cancellation. The exporter also shall notify the Director promptly when, for any reason, it becomes apparent to him that he will not be able to fulfill his obligation under § 483.140 by making shipment within the prescribed period.

(b) If the Vice President, after affording an exporter the opportunity to present evidence, determines that such exporter has cancelled a sale or failed to export or for other reasons within his control or not attributable to the fault or negligence of the foreign buyer has failed to discharge fully any obligation assumed by him under this subpart, such exporter may be denied the right to continue participating in this program for such period as the Vice President may determine or until the exporter has complied with such terms as the Vice President may prescribe.

WHEAT EXPORT PAYMENT CERTIFICATE

§ 483.145 Application for Wheat Export Payment. An original and two (2) copies of Application for Wheat Export Payment, Form CCC357, must be prepared and submitted together with the evidence of exportation, as provided in § 483.147, to the CSS Commodity Office shown on the acknowledged copy of the Declaration of Sale which is returned to the exporter. Exporter should submit application as soon as possible after exportation as the face value of the certificate which will be issued is subject to discount beginning the 61st day after exportation if not applied to purchase of wheat from CCC prior to such 61st day. (See § 483.146 (b).) Supplies of CCC Form 357 and detailed instructions regarding the preparation and submission of the form may be obtained from the CSS Commodity Offices in Chicago, Dallas, and Portland (Oregon).

§ 483.146 Description of certificate. Upon receipt of an Application for Wheat Export Payment (CCC Form 357) the CSS Commodity Office will determine the amount of payment due and issue to the exporter a Wheat Export Payment Certificate (CCC Form 358) for the amount due. Such certificate is described in this section and will be subject to the provisions embodied in the certificate and the applicable provisions in this subpart.

(a) Payee. Except as provided in § 483.176, the certificate will be issued only to the exporter who has filed a Declaration of Sale and has obtained the Registration Number which shall be shown in the space provided in the certificate.

(b) Face value. The amount shown in the space provided for the face value of the certificate will be the amount obtained by multiplying the number of net bushels of wheat exported by the applicable export payment rate. Certificates will be accepted at face value if applied to the purchase of wheat under contracts with CCC which specify a date of sale not more than 60 days after the date of export shown on the certificate. If a certificate is applied to the purchase of wheat under a contract with CCC which specifies a date of sale more than 60 days after the date of export shown on the certificate, the value at which the certificate will be accepted will be the face value reduced by 1/50 of one percent for each day beginning on the 61st day after such date of export and ending on the date of sale specified in the CCC contract to which it is applied.

(c) Date of export. The date of export shown on the certificate will be the date of export as defined in § 483.183, which shall be deemed to be the date on which the export payment was earned.

(d) General provisions. The Wheat Export Payment Certificate will be redeemable in wheat which Commodity Credit Corporation makes available from its stocks. The certificate may be presented to the Chicago, Dallas or Portland offices of Commodity Stabilization Service, as provided in §483.155, for wheat handled by the office to which submitted. The certificate may be transferred by endorsement subject to all terms, conditions and restrictions applicable to the person or firm to whom it was originally issued.

§ 483.147 Documents required as evidence of exportation. (a) Each Application for Wheat Export Payment (CCC Form 357), must be supported by one copy of the applicable on-board ocean carrier bill of lading signed by an agent of the ocean carrier which shows that the wheat is destined for the buyer identified with the Declaration of Sale and supporting evidence, unless otherwise approved by the Director. Where loss, destruction or damage occurs subsequent to loading aboard ocean carrier but prior to issuance of on-board bill of lading, one copy of a Loading Tally Sheet or similar document may be submitted in lieu of such bill of lading; or if exported wholly by rail or truck, one copy of the Shipper's Export Declaration authenticated by the appropriate United States Customs official which identifies the shipment(s) and shows date of clearance into the foreign country. If the final destination of the shipment is a country not shown on the ocean bill of lading, the exporter also shall furnish an authenticated copy of Shipper's Export Declaration showing country of final destination. The application for payment must also be supported by one copy of an Export Grain Inspection Certificate issued by an inspector licensed under the United States Grain Standards Act and a copy of the official loading weight certificate. Where shipment is exported from a Canadian port, application for payment also must be supported by one copy each of the following documents:

(1) A signed or certified true copy of the bill of lading or other document covering the movement of the wheat from the United States to Canada, and

(2) A signed or certified true copy of document evidencing the holding of the wheat in customs bond in Canada.

(b) If the shipper or consignor named in the on-board bill(s) of lading or the Shipper's Export Declaration(s), covering wheat exported is other than the exporter named in the Declaration of Sale, waiver by such shipper or consignor of any interest in the application for payment in favor of such exporter is required. Such waiver must clearly identify the on-board ocean bill(s) of lading or Shipper's Export Declaration(s) submitted to evidence exportation. If the shipper or consignor is neither the exporter named in the Declaration of Sale, nor the consignee identified with the Declaration of Sale, the exporter must submit, in addition to the waiver a certification by such shipper or consignor that he acted only as a freight forwarder, agent of exporter, or agent of consignee, and not as buyer and seller of the wheat shown on the documents submitted to evidence exportation.

REDEMPTION OF WHEAT EXPORT PAYMENT CERTIFICATE

§ 483.155 Submission of offers. Offers to purchase CCC wheat with certificates may be submitted by letter, telegram, or orally to the CSS Commodity Office serving the coastal area in which the offerer desires delivery. The offerer must specify the class, grade, quality and quantity desired, and the desired point of delivery. CCC reserves the right to determine the classes, grades, qualities and quantities and point of delivery for which offers will be considered, and to reject any offer.

§ 483.156 Creation of contracts. Preliminary negotiations under this subpart shall be confirmed by written Confirmation of Sale which shall be issued by the CSS Commodity Office in duplicate. One copy shall be signed and returned by the offerer, hereinafter called the purchaser. Such Confirmation of Sale, together with the terms and conditions of this subpart, and any amendments in effect on the date of sale, shall constitute the sales contract. Any provision of prior negotiations not contained in the Confirmation of Sale shall be of no effect. The term "date of sale," as used herein, shall mean the date that the parties concluded their preliminary negotiations, which in the case of a transaction covered by § 483.158 (b) (3) shall be the date of export, and such date will be specified in the Confirmation of Sale.

§ 483.157 Price. The price shall be the domestic export price f. o. b. vessel, or instore or track seaboard (without allowance for subsidy) as determined by CCC and shall be specified in the Confirmation of Sale. The price shall be that in effect on the date of purchase, except in cases covered by § 483.158 (b) (3) the price will be the domestic export price as determined by CCC on the date of export.

§ 483.158 Payment terms and financial arrangements. (a) The amount due CCC for wheat purchased hereunder shall be paid by the purchaser by surrender to CCC of properly endorsed Certificate(s) earned prior to the time of purchase or in the case of simultaneous loading, as provided in paragraph (b) (3) of this section, with certificates earned on such simultaneous loading. If the purchaser does not make payment in such manner, such purchaser may be denied the right to continue participating in the program. If the certificates having a value in excess of the purchase price are surrendered by the purchaser to CCC, the certificates having the earliest dates of export shall be applied first to the purchase and any certificates not applied shall be returned to the purchaser. If the value of certificates applied to the purchase exceeds the purchase price, such excess will be adjusted by issuance and delivery to the purchaser of a balance certificate which may be used on a subsequent purchase from CCC. The date of export shown on the balance certificate will be the date shown on the original certificate, or if more than one certificate is applied to the purchase, the date of export shown on the balance certificate will be the latest date of export shown on a certificate applied to the purchase. The face value of the balance certificate will be determined by deducting from the face value of certificates surrendered to CCC in connection with the purchase of wheat the amount of the purchase price of the wheat and any discount applicable to the portion of the certificates being applied to the purchase under § 483.146.

(b) Financial arrangements covering the purchase price of any wheat purchased from CCC hereunder shall be made prior to delivery of the wheat by CCC in one of the following ways:

(1) Surrender to the appropriate Commodity Office of certificate(s) sufficient to pay for the wheat.

(2) If a purchaser who has previously earned but who has not received certificate(s), in an amount sufficient to cover the purchase price of wheat, desires delivery prior to receipt of such certificates the purchaser shall make payment in cash, certified check, or cashier's check, or shall establish an irrevocable commercial letter of credit acceptable to CCC, upon which CCC will not draw or realize to the extent that certificates earned prior to date of purchase of the wheat are received by CCC within 30 days after delivery of the wheat to the purchaser. Promptly after CCC receives acceptable certificates, CCC shall notify the bank which issued or confirmed the letter of credit that CCC consents to a reduction of such letter of credit or shall make refund to the purchaser of any cash received. Any such reduction or refund shall be in an amount equivalent to the value of certificates determined acceptable by CCC.

(3) If the purchaser desires delivery of CCC wheat simultaneously with the loading of wheat which will serve as the basis for earning certificates to be used as payment for the CCC wheat, the purchaser shall make payment equivalent to the estimated value of certificates(s) to be earned, in cash, certified check, or cashier's check or shall establish an irrevocable commercial letter of credit acceptable to CCC, upon which CCC will not draw or realize to the extent that Certificates earned on such shipment are received by CCC within 30 days after delivery of the wheat to the purchaser. Promptly after CCC receives acceptable certificates, CCC shall notify the bank which issued or confirm the letter of credit that CCC consents to a reduction of such letter of credit or shall make refund to the purchaser of any cash received. Any such reduction or refund shall be in an amount equivalent to the value of certificates determined acceptable by CCC.

(c) The financial arrangements provided in paragraph (b) of this section shall be made:

(1) Prior to delivery of the wheat by CCC on purchases which provide for delivery within 5 days following the date of the sale, and

(2) On all other purchases, not less than 5 days prior to delivery of the wheat by CCC, unless CCC consents in writing to a waiver of such period.

(d) If the purchaser fails to make financial arrangements acceptable to CCC in accordance with paragraph (c) of this section CCC shall have the right to deem the purchaser in default and may avail itself of any remedy available to an unpaid seller. The purchaser shall be liable to CCC for any loss or damages resulting from such default.

§ 483.159 Delivery. (a) The method, time, and place of delivery will be as specified in the Confirmation of Sale.

(b) If the commodity is to be delivered instore, delivery shall be accomplished by delivery to the purchaser of endorsed warehouse receipts, or other evidence of title. In the case of instore delivery, loading out charges shall be for the account of the purchaser.

(c) If the wheat is to be delivered other than instore, the details thereof shall be specified in the Confirmation of Sale.

(d) Title and risk of loss and damage shall pass to the purchaser upon delivery and all warehouse and other charges thereafter accruing shall be for the account of the purchaser; Provided, That if delivery is not made within 30 days after the date of sale, the purchaser shall make cash settlement with CCC for warehouse charges on the wheat not delivered, at the rate specified in the Confirmation of Sale for the period beginning on the 31st day to and including the date of delivery, or, if the purchaser fails to take delivery, to and including the final date for delivery specified in the Confirmation of Sale or any written extension thereof; Provided further, that the purchaser shall not be responsible for such charges accruing after such 30 day period as a result of delay on the part of CCC in making delivery.

(e) If the purchaser fails to take delivery of the commodity within the delivery period specified in the Confirmation of Sale, or any written extension thereof, CCC shall have the right to deem the purchaser in default and the purchaser shall be liable to CCC for any loss or damages resulting from such default.

§ 483.160 Specifications. (a) If the wheat is to be delivered instore, CCC shall deliver warehouse receipts, or other evidence of title, representing the quantity, class, grade and or quality of the wheat stated in the Confirmation of Sale, and CCC shall have no responsibility in the event of failure of the warehouseman to deliver in accordance with the warehouse receipts or other evidence of title.

(b) If the wheat is to be delivered other than instore, the quantity, class, grade and or quality of the wheat delivered shall be that stated in the Confirmation of Sale. Determinations as to the class, grade, and or quality of the wheat delivered shall be made on the basis of official inspection at point of delivery, unless otherwise specified in the Confirmation of Sale. The method of determining the quantity delivered shall be as stated in the Confirmation of Sale. If the wheat delivered is within the quality tolerance, if any, specified in the Confirmation of Sale, such delivery shall be accepted by the purchaser.

If the wheat delivered is not within the quality tolerance, if any, specified in the Confirmation of Sale, the wheat may be rejected by the purchaser at the time of delivery, or accepted subject to an adjustment in price for grade and quality difference in accordance with current market premiums and discounts, as determined by CCC. In case of rejection, CCC shall, upon request of the purchaser, replace such rejected quantity. Over and under deliveries in quantity shall be settled for at a price mutually agreed to between CCC and the purchaser. In case of under deliveries a balance certificate shall be issued by CCC or if other financial arrangements were furnished under § 483.158 (b) the value of certificates the purchaser is required to surrender will be reduced. In the case of over deliveries the purchaser shall tender cash or certificates to CCC. If the value of wheat delivered exceeds the value of certificates surrendered by $3.00 or less, no adjustment will be necessary. If the value of certificates surrendered exceeds the value of wheat delivered by $3.00 or less, a balance certificate will not be issued unless requested.

§ 483.161 Export requirements. (a) The purchaser shall, within 60 days after delivery of the wheat to him, or within such extension of that period as may for good cause be authorized by CCC in writing before or after expiration of such 60 day period, cause exportation to a designated country as defined in § 483.106 of wheat equal in quantity and of the same class and grade or better, and from the same location, as the wheat delivered by CCC.

(b) The purchaser shall, within 30 days after exportation, furnish to the CSS Commodity Office proof of such exportation, as required in § 483.162. Failure of the purchaser to furnish CCC proof of exportation within 90 days after delivery of the wheat to him, or, in the case of extension of the time for export, within 30 days from the last date specified for exportation under such extension, shall constitute prima facie evidence of failure to export. Documents supporting an Application for Wheat Export Payment on the wheat exported will be accepted as proof of export of wheat purchased from CCC if they satisfy the requirements specified in § 483.162, and the Application for Wheat Export Payment is accompanied by a letter in duplicate specifying the documents which are submitted as proof of export and the CCC sales contract number to which they relate.

(c) If the purchaser does not cause exportation to be made in conformity with the requirements of paragraph (a) of this section, or if exportation is made and any of the wheat exported is reentered into the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii or Puerto Rico, whether or not such reentry is caused by the purchaser, or if any wheat exported is caused to be transhipped by the purchaser to any country excluded by § 483.106, the sales price with respect to the quantity which is not exported, or which is reentered, or transhipped shall be adjusted upward by the amount that such sales price is exceeded by the highest of the following prices in effect during the period between date of purchase and date of default:

(1) CCC's statutory minimum sales price for unrestricted use for the same class, grade and quality of the wheat, as determined by CCC, or (2) the sales price, announced by CCC for sale for unrestricted used of the same class, grade and quality of the wheat, or (3) if no such sales price has been announced, the highest domestic market price as determined by CCC. The total amount of any upward adjustment in sales price arising under this section shall be paid in cash by the purchaser to CCC promptly upon demand. Any such upward adjustment in sales price will be waived to the extent that the Vice President of CCC, or his designated representative, finds that the wheat has not been exported or has been reentered or transhipped for causes beyond the control, and without the fault or negligence, of the purchaser, and that the quantity of wheat involved in default (other than wheat transhipped to a country excluded by § 483.106) is, pursuant to written approval of CCC, subsequently exported to a designated country within the period specified by CCC, or if as the result of its loss, damage, destruction or deterioration, the physical condition thereof is such that its entry into domestic market channels will not impair CCC's price support operations.

§ 483.162 Proof of exportation. (a) Proof of exportation shall be furnished within the period specified in § 483.161 and shall consist of:

(1) In the case of wheat exported by water, a non-negotiable copy, certified by the exporter as true and correct, of an on-board ocean carrier bill of lading showing the weight of the wheat or the net weight of the wheat if bagged, the date and place of loading, the name of the vessel, the name and address of the purchaser and the consignee, the destination, and the CCC Sales Contract Number.

(2) In the case of wheat exported by rail or truck, a copy of the bill of lading (railroad or truck) under which the wheat was shipped together with (i) an authenticated landing certificate issued by an official of the Government of the country to which the wheat was exported or (ii) a copy of Shipper's Export Declaration authenticated by the appropriate U. S. Customs official. The bill of lading and supporting export form (landing certificate or Shipper's Export Declaration) must indicate applicability to the same shipment of wheat and such forms or properly authenticated attachments must show the CCC sales contract number, the weight of the wheat or the net weight of the wheat if bagged, exported, the date and place of entry into the country of destination, and the name and address of both the person who exported the wheat and the person to whom it was shipped.

(3) An inspection certificate showing the class and grade of wheat exported.

(4) Such additional proof of exportation as may be required by CCC.

§ 483.163 Performance guarantee. CCC reserves the right to require the purchaser to furnish, prior to delivery of the wheat by CCC, a cash deposit, performance bond or performance type letter of credit, acceptable to CCC, to guarantee performance under §§ 483.155 through 483.165, inclusive. If such guarantee is required, the amount thereof and related requirements will be stated in the preliminary negotiations and included in the Confirmation of Sale.

§ 483.164 Inability to perform. CCC shall not be responsible for damages for any failure to deliver, or delay in delivery of, the wheat due to any cause beyond the control of and without the fault or negligence of CCC, including, but not restricted to, acts of God, acts of the public enemy, acts of the Government, fires, floods, strikes, and failure of warehousemen to meet delivery instructions. In case of delay in delivery due to any such causes CCC shall make delivery to the contractor as soon as practicable.

§ 483.165 Covenant against contingent fees. The purchaser warrants that no person or selling agency has been employed or retained to solicit or secure the contract upon an agreement or understanding for a commission, percentage, brokerage, or contingent fee, except bona fide employees or bona fide established commercial or selling agencies. For breach or violation of this warranty CCC shall have the right to annul the contract without liability or in its discretion to require the purchaser to pay, in addition to the contract price or consideration, the full amount of such commission, percentage, brokerage, or contingent fee.

APPENDIX

The Department of Commerce, Bureau of Foreign Commerce (BFC), pursuant to regulations under the Export Control Act of 1949, prohibits the exportation or re-exportation of any commodities under this program to the Soviet Bloc except under license issued by BFC. Those regulations further require that persons exporting under General License to friendly countries commodities which are or are to be subsidized, either by cash payments, payments in kind, or purchases of commodities at reduced prices under any Government export program for surplus commodities (whether or not the exported commodities or products thereof are obtained or manufactured from Government (CCC) stocks), file with the Collector of Customs (in addition to any copies required for other purposes) one copy of the Shipper's Export Declaration and send to BFC, Washington 25, D. C., one copy of the On-Board Ocean Bill of Lading (for exportations by rail, one copy of the Railroad Bill of Lading), for each shipment, regardless of value, involving sales of $100,000 or more.

In the case of commodities purchased from CCC, or commodities being exported as "substitute" for such commodities, the $100,000 figure applies to the sales contract between the CCC and the U. S. purchaser. For commodities being exported under CCC disposal programs for export which involve no actual purchase of commodities from CCC, the $100,000 figure applies to the sales contract between the U. S. seller and the foreign purchaser. Each of the documents must bear on its face the identifying number assigned by CCC to the contract or transaction. In addition, the notation "FC-2610" must be inserted in the upper right-hand corner of each document. Where the commodities purchased from CCC are to be exported by a party other than the original purchaser from CCC, the original purchaser shall inform the exporter of the requirement for submitting the extra copy of the Shipper's Export Declaration and the bill of lading.

Exporters having reason to believe that shipments of these commodities may be reexported to foreign countries not named in their Shipper's Export Declaration and bills of lading are required to place the following statements on the originals and copies of the covering declaration and bills of lading: "For redistribution to other countries" "None of this merchandise will be shipped to Macao, A Soviet Bloc destination, or a Communist-controlled area in the Far East, and none of these commodities except commodities listed in § 371.23 of the Comprehensive Export Schedule will be shipped to Hong Kong."

This revision combines into a single list the warehouses, mills, and other premises that were designated as khapra beetle regulated areas in revised administrative instructions issued as 7 CFR 301.76-2a (20 F. R. 9899), effective December 23, 1955, as amended effective January 26, 1956, March 14, 1956, April 17, 1956, May 9, 1956, June 7, 1956, July 5, 1956, and August 11, 1956 (21 F. R. 573, 1575, 2463, 3073, 3897, 4943, 5997).

By omitting from the list 4 establishments in Arizona and 19 establishments in California, the revision revokes the designation of these establishments as regulated areas and deletes them from the list. The revision also adds to the list 6 establishments in Arizona and 1 establishment in California, thereby designating them as regulated areas.

This revision shall be effective September 4, 1956, and on that date shall supersede revised administrative instructions effective December 23, 1955, and amendments thereof effective January 26, 1956, March 14, 1956, April 17, 1956, May 9, 1956, June 7, 1956, July 5, 1956, and August 11, 1956 (20 F. R. 9899; 21 F. R. 573, 1575, 2463, 3073, 3897, 4943, 5997).

These instructions supplement khapra beetle quarantine regulations already effective. They also relieve restrictions insofar as they revoke the designation of certain regulated areas. They must be made effective promptly in order to carry out the purposes of the regulations and to permit unrestricted movement of regulated products from the premises being removed from designation as regulated areas. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the foregoing administrative instructions are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making the effective date thereof less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 914—NAVEL ORANGES GROWN IN ARIZONA AND DESIGNATED PART OF CALIFORNIA

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of August 10, 1956 (21 F. R. 5989), that the Department was giving consideration to proposed amendments to the rules and regulations (Subpart–Rules and Regulations; 7 CFR 914.100 et seq.) that are currently in effect pursuant to applicable provisions of the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 14, as amended (7 CFR Part 914; 21 F. R. 4707), regulating the handling of Navel oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California, effective under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7, U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047).

After consideration of all relevant matters presented, including the proposals set forth in the aforesaid notice which were submitted by the Navel Orange Administrative Committee (established pursuant to said amended marketing agreement and order as the agency to administer the provisions thereof), it is hereby found that the amendment, as hereinafter set forth, of the said rules and regulations is in accordance with the provisions of the said marketing agreement and order and will tend to effectuate the declared purposes of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended. Such amendment is hereby approved; and the said rules and regulations are hereby amended as follows:

1. Amend § 914.101 Communications by deleting therefrom the address shown as the mailing address of the Navel Orange Administrative Committee and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "117 West Ninth Street, Room 105, Los Angeles 15, California."

2. Amend § 914.102 Nomination procedure as follows:

a. Delete from the second sentence in paragraph (a) (3) the words "not less than two grower members, two alternate grower members" and insert in lieu thereof "one grower member, one alternate grower member."

b. Delete paragraph (a) (4) and substitute therefor the following:

(4) The name of the person receiving the highest total number of votes, for a particular position, at the meetings held pursuant to subparagraph (3) of this paragraph shall be submitted to the Secretary as the nominee for such position.

3. Amend § 914.110 Prorate bases and allotments by redesignating paragraphs (c) and (d) thereof as paragraphs (d) and (e), respectively, and inserting a new paragraph (c) reading as follows:

(c) Change in control of oranges occasioned by transfer of real property. In the event a change in control of oranges is occasioned by a bona fide transfer of the ownership of the real property on which such oranges were produced, the person gaining the control shall request the committee to make the adjustment prescribed in § 914.53 (e). Such request shall set forth the names of the parties to the transfer, and be accompanied by a legal description of the real property transferred, the name of the county, the book, page number, and date showing that such transfer has been duly recorded. The request shall also set forth the name of the person losing control of the oranges. Upon determination by the committee that the change in control of the oranges has been occasioned by such transfer, the quantity of oranges available for current shipment of the person gaining the control shall be adjusted by adding thereto a quantity of oranges equal to the quantity deducted from the oranges available for current shipment of the person losing control of such oranges. Such quantity shall be added during the same periods in which the deductions are effected in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (d) of this section.

4. Amend § 914.111 Allotment loans by inserting immediately following paragraph (c) thereof a new paragraph (d) reading as follows:

(d) Confirmation. All allotment loans made on Saturday shall be confirmed as required by § 914.57 but not later than 5:00 p. m., Monday of the immediately succeeding week.

It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to postpone the effective date of this amendment later than its date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that: (1) This amendment of the rules and regulations implement provisions of the amended marketing agreement and order and should be made effective as soon as possible in order that the committee may be enabled effectively to perform its duties in accordance with the said amended marketing agreement and order; (2) the amendment among other things prescribes a simplified nomination procedure to be used in the selection of nominees, to fill positions on the committee, to represent growers not affiliated with cooperatives; such simplified procedure should be followed in conducting nomination meetings which are required by the amended marketing agreement and order to be concluded in sufficient time to furnish the Secretary with names of prospective nominees who may be selected to serve on the committee; such meetings are to be conducted, as in the past, during the latter part of September, and no useful purpose would be served by postponing such meeting for 30 days after publication hereof; (3) the amendment does not impose any obligations on persons affected thereby with respect to the handling of Navel oranges prior to 30 days after the date of publication hereof; (4) producers and handlers have been notified of the proposed amendment by the Navel Orange Administration Committee; (5) notice that the Department was considering such amendments was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER and interested parties afforded opportunity to file written data, views, or arguments in connection therewith; and (6) the amendment of the rules and regulations does not require any preparation which cannot be completed by the effective time thereof.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

PART 993—DRIED PRUNES PRODUCED IN CALIFORNIA

APPROVAL OF BUDGET OF EXPENSES OF PRUNE ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE FOR 1956–57 CROP YEAR AND FIXING RATE OF ASSESSMENT FOR SUCH CROP YEAR

Pursuant to Marketing Agreement No. 110, as amended, and Order No. 93, as amended (19 F. R. 1301), regulating the handling of dried prunes produced in California, effective under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation of, and information supplied by the Prune Administrative Committee, the administrative agency for program operations, and other available information, it is hereby found and determined, and it is, therefore, ordered, than the budget of expenses of the Prune Administrative Committee, and the rate of assessment, for the crop year which began on August 1, 1956 shall be as follows:

§ 993.307 Budget of expenses of the Prune Administrative Committee and rate of assessment for the 1956–57 crop year—(a) Budget of expenses. Expenses in the amount of $87,437 are reasonable and likely to be incurred by the Prune Administrative Committee for its maintenance and functioning for the crop year beginning August 1, 1956, and ending July 31, 1957.

(b) Rate of assessment. Each handler shall pay to the Prune Administrative Committee, in accordance with the provisions of § 993.50 (e) of the marketing agreement, as amended, and order, as amended, an assessment of 50 cents for each ton of dried prunes received by him as the first handler thereof during the crop year beginning August 1, 1956 and ending July 31, 1957, which assessment rate is hereby fixed as each handler's pro rata share of the aforesaid expenses.

It is hereby found and determined that it is impracticable, unnecessary and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making or postpone the effective date of this document for 30 days, or any lesser period, after publication of it in the FEDERAL REGISTER (see section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because: (1) The rate of assessment hereby fixed is applicable to all dried prunes received by each handler as the first handler thereof during the current crop year; (2) handlers usually begin about August 15 to receive deliveries of dried prunes in volume from producers and dehydrators which receipts are, by the terms of the amended marketing agreement and amended order subject to the assessment set forth hereinabove; (3) the Prune Administrative Committee must be enabled to obtain assessment revenue promptly to defray expenses of administering the program; (4) compliance with the foregoing rules will require no advance preparation by dried prune handlers. It is necessary that this action be made effective as soon as practicable and not later than the date on which this order is published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

Dated August 30, 1956, to become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PART 1001—LIMES GROWN IN FLORIDA

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

Notices were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issues of July 20 and August 2, 1956 (21 F. R. 5447; 5780), that the Department was giving consideration to the proposed amendment of the supplementing rules and regulations (7 CFR 1001.110 et seq.; Subpart–Rules and Regulations; 21 F. R. 3413) currently in effect pursuant to the marketing agreement and Order No. 101 (7 CFR Part 1001) regulating the handling of limes grown in Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047).

The only written data, views, or arguments received was from Herbert Glass of Herb's Limes, Inc., Coral Gables, Florida, and was concerned with the proposed amendment of paragraph (a) of § 1001.130. Mr. Glass contended that further restricting the quantity of limes that could be handled under exemption to 10 bushels per week would place an undue burden on a lime handler, such as himself, who disposes of limes mainly in 23 pound boxes by railway express to drug stores in small communities. In other words, Mr. Glass has been disposing of limes in a container the use of which would be prohibited if the handling of such limes were not exempted from regulation by the terms of § 1001.130, as now in effect. The said section, as proposed to be amended would prohibit such handling in excess of 10 bushels per week. Experience has shown that the present exemption provisions have been abused by some lime handlers in that they have disposed of considerable quantities of limes free from regulation thereunder by making numerous sales in quantities of a bushel or less, rather than making an occasional sale as was intended, and this has tended to reduce the effectiveness of regulations. Moreover, permitting unlimited quantities of limes to be thus disposed of free from regulation has proved detrimental to the effective administration of the program, and, while it is realized that the imposition of the restriction as proposed may cause some inconvenience to lime handlers such as Mr. Glass, it is believed that the need for such further restrictions is paramount in this instance. It has been reported to us that other lime handlers in order to comply with the lime container regulation (§ 1001.302; 20 F. R. 5627, 8956), have shipped by railway express a unit consisting of two 10-pound containers of limes strapped together at the minimum charge for one package. It would seem that this solution would also be feasible for Mr. Glass, in that he now usually ships in a 23-pound package.

After consideration of all relevant matters presented, including the proposals set forth in the aforesaid notices which were submitted by the Florida Lime Administrative Committee (established pursuant to said marketing agreement and order as the agency to administer the provisions thereof), it is hereby found that the amendment, as hereinafter set forth, of the said rules and regulations is in accordance with the provisions of the said marketing agreement and order and will tend to effectuate the declared purposes of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended. Such amendment is hereby approved; and the said rules and regulations are amended as follows:

1. By revising paragraph (a) § 1001.130 Limes not subject to regulation to read as follows:

(a) Any handler may handle limes totaling not more than one bushel to any one person during any one day exempt from the provisions of §§ 1001.41, 1001.52, and 1001.55: Provided, That the total quantity of limes so handled by a handler shall not exceed 10 bushels during any week.

2. By adding therein two new sections reading as follows:

§ 1001.131 Limes for processing. (a) No person shall handle any limes for commercial processing into products unless (1) such limes meet the applicable grade, size, and quality requirements in effect pursuant to § 1001.52; or (2) prior to such handling such person notifies the Florida Lime Administrative Committee of the proposed handling and furnishes such committee with a statement executed by the intended processor that the limes will be used for the stated purpose only; or (3) the processor is an approved manufacturer of lime products, as prescribed in paragraph (b) of this section.

(b) Any person who desires to buy, as an approved manufacturer of lime products, limes for commercial processing shall, prior thereto, submit to the Florida Lime Administrative Committee an application containing the following information: (1) Name and address of applicant; (2) location of processing facilities; (3) proposed type of product or products to be made or derived from limes; (4) description of facilities for processing limes; (5) quantity of limes processed during the previous year and estimate of quantity to be processed during current year; (6) expected source of limes for processing; (7) method of transporting and unloading point; (8) Lime Administrative Committee handler certificate of registration number, if any; (9) a statement that the limes obtained for processing into products will be used for that purpose only and will not be resold or disposed of in fresh fruit channels; and (10) an agreement to submit such reports as are required by the Florida Lime Administrative Committee. Each application shall be investigated by the Florida Lime Administrative Committee. Based upon the results of such investigation and other available information, the committee shall approve or disapprove the application and notify the applicant accordingly. If the application is approved the applicant's name shall be placed upon the list of approved manufacturers of lime products.

(c) Each handler registered with the Florida Lime Administrative Committee shall render a report to the committee of the disposition of each lot of noncertified limes removed from the premises of his handling facilities during each week in which any limes are handled subject to the provisions of §§ 1001.41, 1001.52, and 1001.55, or exemptions therefrom pursuant to § 1001.56. Such report shall be on forms prescribed by the committee and shall include (1) the quantity; (2) purpose for which removed; (3) date of removal; and (4) the name of the person or firm to which the limes were delivered or consigned. Each such report shall be signed by the handler or his authorized representative, shall cover the period Sunday through Saturday, and shall be placed in the mail not later than the close of business of the Saturday ending the period covered by the report.

§ 1001.140 Report of interdistrict transfer of noncertified limes. Each handler shall render a report to the Florida Lime Administrative Committee of each lot of noncertified limes received from a district other than that in which his handling facilities are located. Such report shall be on forms prescribed by the committee and shall include: (a) The name of the handler; (b) the quantity of limes received; (c) date received; (d) name and address of the person from whom the limes were purchased; (e) the district from which the limes were transferred; and (f) the district to which the limes were transferred. Each such report shall cover the period Sunday through Saturday and shall be placed in the mail not later than the close of business of the Saturday ending the period covered by the report.

It is hereby further found that it is impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest to postpone the effective date hereof later than the date of publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that: (1) Shipments of limes are now being made and are currently subject to regulations issued pursuant to §§ 1001.51 and 1001.52 of the said marketing agreement and order; (2) limes for certain specified purposes are being handled exempt from such regulations as provided in § 1001.56; (3) the said marketing agreement and order provide for the furnishing of reports and establishment of such rules, regulations, and safeguards as may be deemed necessary to prevent limes handled under the provisions of such section from entering channels of trade for other than authorized purposes; (4) it is necessary that the rules, regulations, and safeguards herein provided be established as soon as possible to enable the Florida Lime Administrative Committee effectively to perform its duties in accordance with provisions of the said marketing agreement and order, and to prevent limes so handled from being used for other than authorized purposes; (5) producers and handlers have been notified of the proposed adoption and recommendation to the Secretary, by the Florida Administrative Committee of the said amendments to the rules and regulations; (6) notice that the Department was considering such amendments was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER and interested parties afforded opportunity to file written data, views, or arguments in connection therewith; and (7) adoption of the said amendments to the rules and regulations will not require any preparation which cannot be completed by the effective time thereof.

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission—charging a New York manufacturer of cosmetic products, with annual sales volume in excess of $30,000,000, with discriminating in price among its competing customers in violation of sections 2 (d) and 2 (e) of the Clayton Act as amended, through paying money or other things of value or furnishing such services as demonstrators and promotional facilities in varying amounts not proportionally equal by any test to some customers but not to others competing with them—and an agreement between counsel containing a consent order to cease and desist.

On this basis, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist which became, on August 17, the decision of the Commission.

The order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That Respondent Revlon, Inc., a corporation, successor to Revlon Products Corporation, a corporation, and respondent's officers, employees, agents, and representatives, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the sale or offering for sale, of cosmetics, beauty aids, and toilet preparations in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Clayton Act is amended, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. In the Matter of Clemmie L. Carmichael, Trading as Dex Pharmacal Company, and Irving Z. Harris and Pauline B. Harris, Copartners Trading as Veltex Company, United Chemical Company and T-Lax Products Company

§ 306.2 Inventory. If the person surrendering the heroin has paid tax in a class under which returns are required to be rendered and the heroin is a part of the stock for such class, an inventory of the heroin shipped shall be prepared in quadruplicate on the form used for detailed reporting of dispositions. The original inventory shall be filed with the return for such class for the month in which the disposition takes place, the duplicate copy made a part of the retained copy of the return, the triplicate copy forwarded with the heroin when shipped for disposition, and the quadruplicate forwarded to the narcotic district supervisor together with a properly executed voucher, Standard Form 1034. If the person surrendering the heroin is a registrant in a class for which returns are not required, an inventory shall be prepared in quadruplicate on Form 142, the triplicate of which shall be forwarded with the heroin when shipped, the duplicate retained on file by the registrant for a period of 2 years, and the original and quadruplicate forwarded to the narcotic district supervisor together with a properly executed voucher, Standard Form 1034.

§ 306.3 Forfeiture of heroin. All heroin heretofore lawfully possessed by any registrant and not surrendered in accordance with §§ 306.1 and 306.2, shall after the 16th day of November 1956, be seized and forfeited to the United States without compensation.

§ 306.4 Disposition of surrendered and forfeited heroin. All heroin acquired by the United States pursuant to section 1402 of title 18 of the United States Code shall be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of 4733 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

§ 306.5 Heroin for scientific research purposes. Any heroin acquired under the provisions of section 1402 of title 18 of the United States Code, shall be available, in the discretion of the Commissioner of Narcotics, for scientific research purposes in accordance with the provisions of section 4733 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

TITLE 26—INTERNAL REVENUE, 1954

Chapter I—Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury

[T. D. 6201]

PART 1—INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMGER 31, 1953

INSURANCE COMPANIES

On January 19, 1956, notice of proposed rule making regarding the regulations for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, and ending after August 16, 1954, under subchapter L of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 388). After consideration of all such relevant matter as was presented by interested persons regarding the rules proposed, the regulations as so published are hereby adopted subject to the changes set forth below. It should be observed that the regulations adopted do not include the rules contained in the notice of proposed rule making with respect to the application of sections 802 (a) and 804 since the amendments made by the Life Insurance Company Tax Act for 1955 make such rules inapplicable. Regulations under the Life Insurance Company Tax Act for 1955 will be published as a notice of proposed rule making at a subsequent date.

Section 1.801–1 (a) is revised by adding immediately before the last sentence thereof the following new sentence: "For the purpose of the preceding sentence, the term 'unearned premium' means the amount which will cover the cost of carrying the insurance risk for the period for which the premium has been paid in advance."

PAR. 8. Section 1.821–1 is revised as follows:

(A) The first sentence of paragraph (a) (1) is revised to read as follows: "For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, all mutual insurance companies, including foreign insurance companies carrying on an insurance business within the United States, not taxable under section 801 or 831 and not specifically exempt under the provisions of section 501 (c) (15), are subject to the tax imposed by section 821 on their investment income or on their gross income, whichever tax is the greater, except interinsurers and reciprocal underwriters which are taxed only on their investment income."

PAR. 9. The first sentence of § 1.822–1 (a) is revised to read as follows: "For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, the taxable income of a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 is its gross investment income, namely, the gross amount of income during the taxable year from interest, dividends, rents, and gains from sales or exchanges of capital assets, less the deductions provided in section 822 (c) for wholly tax-exempt interest, investment expenses, real estate expenses, depreciation, interest paid or accrued, capital losses to the extent provided in subchapter P (sec. 1201 and following) and the special deductions provided in part VIII of subchapter B (except section 248).

INSURANCE COMPANIES

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

§ 1.801 Statutory provisions; life insurance companies; definition of life insurance company.

SEC. 801. Definition of life insurance company. For purposes of this subtitle, the term "life insurance company" means an insurance company which is engaged in the business of issuing life insurance and annuity contracts (either separately or combined with health and accident insurance), or noncancellable contracts of health and accident insurance, if its life insurance reserves (as defined in section 803 (b)), plus unearned premiums and unpaid losses on noncancellable life, health, or accident policies not included in life insurance reserves, comprise more than 50 percent of its total reserves. For purposes of this section, the term "total reserves" means life insurance reserves, unearned premiums and unpaid losses not included in life insurance reserves, and all other insurance reserves required by law. A burial or funeral benefit insurance company engaged directly in the manufacture of funeral supplies or the performance of funeral services shall not be taxable under section 802 but shall be taxable under section 821 or section 831.

§ 1.801–1 Definitions—(a) Life Insurance company. The term "life insurance company" as used in subtitle A is defined in section 801. For the purpose of determining whether a company is a "life insurance company" within the meaning of that term as used in section 801, it must first be determined whether the company is taxable as an insurance company under the Internal Revenue Code. For the definition of an "insurance company", see paragraph (b) of this section. In determining whether an insurance company is a life insurance company, the life insurance reserves (as defined in section 803 (b)) plus any unearned premiums and unpaid losses on noncancellable life, health, or accident policies, not included in "life insurance reserves" must comprise more than 50 percent of its total reserves (as defined in section 801). An insurance company writing only noncancellable life, health, or accident policies and having no "life insurance reserves" may qualify as a life insurance company if its unearned premiums and unpaid losses on such policies comprise more than 50 percent of its total reserves. A noncancellable insurance policy means a contract which the insurance company is under an obligation to renew or continue at a specified premium and with respect to which a reserve in addition to the unearned premium must be carried to cover that obligation. For the purpose of the preceding sentence, the term "unearned premium" means the amount which will cover the cost of carrying the insurance risk for the period for which the premium has been paid in advance. A burial or funeral benefit insurance company qualifying as a life insurance company engaged directly in the manufacture of funeral supplies or the performance of funeral services will be taxable under section 821 or section 831 as an insurance company other than life.

(b) Insurance companies. (1) Insurance companies include both stock and mutual companies, as well as mutual benefit insurance companies. A voluntary unincorporated association of employees formed for the purpose of relieving sick and aged members and the dependents of deceased members is an insurance company, whether the fund for such purpose is created wholly by membership dues or partly by contributions from the employer. A corporation which merely sets aside a fund for the insurance of its employees is not required to file a separate return for such fund, but the income therefrom shall be included in the return of the corporation.

(2) Though its name, charter powers, and subjection to State insurance laws are significant in determining the business which a corporation is authorized and intends to carry on, the character of the business actually done in the taxable year determines whether it is taxable as an insurance company under the Internal Revenue Code. For example, during the year 1954 the M Corporation, incorporated under the insurance laws of the State of R, carried on the business of lending money in addition to guaranteeing the payment of principal and interest of mortgage loans. Of its total income for the year, one-third was derived from its insurance business of guaranteeing the payment of principal and interest of mortgage loans and two-thirds was derived from its noninsurance business of lending money. The M Corporation is not an insurance company for the year 1954 within the meaning of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.802 (b) Statutory provisions; life insurance companies; imposition of tax.

SEC. 802. Imposition of tax. • • •

(b) Taxable years beginning in 1954. In lieu of the tax imposed by subsection (a) there shall be imposed, for taxable years beginning in 1954, on the 1954 life insurance company taxable income (as defined in section 805) of every life insurance company a tax equal to the sum of the following:

(1) 3¾ percent of the amount thereof not in excess of $200,000, plus

(2) 6½ percent of the amount thereof in excess of $200,000.

§ 1.802 (b)–1 Tax on life insurance companies. (a) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, section 802 (b) imposes a tax on the 1954 life insurance company taxable income of all life insurance companies (including a foreign life insurance company carrying on a life insurance business within the United States if with respect to its United States business it would qualify as a life insurance company under section 801). The tax so imposed is equal to 3¾ percent of the amount of such income not in excess of $200,000, plus 6½ percent of the amount of such income in excess of $200,000. For the definition of the term "1954 life insurance company taxable income", see § 1.805–1.

(b) The taxable income of life insurance companies differs from the taxable income of other corporations. See section 803. Life insurance companies are entitled, in computing life insurance company taxable income, to the special deductions provided in part VIII of subchapter B (except section 248). The gross income, the deduction under section 803 (g) (1) for wholly tax-exempt interest, and the deduction under section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest, are decreased by the appropriate amortization of premium and increased by the appropriate accrual of discount attributable to the taxable year on bonds, notes, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness held by a life insurance company. See section 803 (i) and § 1.803–6. Such companies are not subject to the provisions of subchapter P (section 1201 and following, relating to capital gains and losses) nor to the provisions of section 171 (amortizable bond premium).

(c) All provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and of the regulations in this part not inconsistent with the specific provisions of sections 801 to 807, inclusive, are applicable to the assessment and collection of the tax imposed by section 802, and life insurance companies are subject to the same penalties as are provided in the case of returns and payment of income tax by other corporations. The return shall be on Form 1120L.

(d) Foreign life insurance companies not carrying on an insurance business within the United States are not taxable under section 802, but are taxable as other foreign corporations. See section 881.

§ 1.803 Statutory provisions; life insurance companies; other definitions and rules.

SEC. 803. Other definitions and rules—(a) Application of section; gross income—(1) Application. The definitions and rules contained in this section shall apply only in the case of life insurance companies.

(2) Gross income. The term "gross income" means the gross amount of income received or accrued during the taxable year from interest, dividends, and rents.

(b) Life insurance reserves. The term "life insurance reserves" means amounts which are computed or estimated on the basis of recognized mortality or morbidity tables and assumed rates of interest, and which are set aside to mature or liquidate, either by payment or reinsurance, future unaccrued claims arising from life insurance, annuity, and noncancellable health and accident insurance contracts (including life insurance or annuity contracts combined with noncancellable health and accident insurance) involving, at the time with respect to which the reserve is computed, life, health, or accident contingencies. Such life insurance reserves, except in the case of policies covering life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy issued on the weekly premium payment plan, continuing for life and not subject to cancellation and except as hereinafter provided in the case of assessment life insurance, must also be required by law. In the case of an assessment life insurance company or association, the term "life insurance reserves" includes sums actually deposited by such company or association with State or Territorial officers pursuant to law as guaranty or reserve funds, and any funds maintained, under the charter or articles of incorporation or association (or bylaws approved by a State insurance commissioner) of such company or association, exclusively for the payment of claims arising under certificates of membership or policies issued on the assessment plan and not subject to any other use.

(c) Adjusted reserves. The term "adjusted reserves" means life insurance reserves plus 7 percent of that portion of such reserves as are computed on a preliminary term basis.

* * * * *

(e) Reserve for deferred dividends. The term "reserve for deferred dividends" means sums held at the end of the taxable year as a reserve for dividends (other than dividends payable during the year following the taxable year) the payment of which is deferred for a period of not less than 5 years from the date of the policy contract.

(f) Interest paid. The term "interest paid" means—

(1) All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer) the interest upon which is wholly exempt from taxation under this chapter, and

(2) All amounts in the nature of interest, whether or not guaranteed, paid or accrued within the taxable year on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which do not involve, at the time of payment or accrual, life, health, or accident contingencies.

(g) Taxable income. The term "taxable income" means the gross income less the following deductions:

(1) Tax-free interest. The amount of interest received or accrued during the taxable year which under section 103 is excluded from gross income.

(2) Investment expenses. Investment expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year. If any general expenses are in part assigned to or included in the investment expenses, the total deduction under this paragraph shall not exceed one-fourth of 1 percent of the mean of the book value of the invested assets held at the beginning and end of the taxable year plus one-fourth of the amount by which taxable income (computed without any deduction for investment expenses allowed by this paragraph, for tax-free interest allowed by paragraph (1), or for partially tax-exempt interest and dividends received allowed by paragraph (5)) exceeds 3¾ percent of the book value of the mean of the invested assets held at the beginning and end of the taxable year.

(3) Real estate expenses. Taxes and other expenses paid or accrued during the taxable year exclusively on or with respect to the real estate owned by the company, not including taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed, and not including any amount paid out for new buildings, or for permanent improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property. The deduction allowed by this paragraph shall be allowed in the case of taxes imposed on a shareholder of a company on his interest as shareholder, which are paid or accrued by the company without reimbursement from the shareholder, but in such cases no deduction shall be allowed the shareholder for the amount of such taxes.

(4) Depreciation. The depreciation deduction allowed by section 167.

(5) Special deductions. The special deductions allowed by part VIII of subchapter B (except section 248).

(h) Rental value of real estate. The deduction under subsection (g) (3) and (4) on account of any real estate owned and occupied in whole or in part by a life insurance company shall be limited to an amount which bears the same ratio to such deduction (computed without regard to this subsection) as the rental value of the space not so occupied bears to the rental value of the entire property.

(i) Amortization of premium and accrual of discount. The gross income, the deduction provided in subsection (g) (1), and the deduction allowed by section 242 (relating to partially tax-exempt interest) shall each be decreased to reflect the appropriate amortization of premium and increased to reflect the appropriate accrual of discount attributable to the taxable year on bonds, notes, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness held by a life insurance company. Such amortization and accrual shall be determined—

(1) In accordance with the method regularly employed by such company, if such method is reasonable, and

(2) In all other cases, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate.

(j) Double deductions. Nothing in this part shall permit the same item to be deducted more than once.

§ 1.803–1 Life insurance reserves. (a) The term "life insurance reserves" is defined in section 803 (b). Generally, such reserves, as in the case of level premium life insurance, are held to supplement the future premium receipts when the latter, alone, are insufficient to cover the increased risk in the later years. In the case of cancellable health and accident policies and similar cancellable contracts, the unearned premiums held to cover the risk for the unexpired period covered by the premiums are not included in life insurance reserves. Unpaid loss reserves for noncancellable health and accident policies are included in life insurance reserves if they are computed or estimated on the basis of recognized mortality or morbidity tables and assumed rates of interest.

(b) In the case of an assessment life insurance company or association, life insurance reserves include sums actually deposited by such company or association with State or Territorial officers pursuant to law as guaranty or reserve funds, and any funds maintained under the charter or articles of incorporation or association of such company or association, or bylaws (approved by the State insurance commissioner) of such company or association, exclusively for the payment of claims arising under certificates of membership or policies issued upon the assessment plan and not subject to any other use.

(c) Life insurance reserves, except as otherwise provided in section 803 (b), must be required by law either by express statutory provisions or by rules and regulations of the insurance department of a State, Territory, or the District of Columbia when promulgated in the exercise of a power conferred by statute, but such requirement, without more, is not conclusive; for example, life insurance reserves do not include reserves required to be maintained to provide for the ordinary running expenses of a business which must be currently paid by every company from its income if its business is to continue, such as taxes, salaries, and unpaid brokerage; nor do they include the net value of risks reinsured in other solvent companies; liability for premiums paid in advance; liability for annual and deferred dividends declared or apportioned; liability for dividends left on deposit at interest; liability for accrued but unsettled policy claims whether known or unreported; liability for supplementary contracts not involving, at the time with respect to which the liability is computed, life, health, or accident contingencies.

(d) In any case where reserves are claimed, sufficient information must be filed with the return to enable the district director to determine the validity of the claim. Only reserves which are required by law or insurance department ruling, which are peculiar to insurance companies, and which are dependent upon interest earnings for their maintenance will, except as otherwise specifically provided in section 803 (b), be considered as life insurance reserves. A company is permitted to make use of the highest aggregate reserve required by any State or Territory or the District of Columbia in which it transacts business, but the reserve must have been actually held.

(e) In the case of life insurance companies issuing policies covering life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy issued on the weekly premium payment plan, continuing for life and not subject to cancellation, it is required that reserve funds thereon be based upon recognized mortality or morbidity tables covering disability benefits of the kind contained in policies issued by this particular class of companies but they need not be required by law.

§ 1.803–2 Adjusted reserves. For the purpose of determining "required interest" for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, certain reserves computed on a preliminary term method are to be adjusted by increasing such reserves by 7 percent. The reserves to be thus adjusted are reserves computed on preliminary term methods, such as the Illinois Standard, or the Select and Ultimate methods. Only reserves on policies in the modification period are to be so adjusted. Where reserves under a preliminary term method are the same as on the level premium method, and in the case of reserves for extended or paid-up insurance, no adjustment is to be made. The reserves as thus adjusted, and the rate of interest on which they are computed, should be reported in Schedule A, Form 1120L.

§ 1.803–3 Interest paid or accrued. Interest paid or accrued is one of the elements to be used in computing the amount of "required interest" for purposes of determining the reserve interest credit provided in section 805. See § 1.805–1. Interest paid or accrued consists of (a) interest paid or accrued on indebtedness (except indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry tax-exempt securities as set forth in section 803 (f) (1)) and (b) amounts in the nature of interest paid or accrued on certain contracts, as provided in section 803 (f) (2). Interest on indebtedness includes interest on dividends held on deposit and surrendered during the taxable year but does not include interest paid or accrued on deferred dividends. Life insurance reserves as defined in § 1.803–1 are not indebtedness. Dividends left with the company to accumulate at interest are a debt and not a reserve liability. Amounts in the nature of interest include so-called excess-interest dividends as well as guaranteed interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on insurance or annuity contracts (or contracts arising out of insurance or annuity contracts) which, at the time of payment, do not involve life, health, or accident contingencies. It is immaterial whether the optional mode of settlement specified in the insurance or annuity contract arises from an option exercised by the insured during his or her lifetime or from an option exercised by a beneficiary after the policy has matured, frequently referred to as a supplementary contract not involving life contingencies; for example, a contract to pay the insurance benefit in 10 annual installments. No distinction is made based on the person choosing the method of payment, and the full amount of the interest paid or accrued and not merely the guaranteed interest is considered as interest paid or accrued.

§ 1.803–4 Taxable income and deductions—(a) In general. The taxable income of a life insurance company is its gross amount of income received or accrued during the taxable year from interest, dividends, and rents, less the deductions provided in section 803 (g) for wholly tax-exempt interest, investment expenses, real estate expenses, depreciation, and the special deductions provided in part VIII of subchapter B (except section 248). In addition to the limitations on deductions relating to real estate owned and occupied by a life insurance company provided in section 803 (h), the limitations on the adjustment for amortization of premium and accrual of discount provided in section 803 (i), and the limitation on the deduction for investment expenses where general expenses are allocated to investment income provided in section 803 (g) (2), life insurance companies are subject to the limitations on deductions relating to wholly tax-exempt income provided in section 265. Life insurance companies are not entitled to the net operating loss deduction provided in section 172.

(b) Wholly tax-exempt interest. Interest which in the case of other taxpayers is excluded from gross income by section 103 but included in the gross income of a life insurance company by section 803 (a) (2) is allowed as a deduction from gross income by section 803 (g) (1).

(c) Investment expenses. (1) As used in the Internal Revenue Code, the term "general expenses" means any expense paid or incurred for the benefit of more than one department of the company rather than for the benefit of a particular department thereof. Any assignment of such expense to the investment department of the company for which a deduction is claimed under section 803 (g) (2) subjects the entire deduction for investment expenses to the limitation provided in that section. The accounting procedure employed is not conclusive as to whether any assignment has in fact been made. Investment expenses do not include Federal income and excess profits taxes.

(2) If no general expenses are assigned to or included in investment expenses the deduction may consist of investment expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in which case an itemized schedule of such expenses must be appended to the return.

(3) Invested assets for the purpose of section 803 (g) (2) and this section are those which are owned and used, and to the extent used, for the purpose of producing the income specified in section 803 (a) (2). They do not include real estate owned and occupied, and to the extent owned and occupied, by the company. If general expenses are assigned to or included in investment expenses, the maximum allowance will not be granted unless it is shown to the satisfaction of the district director that such allowance is justified by a reasonable assignment of actual expenses.

(d) Taxes and expenses with respect to real estate. The deduction for taxes and expenses under section 803 (g) (3) includes taxes and expenses paid or accrued during the taxable year exclusively upon or with respect to real estate owned by the company and any sum representing taxes imposed upon a shareholder of the company upon his interest as shareholder which is paid or accrued by the company without reimbursement from the shareholder. No deduction shall be allowed, however, for taxes, expenses, and depreciation upon or with respect to any real estate owned by the company except to the extent used for the purpose of producing investment income. See paragraph (c) of this section. As to real estate owned and occupied by the company, see § 1.803–5.

(e) Depreciation. The deduction allowed for depreciation is, except as provided in section 803 (h), identical with that allowed other corporations by section 167. The amount allowed by section 167 in the case of life insurance companies is limited to depreciation sustained on the property used, and to the extent used, for the purpose of producing the income specified in section 803 (a) (2).

§ 1.803–5 Real estate owned and occupied. The amount allowable as a deduction for taxes, expenses, and depreciation upon or with respect to any real estate owned and occupied in whole or in part by a life insurance company is limited to an amount which bears the same ratio to such deduction (computed without regard to this limitation) as the rental value of the space not so occupied bears to the rental value of the entire property. For example, if the rental value of the space not occupied by the company is equal to one-half of the rental value of the entire property, the deduction for taxes, expenses, and depreciation is one-half of the taxes, expenses, and depreciation on account of the entire property. Where a deduction is claimed as provided in this section, the parts of the property occupied and the parts not occupied by the company, together with the respective rental values thereof, must be shown in a statement accompanying the return.

§ 1.803–6 Amortization of premium and accrual of discount. (a) Section 803 (i) provides for certain adjustments on account of amortization of premium and accrual of discount on bonds, notes, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness held by a life insurance company. Such adjustments are limited to the amount of appropriate amortization or accrual attributable to the taxable year with respect to such securities which are not in default as to principal or interest and which are amply secured. The question of ample security will be resolved according to the rules laid down from time to time by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. The adjustment for amortization of premium decreases, and for accrual of discount increases, (1) the gross income, (2) the deduction for wholly tax-exempt interest, and (3) the deduction for partially tax-exempt interest.

(b) The premium for any such security is the excess of its acquisition value over its maturity value and the discount is the excess of its maturity value over its acquisition value. The acquisition value of any such security is its cost (including buying commissions or brokerage but excluding any amounts paid for accrued interest) if purchased for cash, or if not purchased for cash, then its fair market value. The maturity value of any such security is the amount payable thereunder either at the maturity date or an earlier call date. The earlier call date of any such security may be the earliest call date specified therein as a day certain, the earliest interest payment date if it is callable or payable at such date, the earliest date at which it is callable at par, or such other call or payment date, prior to maturity, specified in the security as may be selected by the life insurance company. A life insurance company which adjusts amortization of premium or accrual of discount with reference to a particular call or payment date must make the adjustments with reference to the value on such date and may not, after selecting such date, use a different call or payment date, or value, in the calculation of such amortization or discount with respect to such security unless the security was not in fact called or paid on such selected date.

(c) The adjustments for amortization of premium and accrual of discount will be determined—

(1) According to the method regularly employed by the company, if such method is reasonable, or

(2) According to the method prescribed by this section.

A method of amortization of premium or accrual of discount will be deemed "regularly employed" by a life insurance company if the method was consistently followed in prior taxable years, or if, in the case of a company which has never before made such adjustments, the company initiates in the first taxable year for which the adjustments are made a reasonable method of amortization of premium or accrual of discount and consistently follows such method thereafter. Ordinarily, a company regularly employs a method in accordance with the statute of some State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, in which it operates.

(d) The method of amortization and accrual prescribed by this section is as follows:

(1) The premium (or discount) shall be determined in accordance with this section; and

(2) The appropriate amortization of premium (or accrual of discount) attributable to the taxable year shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the premium (or discount) as the number of months in the taxable year during which the security was owned by the life insurance company bears to the number of months between the date of acquisition of the security and its maturity or earlier call date, determined in accordance with this section. For the purpose of this section, a fractional part of a month shall be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it shall be considered as a month.

SEC. 805. 1954 life insurance company taxable income—(a) Definition. For purposes of section 802 (b), the term "1954 life insurance company taxable income" means the taxable income (as defined in section 803 (g)), plus 8 times the amount of the adjustment for certain reserves provided in section 806, and minus the reserve interest credit, if any, provided in subsection (b) of this section.

(b) Reserve interest credit. For purposes of subsection (a), the reserve interest credit shall be an amount determined as follows:

(1) Divide the amount of the adjusted taxable income (as defined in subsection (c)) by the amount of the required interest (as defined in subsection (d)).

(2) If the quotient obtained in paragraph (1) is 1.05 or more, the reserve interest credit shall be zero.

(3) If the quotient obtained in paragraph (1) is 1.00 or less, the reserve interest credit shall be an amount equal to 50 percent of the taxable income.

(4) If the quotient obtained in paragraph (1) is more than 1.00 but less than 1.05, the reserve interest credit shall be the amount obtained by multiplying the taxable income by 10 times the difference between the figures 1.05 and such quotient.

(c) Adjusted taxable income. For purposes of subsection (b) (1), the term "adjusted taxable income" means the taxable income (computed without the deductions provided in section 803 (g) (1) or (5)) minus 50 percent of the amount of the adjustment for certain reserves provided in section 806.

(d) Required interest. For purposes of subsection (b) (1), the term "required interest" means the total of—

(1) The sum of the amounts obtained by multiplying—

(A) Each rate of interest assumed in computing the taxpayer's life insurance reserves by

(B) The means of the amounts of the taxpayer's adjusted reserves computed at that rate at the beginning and end of the taxable year,

(2) 2 percent of the reserve for deferred dividends, and

(3) Interest paid.

§ 1.805–1 Tax on life insurance companies in the case of a taxable year beginning in 1954. (a) Section 802 (b) imposes a tax on the "1954 life insurance company taxable income" of all life insurance companies for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954. See § 1.802 (b)–1 (a).

(b) For purposes of section 802 (b), the term "1954 life insurance company taxable income" means the taxable income (consisting of income computed as provided in § 1.803–4) for the taxable year beginning in 1954 plus eight times the amount of the adjustment for certain reserves computed as provided in section 806 (sec § 1.806–1), and minus the reserve interest credit, if any, provided in section 805 (b) (see § 1.805–2).

§ 1.805–2 Reserve interest credit. (a) In computing 1954 life insurance company taxable income, a reserve interest credit is allowed where the "adjusted taxable income" of the company is less than 105 percent of its required interest. For the purpose of computing the reserve interest credit, the term "adjusted taxable income" means the taxable income of the company computed without the deductions provided in section 803 (g) (1) or (5), less 50 percent of the adjustment for certain reserves on contracts other than life insurance or annuity contracts provided in section 806.

(b) The required interest for which a credit may be allowed consists of the total of—

(1) The sum of amounts obtained by multiplying each rate of interest assumed in computing life insurance reserves (see section 803 (b) and § 1.803–1) by the means of the amounts of the adjusted reserves, as defined in section 803 (c), computed at that rate at the beginning and the end of the taxable year;

(2) Two percent of the reserve for deferred dividends; and

(3) Interest paid or accrued.

(c) To determine the amount of the reserve interest credit, it is necessary to divide the amount of the adjusted taxable income by the amount of the required interest. If the adjusted taxable income is 100 percent or less of the required interest, the reserve interest credit is an amount equal to 50 percent of the life insurance company taxable income. If the adjusted taxable income is 105 percent or more of the required interest, the reserve interest credit is zero. If the adjusted taxable income is more than 100 percent and less than 105 percent of the required interest, the reserve interest credit is computed by multiplying the life insurance company taxable income by ten times the difference between 105 percent and the percentage established. Thus, if the adjusted taxable income of a life insurance company for the calendar year 1954 is $103,000 and the required interest for such year is $100,000, the adjusted taxable income is 103 percent of the required interest and the reserve interest, accordingly, is the life insurance company taxable income multiplied by 20 percent (10 times 2 percent, the difference between 105 percent and 103 percent).

(d) In determining the percentage of the adjusted taxable income to required interest for purposes of determining the reserve interest credit, the figures shall be computed to at least the nearest one-tenth of a percentage point.

§ 1.806 Statutory provisions; life insurance companies; adjustment for certain reserves.

SEC. 806. Adjustment for certain reserves. In the case of a life insurance company writing contracts other than life insurance or annuity contracts (either separately or combined with noncancellable health and accident insurance), the term "adjustment for certain reserves" means an amount equal to 3¼ percent of the unearned premiums and unpaid losses on such other contracts which are not included in life insurance reserves (as defined in section 803 (b). For purposes of this section, such unearned premiums shall not be considered to be less than 25 percent of the net premiums written during the taxable year on such other contracts.

§ 1.806–1 Adjustment for certain reserves. (a) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, a life insurance company writing contracts other than life insurance or annuity contracts (either separately or combined with noncancellable health and accident insurance contracts) must add to its life insurance company taxable income (as a factor in determining 1954 adjusted taxable income) an amount equal to eight times the amount of the adjustment for certain reserves provided in paragraph (b) of this section.

(b) The adjustment for certain reserves referred to in paragraph (a) of this section shall be an amount equal to 3¼ percent of the mean of the unearned premiums and unpaid losses at the beginning and end of the taxable year on such other contracts as are not included in life insurance reserves. If such unearned premiums, however, are less than 25 percent of the net premiums written during the taxable year on such other contracts, then the adjustment shall be 3¼ percent of 25 percent of the net premiums written during the taxable year on such other contracts plus 3¼ percent of the mean of the unpaid losses at the beginning and end of the taxable year on such other contracts. As used in this section, the term "unearned premiums" has the same meaning as in section 832 (b) (4) and § 1.832–1.

§ 1.807 Statutory provisions; life insurance companies; foreign life insurance companies.

SEC. 807. Foreign life insurance companies (a) Carrying on United States insurance business. A foreign life insurance company carrying on a life insurance business within the United States, if with respect to its United States business it would qualify as a life insurance company under section 801, shall be taxable in the same manner as a domestic life insurance company; except that the determinations necessary for purposes of this subtitle shall be made on the basis of the income, disbursements, assets, and liabilities reported in the annual statement for the taxable year of the United States busfness of such company on the form approved for life insurance companies by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

(b) No United States insurance business. Foreign life insurance companies not carrying on an insurance business within the United States shall not be taxable under this section but shall be taxable as other foreign corporations.

§ 1.807–1 Foreign life insurance companies. A foreign life insurance company carrying on a life insurance business within the United States, if with respect to its United States business it would qualify as a life insurance company under section 801, is taxable on its income received during the taxable year from interest, dividends, and rents, from sources within and without the United States, pertaining to its United States business. Such a company is taxable in the same manner as a domestic life insurance company except that the determinations necessary for the purposes of subtitle A, such as gross income, the adjustment for certain reserves, deductions and limitations on deductions, amortization of premiums and accrual of discount, and the deductions allowed the company in part VIII of subchapter B, shall be made on the basis of the income, disbursements, assets, and liabilities reported in the annual statement for the taxable year of the United States business of such company on the form approved for life insurance companies by the National Association of Life Insurance Commissioners. This statement is presumed to reflect the income, disbursements, assets, and liabilities of the United States business of the company and insofar as it is not inconsistent with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code will be recognized and used as a basis for that purpose.

MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANIES (OTHER THAN LIFE OR MARINE OR FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES ISSUING PERPETUAL POLICIES)

§ 1.821 Statutory provisions; tax on mutual insurance companies (other than life or marine or fire insurance companies issuing perpetual policies).

SEC. 821. Tax on mutual insurance companies (other than life or marine or fire insurance companies issuing perpetual policies)—(a) Imposition of tax on mutual companies other than interinsurers. There shall be imposed for each taxable year on the income of every mutual insurance company (other than a life or a marine insurance company or a fire insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831 and other than an interinsurer or reciprocal underwriter) a tax computed under paragraph (1) or paragraph (2), whichever is the greater:

(1) If the mutual insurance company taxable income (computed without regard to the deduction provided in section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest) is over $3,000, a tax computed as follows:

(A) Normal tax—(1) Taxable years beginning before April 1, 1955. In the case of taxable years beginning before April 1, 1955, a normal tax of 30 percent of the mutual insurance company taxable income, or 60 percent of the amount by which such taxable income exceeds $3,000, whichever is the lesser;

(B) Surtax. A surtax of 22 percent of the mutual insurance company taxable income (computed without regard to the deduction provided in section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest) in excess of $25,000.

(2) If for the taxable year the gross amount of income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders, minus the interest which under section 103 is excluded from gross income, exceeds $75,000, a tax equal to 1 percent of the amount so computed, or 2 percent of the excess of the amount so computed over $75,000, whichever is the lesser.

(b) Imposition of tax on interinsurers. In the case of every mutual insurance company which is an interinsurer or reciprocal underwriter (other than a life or a marine insurance company or a fire insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831), if the mutual insurance company taxable income (computed as provided in subsection (a) (1)) is over $50,000, there shall be imposed for each taxable year on the mutual insurance company taxable income a tax computed as follows:

(1) Normal tax—(A) Taxable years beginning before April 1, 1955. In the case of taxable years beginning before April 1, 1955, a normal tax of 30 percent of the mutual insurance company taxable income, or 60 percent of the amount by which such taxable income exceeds $50,000, whichever is the lesser;

(2) Surtax. A surtax of 22 percent of the mutual insurance company taxable income (computed as provided in subsection (a) (1)) in excess of $25,000, or 33 percent of the amount by which such taxable income exceeds $50,000, whichever is the lesser.

(c) Gross amount received, over $75,000 but less than $125,000. If the gross amount received during the taxable year from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums (including deposits and assessments) is over $75,000 but less than $125,000, the tax imposed by subsection (a) or subsection (b), whichever applies, shall be reduced to an amount which bears the same proportion to the amount of the tax determined under such subsection as the excess over $75,000 of such gross amount received bears to $50,000.

(d) No United States insurance business. Foreign mutual insurance companies (other than a life or marine insurance company or a fire insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831) not carrying on an insurance business within the United States shall not be subject to this part but shall be taxable as other foreign corporations.

(e) Alternative tax on capital gains. For alternative tax in case of capital gains, see section 1201 (a).

§ 1.821–1 Tax on mutual insurance companies other than life or marine or fire insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by section 831—(a) In general. (1) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, all mutual insurance companies, including foreign insurance companies carrying on an insurance business within the United States, not taxable under section 801 or 831 and not specifically exempt under the provisions of section 501 (c) (15), are subject to the tax imposed by section 821 on their investment income or on their gross income, whichever tax is the greater, except interinsurers and reciprocal underwriters which are taxed only on their investment income. For the alternative tax, in lieu of the tax imposed by section 821 (a) or (b), where the net long-term capital gain for any taxable year exceeds the net short-term capital loss, see section 1201 (a) and the regulations thereunder.

(2) The taxable income of mutual insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by section 821 differs from the taxable income of other corporations. See section 821 (a) (2) and section 822. Such companies are entitled, in computing mutual insurance company taxable income, to the deductions provided in part VIII of subchapter B (except section 248). The gross amount of income during the taxable year from interest, the deduction under section 822 (c) (1) for wholly tax-exempt interest, and the deduction under section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest, are decreased by the appropriate amortization of premium and increased by the appropriate accrual of discount attributable to the taxable year on bonds, notes, debentures or other evidences of indebtedness held by a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821. See section 822 (d) (2) and § 1.822–3.

(3) All provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and of the regulations in this part not inconsistent with the specific provisions of section 821 are applicable to the assessment and collection of the tax imposed by section 821 (a) or (b) and mutual insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by section 821 are subject to the same penalties as are provided in the case of returns and payment of income tax by other corporations. The return shall be on Form 1120M.

(4) Foreign mutual insurance companies not carrying on an insurance business within the United States are not taxable under section 821 (a) or (b), but are taxable as other foreign corporations. See section 881.

(5) Mutual insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by section 821, except interinsurers or reciprocal underwriters, with mutual insurance company taxable income (computed without regard to the deduction provided in section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest) of over $3,000 or with gross amounts of income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums (minus dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest) in excess of $75,000, are subject to a tax computed under section 821 (a) (1) or section 821 (a) (2) whichever is the greater. Interinsurers and reciprocal underwriters with mutual insurance company taxable income (computed without regard to the deduction provided in section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest) of over $50,000 are subject to a tax computed under section 821 (b).

(b) Rates of tax. (1) The normal tax under section 821 (a) (1) (A) and 821 (b) (1), except as hereinafter indicated, is computed upon mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the normal tax at the rate of 30 percent.

(2) The surtax under section 821 (a) (1) (B) and 821 (b) (2), except as hereinafter indicated, is computed on that portion of the mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax in excess of $25,000 at the rate of 22 percent. The tax under section 821 (a) (2), except as hereinafter indicated, is 1 percent of the gross amount of income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders and minus wholly tax-exempt interest.

(3) Under section 821 (a) (1) (A) companies with mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the normal tax of over $3,000 and not over $6,000 pay a normal tax, at a specified rate, on that portion of such income in excess of $3,000. The rate applicable in computing the normal tax of such companies is 60 percent.

Under section 821 (a) (2) companies with gross amounts of income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders and minus wholly tax-exempt interest, of over $75,000 and not over $150,000 pay a tax equal to 2 percent of that portion in excess of $75,000.

(4) Under section 821 (b) (1), interinsurers and reciprocal underwriters with mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the normal tax of over $50,000 and not over $100,000 pay a normal tax computed on that portion of such income in excess of $50,000 at the rate of 60 percent.

Under section 821 (b) (2) interinsurers and reciprocal underwriters with mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax of over $50,000 and not over $100,000 pay a surtax, at the rate of 33 percent, on that portion of such income in excess of $50,000.

(5) Section 821 (c) provides for an adjustment of the amount computed under section 821 (a) (1), section 821 (a) (2), and section 821 (b) where the gross amount received during the taxable year from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums (including deposits and assessments) is over $75,000 and less than $125,000. The adjustment reduces the tax otherwise computed under those sections to an amount which bears the same proportion to such tax as the excess over $75,000 bears to $50,000.

(c) Application. The application of sections 821 (a) to (c) inclusive, may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The W Company, a mutual casualty insurance company, for the calendar year 1954, has mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax of $5,500 and, due to partially tax-exempt interest of $800, has income for purposes of the normal tax of $4,700. The gross amount of income of the W Company from interest, dividends, rents and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest, is $150,000. Its normal tax under section 821 (a) (1) for the calendar year 1954 is 60 percent of $1,700 ($4,700 minus $3,000) or $1,020, since its income subject to normal tax is not over $6,000. It is not liable for surtax for the calendar year 1954 as its mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax does not exceed $25,000. It has no surtax and, therefore, its total tax under section 821 (a) (1) (A) is the normal tax of $1,020. The tax under section 821 (a) (2) is 2 percent of $75,000 ($150,000—$75,000), or $1,500. Since the tax under section 821 (a) (2) exceeds the tax under section 821 (a) (1), the tax under section 821 is $1,500, namely, that imposed by section 821 (a) (2).

Example (2). If in the above example the income for purposes of the normal tax were not over $3,000, the income for purposes of the surtax were not over $25,000, the gross amount received from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums (including deposits and assessments) were $90,000, and the gross amount of income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest, were $70,000, the W Company would be required to file an income tax return but due to section 821 (a) no income tax would be imposed.

Example (3). The X Company, a mutual casualty insurance company, for the calendar year 1954 has mutual insurance company taxable income for surtax purposes of $28,000 and, due to partially tax-exempt interest of $5,000, has income for normal tax purposes of $23,000. The gross amount of income of the X Company from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest, is $1,200,000. Under section 821 (a) (1) its normal tax for the calendar year 1954 is 30 percent of $23,000, or $6,900, and the surtax is 22 percent of $3,000 ($28,000—$25,000), or $660. The combined tax under section 821 (a) (1) is $7,560 ($6,900 plus $660). The tax under section 821 (a) (2) is 1 percent of $1,200,000, or $12,000. Since the tax under section 821 (a) (2) exceeds the tax under section 821 (a) (1), the tax under section 821 (a) is $12,000, namely, that imposed by section 821 (a) (2).

Example (4). The Y Company, a mutual fire insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 for the calendar year 1954, has mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax of $35,000 and, due to partially tax-exempt interest of $5,000, has income for purposes of the normal tax of $30,000. The gross amount received from interest, dividends, rents and premiums (including deposits and assessments) is $120,000, and the gross amount of income from interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums, minus dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest, is $100,000. Under section 821 (a) (1), without application of section 821 (c), the normal tax would be 30 percent of $30,000, or $9,000, since this is less than $16,200, 60 percent of $27,000 (excess of $30,000 over $3,000); and the surtax would be 22 percent of $10,000 (excess of $35,000 over $25,000), or $2,200. The combined tax of $11,200 ($9,000 plus $2,200) would then be reduced by applying section 821 (c), since the gross receipts are between $75,000 and $125,000. The tax under section 821 (a) (1), as thus adjusted, would be 90 percent of $11,200, or $10,080, since $45,000 (excess of $120,000 over $75,000) is 90 percent of $50,000. Under section 821 (a) (2), without reference to section 821 (c), the tax is 2 percent of $25,000 (excess of $100,000 over $75,000), or $500, since this is less than $1,000, 1 percent of $100,000. Applying section 821 (c) reduces this to $450, or 90 percent of $500. Since $10,080, the tax under section 821 (a) (1), as adjusted, exceeds $450, the tax under section 821 (a) (2), as adjusted, the tax under section 821 (a) (1), as adjusted, is applicable. The Y Company would accordingly pay a combined normal tax and surtax of $10,080.

Example (5). The Z Exchange, an interinsurer, for the calendar year 1954 has mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax of $60,000 and, due to partially tax-exempt interest of $12,000, has income for purposes of the normal tax of $48,000. The gross amount received from interest, dividends, rents, and premiums (including deposits and assessments) is $2,700,000. The Z Exchange is not liable for normal tax under section 821 (b) (1) for the calendar year 1954 as its mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the normal tax does not exceed $50,000. Its surtax is 33 percent of $10,000 ($60,000 minus $50,000), or $3,300, since that amount is less than $7,700, 22 percent of $35,000 (excess of $60,000 over $25,000). Since the Z Exchange has no normal tax, is not subject to the tax imposed by section 821 (a) (2), and is not entitled to the adjustment provided in section 821 (c), its total tax under section 821 (a) is $3,300.

SEC. 822. Determination of mutual insurance company taxable income—(a) Definition. For purposes of section 821, the term "mutual insurance company taxable income" means the gross investment income minus the deductions provided in subsection (c).

(b) Gross investment income. For purposes of subsection (a), the term "gross investment income" means the gross amount of income during the taxable year from interest, dividends, rents, and gains from sales or exchanges of capital assets to the extent provided in subchapter P (sec. 1201 and following, relating to capital gains and losses).

(c) Deductions. In computing mutual insurance company taxable income, the following deductions shall be allowed:

(1) Tax-free interest. The amount of interest which under section 103 is excluded for the taxable year from gross income.

(2) Investment expenses. Investment expenses paid or accrued during the taxable year. If any general expenses are in part assigned to or included in the investment expenses, the total deduction under this paragraph shall not exceed one-fourth of 1 percent of the mean of the book value of the invested assets held at the beginning and end of the taxable year plus one-fourth of the amount by which mutual insurance company taxable income (computed without any deduction for investment expenses allowed by this paragraph, for tax-free interest allowed by paragraph (1), or for partially tax-exempt interest and dividends received allowed by paragraph (7)), exceeds 3¾ percent of the book value of the mean of the invested assets held at the beginning and end of the taxable year.

(3) Real estate expenses. Taxes and other expenses paid or accrued during the taxable year exclusively on or with respect to the real estate owned by the company, not including taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed, and not including any amount paid out for new buildings, or for permanent improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property. The deduction allowed by this paragraph shall be allowed in the case of taxes imposed on a shareholder of a company on his interest as shareholder, which are paid or accrued by the company without reimbursement from the shareholder, but in such cases no deduction shall be allowed the shareholder for the amount of such taxes.

(4) Depreciation. The depreciation deduction allowed by section 167.

(5) Interest paid or accrued. All interest paid or accrued within the taxable year on indebtedness, except on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase or carry obligations (other than obligations of the United States issued after September 24, 1917, and originally subscribed for by the taxpayer) the interest on which is wholly exempt from taxation under this subtitle.

(6) Capital losses. Capital losses to the extent provided in subchapter P (sec. 1201 and following) plus losses from capital assets sold or exchanged in order to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders. Capital assets shall be considered as sold or exchanged in order to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders to the extent that the gross receipts from their sale or exchange are not greater than the excess, if any, for the taxable year of the sum of dividends and similar distributions paid to policyholders, losses paid, and expenses paid over the sum of interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums received. In the application of section 1211 for purposes of this section, the net capital loss for the taxable year shall be the amount by which losses for such year from sales or exchanges of capital assets exceeds the sum of the gains from such sales or exchanges and whichever of the following amounts is the lesser;

(A) The mutual insurance company taxable income (computed without regard to gains or losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets or to the deduction provided in section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest); or

(B) Losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets sold or exchanged to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders.

(7) Special deductions. The special deductions allowed by part VIII (except section 248) of subchapter B (sec. 241 and following, relating to partially tax-exempt interest and to dividends received).

(d) Other applicable rules—(1) Rental value of real estate. The deduction under subsection (c) (3) or (4) on account of any real estate owned and occupied in whole or in part by a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 shall be limited to an amount which bears the same ratio to such deductions (computed without regard to this paragraph) as the rental value of the space not so occupied bears to the rental value of the entire property.

(2) Amortization of premium and accrual of discount. The gross amount of income during the taxable year from interest, the deduction provided in subsection (c) (1), and the deduction allowed by section 242 (relating to partially tax-exempt interest) shall each be decreased to reflect the appropriate amortization of premium and increased to reflect the appropriate accrual of discount attributable to the taxable year on bonds, notes, debentures, or other evidences of indebtedness held by a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821. Such amortization and accrual shall be determined—

(A) In accordance with the method regularly employed by such company, if such method is reasonable, and

(B) In all other cases, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate.

(3) Double deductions. Nothing in this part shall permit the same item to be deducted more than once.

(e) Foreign mutual insurance companies other than life or marine. In the case of a foreign mutual insurance company (other than a life or marine insurance company or a fire insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831), the mutual insurance company taxable income shall be the taxable income from sources within the United States (computed without regard to the deductions allowed by subsection (c) (7)), and the gross amount of income from the interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums shall be the amount of such income from sources within the United States. In the case of a company to which the preceding sentence applies, the deductions allowed in this section shall be allowed to the extent provided in subpart B of part II of subchapter N (sec. 881 and following) in the case of a foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States.

§ 1.822–1 Taxable income and deductions—(a) In general. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, but before January 1, 1955, and ending after August 16, 1954, the taxable income of a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 is its gross investment income, namely, the gross amount of income during the taxable year from interest, dividends, rents, and gains from sales or exchanges of capital assets, less the deductions provided in section 822 (c) for wholly tax-exempt interest, investment expenses, real estate expenses, depreciation, interest paid or accrued, capital losses to the extent provided in subchapter P (sec. 1201 and following), and the special deductions provided in part VIII of subchapter B (except section 248). In addition to the limitations on deductions relating to real estate owned and occupied by a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 provided in section 822 (d) (1), the adjustment for amortization of premium and accrual of discount provided in section 822 (d) (2), and the limitation on the deduction for investment expenses where general expenses are allocated to investment income provided in section 822 (c) (2), mutual insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by section 821 are subject to the limitation on deductions relating to wholly tax-exempt income provided in section 265. Such companies are not entitled to the net operating loss deduction provided in section 172.

(b) Wholly tax-exempt interest. Interest which in the case of other taxpayers is excluded from gross income by section 103 but included in the gross investment income by section 822 (b) is allowed as a deduction from gross investment income by section 822 (c) (1).

(c) Investment expenses. The deduction allowed by section 822 (c) (2) for investment expenses is the same as that allowed life insurance companies by section 803 (g) (2). See § 1.803–4 (c).

(d) Taxes and expenses with respect to real estate. The deduction allowed by section 822 (c) (3) for taxes and expenses with respect to real estate owned by the company is the same as that allowed life insurance companies by section 803 (g) (3). See § 1.803–4 (d).

(e) Depreciation. The deduction allowed by section 822 (c) (4) for depreciation is the same as that allowed life insurance companies by section 803 (g) (4). See § 1.803–4 (e).

(f) Interest paid or accrued. The deduction allowed by section 822 (c) (5) for interest on indebtedness is the same as that allowed other corporations by section 163. See § 1.163–1.

(g) Capital losses. (1) The deduction for capital losses under section 822 (c) (6) includes not only capital losses to the extent provided in subchapter P but in addition thereto losses from capital assets sold or exchanged to provide funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders. Losses in the latter case may be deducted from ordinary income while the deduction for losses under subchapter P is limited to the gains. See section 1211.

(2) Capital assets are considered as sold or exchanged to provide for the funds or payments specified in section 822 (c) (6), to the extent that the gross receipts from the sale or exchange of such assets are not greater than the excess, if any, for the taxable year of the sum of dividends and similar distributions paid to policyholders, and losses and expense paid over the sum of interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums received. If, by reason of a particular sale or exchange of a capital asset, gross receipts are greater than such excess, the gross receipts and the resulting loss should be apportioned and the excess included in capital losses subject to the provisions of subchapter P. Capital losses actually used to reduce net income in any taxable year may not again be used in a succeeding taxable year as an offset against capital gains in that year and for that purpose a special rule is set forth for the application of section 1212.

(3) The application of section 822 (c) (6) may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The X Company, a mutual fire insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821, in the taxable year 1954 sells capital assets in order to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders. The gross receipts from the sale are $60,000, resulting in losses of $20,000. It pays dividends to policyholders of $150,000. It sustains losses of $25,000, and pays expenses of $25,000. It receives interest of $50,000, dividends of $5,000, rents of $4,000, and net premiums of $66,000. The excess of the sum of dividends, losses, and expenses paid ($200,000) over the sum of interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums received ($125,000) is $75,000. As the gross receipts from the sale of capital assets ($60,000) do not exceed such excess ($75,000), the losses of $20,000 are allowable as a deduction from gross investment income.

Example (2). If in the above example the gross receipts were $76,000 and the last capital asset sold, for the purpose therein specified, resulted in gross receipts of $2,000 and a loss of $500, the losses allowable as a deduction from gross investment income would be $19,750. The last sale made the gross receipts of $76,000 exceed by $1,000 the excess ($75,000) of the sum of dividends, losses, and expenses paid ($200,000) over the sum of interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums received ($125,000). The gross receipts and the resulting loss from the last sale are apportioned on the basis of the ratio of the excess of $1,000 to the gross receipts of $2,000, or 50 percent. Fifty percent of the loss of $500 is deducted from the total loss of $20,000. The remaining gross receipts of $1,000 and the proportionate loss of $250 should be reported as capital losses under subchapter P.

Example (3). If in example (1), the X Company had mutual insurance company taxable income for purposes of the surtax of $9,750 and, under the provisions of subchapter P, had capital losses of $18,000 and capital gains of $10,000, the net capital loss for the taxable year 1954, in applying section 1212 for the purposes of section 822 (c) (6), would be $8,000. This is determined by subtracting from total losses of $38,000 ($18,000 capital losses under subchapter P plus $20,000 other capital losses under section 822 (c) (6)) the sum of capital gains of $10,000 and losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets sold or exchanged to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders of $20,000. Such losses of $20,000 are added to capital gains of $10,000, since they are less than taxable income for purposes of the surtax, computed without regard to gains or losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets, of $29,750 ($9,750 taxable income for purposes of the surtax plus $20,000 other capital losses under section 822 (c) (6) plus the portion of capital losses allowable under subchapter P of $10,000 minus capital gains under subchapter P of $10,000).

(h) Special deductions. Section 822 (c) (7) allows a mutual insurance company the special deductions provided by part VIII (except section 248) of subchapter B (sec. 241 and following, relating to partially tax-exempt interest and to dividends received).

§ 1.822–2 Real estate owned and occupied. The limitation in section 822 (d) (1) on the amount allowable as a deduction for taxes, expenses, and depreciation upon or with respect to any real estate owned and occupied in whole or in part by a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 is the same as that provided in the case of life insurance companies by section 803 (h). See § 1.803–5.

§ 1.822–3 Amortization of premium and accrual of discount. Section 822 (d) (2) makes provision for the appropriate amortization of premium and the appropriate accrual of discount, attributable to the taxable year, on bonds, notes, debentures or other evidences of indebtedness held by a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821. Such amortization and accrual is the same as that provided for life insurance companies by section 803 (i) and shall be determined in accordance with § 1.803–6, except that in determining the premium and discount of a mutual insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 821 the basis provided in section 1012 shall be used in lieu of the acquisition value.

§ 1.823 Statutory provisions; other definitions.

SEC. 823. Other definitions. For purposes of this part—

(1) Net premiums. The term "net premiums" means gross premiums (including deposits and assessments) written or received on insurance contracts during the taxable year less return premiums and premiums paid or incurred for reinsurance. Amounts returned where the amount is not fixed in the insurance contract but depends on the experience of the company or the discretion of the management shall not be included in return premiums but shall be treated as dividends to policyholders under paragraph (2).

(2) Dividends to policyholders. The term "dividends to policyholders" means dividends and similar distributions paid or declared to policyholders. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term "paid or declared" shall be construed according to the method regularly employed in keeping the books of the insurance company.

§ 1.823–1 Net premiums. Net premiums are one of the items used, together with interest, dividends, and rents, less dividends to policyholders and wholly tax-exempt interest, in determining tax liability under section 821 (a) (2). They are also used in section 822 (c) (6) in determining the limitation on certain capital losses and in the application of section 1212. The term "net premiums" is defined in section 823 (1) and includes deposits and assessments, but excludes amounts returned to policyholders which are treated as dividends under section 823 (2).

§ 1.823–2 Dividends to policyholders. (a) Dividends to policyholders is one of the deductions used, together with wholly tax-exempt interest, in determining tax liability under section 821 (a) (2). They are also used in section 822 (c) (6) in determining the limitation on certain capital losses and in the application of section 1212. The term "dividends to policyholders" is defined in section 823 (2) as dividends and similar distributions paid or declared to policyholders. It includes amounts returned to policyholders where the amount is not fixed in the insurance contract but depends upon the experience of the company or the discretion of the management. Such amounts are not to be treated as return premiums under section 823 (1). Similar distributions include such payments as the so-called unabsorbed premium deposits returned to policyholders by factory mutual fire insurance companies. The term "paid or declared" is to be construed according to the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of the insurance company, and such method shall be consistently followed with respect to all deductions (including dividends and similar distributions to policyholders) and all items of income.

(b) If the method of accounting so employed is the cash receipts and disbursements method, the deduction is limited to the dividends and similar distributions actually paid to policyholders in the taxable year. If, on the other hand, the method of accounting so employed is the accrual method, the deduction, or a reasonably accurate estimate thereof, for dividends and similar distributions declared to policyholders for any taxable year will, in general, be computed as follows:

To dividends and similar distributions paid during the taxable year add the amount of dividends and similar distributions declared but unpaid at the end of the taxable year and deduct dividends and similar distributions declared but unpaid at the beginning of the taxable year.

If an insurance company using the accrual method does not compute the deduction for dividends and similar distributions declared to policyholders in the manner stated, it must submit with its return a full and complete explanation of the manner in which the deduction is computed. For the rule as to when dividends are considered paid, see the regulations under section 561.

OTHER INSURANCE COMPANIES

§ 1.831 Statutory provisions; tax on insurance companies (other than life or mutual), mutual marine insurance companies, and mutual fire insurance companies issuing perpetual policies.

SEC. 831. Tax on insurance companies (other than life or mutual), mutual marine insurance companies, and mutual fire insurance companies issuing perpetual policies—(a) Imposition of tax. Taxes computed as provided in section 11 shall be imposed for each taxable year on the taxable income of every insurance company (other than a life or mutual insurance company), every mutual marine insurance company, and every mutual fire insurance company exclusively issuing either perpetual policies or policies for which the sole premium charged is a single deposit which (except for such deduction of underwriting costs as may be provided) is refundable on cancellation or expiration of the policy.

(b) No United States insurance business. Foreign insurance companies (other than a life or mutual insurance company), foreign mutual marine insurance companies, and foreign mutual fire insurance companies described in subsection (a), not carrying on an insurance business within the United States, shall not be subject to this part but shall be taxable as other foreign corporations.

(c) Alternative tax on capital gains. For alternative tax in case of capital gains, see section 1201 (a).

§ 1.831–1 Tax on insurance companies (other than life or mutual), mutual marine insurance companies, and mutual fire insurance companies issuing perpetual policies. (a) All insurance companies, other than life or mutual or foreign insurance companies not carrying on an insurance business within the United States, and all mutual marine insurance companies and mutual fire insurance companies exclusively issuing either perpetual policies, or policies for which the sole premium charged is a single deposit which, except for such deduction of underwriting costs as may be provided, is refundable upon cancellation or expiration of the policy, are subject to the tax imposed by section 831. As used in this section and §§ 1.832–1 and 1.832–2, the term "insurance companies" means only those companies which qualify as insurance companies under the definition provided by § 1.801–1 (b) and which are subject to the tax imposed by section 831.

(b) All provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and of the regulations in this part not inconsistent with the specific provisions of section 831 are applicable to the assessment and collection of the tax imposed by section 831 (a), and insurance companies are subject to the same penalties as are provided in the case of returns and payment of income tax by other corporations.

(c) Since section 832 provides that the underwriting and investment exhibit of the annual statement approved by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners shall be the basis for computing gross income and since the annual statement is rendered on the calendar year basis, the returns under section 831 shall be made on the basis of the calendar year and shall be on Form 1120. Insurance companies are entitled, in computing insurance company taxable income, to the deductions provided in part VIII of subchapter B.

(d) Foreign insurance companies not carrying on an insurance business within the United States are not taxable under section 831 but are taxable as other foreign corporations. See section 881.

(e) Insurance companies are subject to both normal tax and surtax. The normal tax shall be computed as provided in section 11 (b) and the surtax shall be computed as provided in section 11 (c). For the circumstances under which the $25,000 exemption from surtax for certain taxable years may be disallowed in whole or in part, see section 1551. For alternative tax where the net long-term capital gain for any taxable year exceeds the net short-term capital loss, see section 1201 (a) and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.832 Statutory provisions; insurance company taxable income.

SEC. 832. Insurance company taxable income—(a) Definition of taxable income. In the case of an insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831, the term "taxable income" means the gross income as defined in subsection (b) (1) less the deductions allowed by subsection (c).

(b) Definitions. In the case of an insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831—

(1) Gross income. The term "gross income" means the sum of—

(A) The combined gross amount earned during the taxable year, from investment income and from underwriting income as provided in this subsection, computed on the basis of the underwriting and investment exhibit of the annual statement approved by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners,

(B) Gain during the taxable year from the sale or other disposition of property, and

(C) All other items constituting gross income under subchapter B, except that, in the case of a mutual fire insurance company described in section 831 (a), the amount of single deposit premiums paid to such company shall not be included in gross income.

(2) Investment income. The term "investment income" means the gross amount of income earned during the taxable year from interest, dividends, and rents, computed as follows: To all interest, dividends, and rents received during the taxable year, add interest, dividends, and rents due and accrued at the end of the taxable year, and deduct all interest, dividends, and rents due and accrued at the end of the preceding taxable year.

(3) Underwriting income. The term "underwriting income" means the premiums earned on insurance contracts during the taxable year less losses incurred and expenses incurred.

(4) Premiums earned. The term "premiums earned on insurance contracts during the taxable year" means an amount computed as follows:

(A) From the amount of gross premiums written on insurance contracts during the taxable year, deduct return premiums and premiums paid for reinsurance.

(B) To the result so obtained, add unearned premiums on outstanding business at the end of the preceding taxable year and deduct unearned premiums on outstanding business at the end of the taxable year.

For purposes of this subsection, unearned premiums shall include life insurance reserves, as defined in section 806, pertaining to the life, burial, or funeral insurance, or annuity business of an insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831 and not qualifying as a life insurance company under section 801.

(5) Losses incurred. The term "losses incurred" means losses incurred during the taxable year on insurance contracts, computed as follows:

(A) To losses paid during the taxable year, add salvage and reinsurance recoverable outstanding at the end of the preceding taxable year and deduct salvage and reinsurance recoverable outstanding at the end of the taxable year.

(B) To the result so obtained, add all unpaid losses outstanding at the end of the taxable year and deduct unpaid losses outstanding at the end of the preceding taxable year.

(6) Expenses incurred. The term "expenses incurred" means all expenses shown on the annual statement approved by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, and shall be computed as follows: To all expenses paid during the taxable year, add expenses unpaid at the end of the taxable year and deduct expenses unpaid at the end of the preceding taxable year. For the purpose of computing the taxable income subject to the tax imposed by section 831, there shall be deducted from the expenses incurred (as defined in this paragraph) all expenses incurred which are not allowed as deductions by subsection (c).

(c) Deductions allowed. In computing the taxable income of an insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831, there shall be allowed as deductions:

(1) All ordinary and necessary expenses incurred, as provided in section 162 (relating to trade or business expenses);

(2) All interest, as provided in section 163;

(3) Taxes, as provided in section 164;

(4) Losses incurred, as defined in subsection (b) (5) of this section;

(5) Capital losses to the extent provided in subchapter P (sec. 1201 and following, relating to capital gains and losses) plus losses from capital assets sold or exchanged in order to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders. Capital assets shall be considered as sold or exchanged in order to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders to the extent that the gross receipts from their sale or exchange are not greater than the excess, if any, for the taxable year of the sum of dividends and similar distributions paid to policyholders in their capacity as such, losses paid, and expenses paid over the sum of interest, dividends, rents, and net premiums received. In the application of section 1211 for purposes of this section, the net capital loss for the taxable year shall be the amount by which losses for such year from sales or exchanges of capital assets exceeds the sum of the gains from such sales or exchanges and whichever of the following amounts is the lesser:

(A) The taxable income (computed without regard to gains or losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets or to the deductions provided in section 242 for partially tax-exempt interest); or

(B) Losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets sold or exchanged to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders;

(6) Debts in the nature of agency balances and bills receivable which become worthless within the taxable year;

(7) The amount of interest earned during the taxable year which under section 103 is excluded from gross income;

(8) The depreciation deduction allowed by section 167;

(9) Charitable, etc., contributions, as provided in section 170;

(10) Deductions (other than those specified in this subsection) as provided in part VI of subchapter B (sec. 161 and following, relating to itemized deductions for individuals and corporations);

(11) Dividends and similar distributions paid or declared to policyholders in their capacity as such, except in the case of a mutual fire insurance company described in section 831 (a). For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term "paid or declared" shall be construed according to the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of the insurance company; and

(12) The special deductions allowed by part VIII of subchapter B (sec. 241 and following, relating to partially tax-exempt interest and to dividends received).

(d) Taxable income of foreign insurance companies other than life or mutual and foreign mutual marine. In the case of a foreign insurance company (other than a life or mutual insurance company), a foreign mutual marine insurance company, and a foreign mutual fire insurance company described in section 831 (a), the taxable income shall be the taxable income from sources within the United States. In the case of a company to which the preceding sentence applies, the deductions allowed in this section shall be allowed to the extent provided in subpart B of part II of subchapter N (sec. 881 and following) in the case of a foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States.

(e) Double deductions. Nothing in this section shall permit the same item to be deducted more than once.

§ 1.832–1 Gross income. (a) Gross income as defined in section 832 (b) (1) means the gross amount of income earned during the taxable year from interest, dividends, rents, and premium income, computed on the basis of the underwriting and investment exhibit of the annual statement approved by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, as well as the gain derived from the sale or other disposition of property, and all other items constituting gross income under section 61, except that in the case of a mutual fire insurance company described in § 1.831–1 the amount of single deposit premiums received, but not assessments, shall be excluded from gross income. Gross income does not include increase in liabilities during the year on account of reinsurance treaties, remittances from the home office of a foreign insurance company to the United States branch, borrowed money, or gross increase due to adjustments in book value of capital assets. The underwriting and investment exhibit is presumed to reflect the true net income of the company, and insofar as it is not inconsistent with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code will be recognized and used as a basis for that purpose. All items of the exhibit, however, do not reflect an insurance company's income as defined in the Code. By reason of the definition of investment income, miscellaneous items which are intended to reflect surplus but do not properly enter into the computation of income, such as dividends declared to shareholders in their capacity as such, home office remittances and receipts, and special deposits, are ignored. Gain or loss from agency balances and bills receivable not admitted as assets on the underwriting and investment exhibit will be ignored, excepting only such agency balances and bills receivable as have been allowed as deductions for worthless debts or, having been previously so allowed, are recovered during the taxable year. In computing "premiums earned on insurance contracts during the taxable year" the amount of the unearned premiums shall include (1) life insurance reserves as defined in section 803 (b) and § 1.803–1 pertaining to the life, burial, or funeral insurance, or annuity business of an insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 831 and not qualifying as a life insurance company under section 801, and (2) liability for return premiums under a rate credit or retrospective rating plan based on experience, such as the "War Department Insurance Rating Plan," and which return premiums are therefore not earned premiums. In computing "losses incurred" the determination of unpaid losses at the close of each year must represent actual unpaid losses as nearly as it is possible to ascertain them.

(b) Every insurance company to which this section applies must be prepared to establish to the satisfaction of the district director that the part of the deduction for "losses incurred" which represents unpaid losses at the close of the taxable year comprises only actual unpaid losses stated in amounts which, based upon the facts in each case and the company's experience with similar cases, can be said to represent a fair and reasonable estimate of the amount the company will be required to pay. Amounts included in, or added to, the estimates of such losses which, in the opinion of the district director are in excess of the actual liability determined as provided in the preceding sentence will be disallowed as a deduction. The district director may require any such insurance company to submit such detailed information with respect to its actual experience as is deemed necessary to establish the reasonableness of the deduction for "losses incurred."

(c) That part of the deduction for "losses incurred" which represents an adjustment to losses paid for salvage and reinsurance recoverable shall, except as hereinafter provided, include all salvage in course of liquidation, and all reinsurance in process of collection not otherwise taken into account as a reduction of losses paid, outstanding at the end of the taxable year. Salvage in course of liquidation includes all property (other than cash), real or personal, tangible or intangible, except that which may not be included by reason of express statutory provisions (or rules and regulations of an insurance department) of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia in which the company transacts business. Such salvage in course of liquidation shall be taken into account to the extent of the value thereof at the end of the taxable year as determined from a fair and reasonable estimate based upon either the facts in each case or the company's experience with similar cases. Cash received during the taxable year with respect to items of salvage or reinsurance shall be taken into account in computing losses paid during such taxable year.

§ 1.832–2 Deductions. (a) The deductions allowable are specified in section 832 (c) and by reason of the provisions of section 832 (c) (10) and (12) include in addition certain deductions provided in sections 161, 241 and following. The deductions, however, are subject to the limitation provided in section 265, relating to expenses and interest in respect of tax-exempt income. The net operating loss deduction is computed under section 172 and the regulations thereunder. For the purposes of section 172, relating to net operating loss deduction, "gross income" shall mean gross income as defined in section 832 (b) (1) and the allowable deductions shall be those allowed by section 832 (c) with the exceptions and limitations set forth in section 172 (d). In addition to the deduction for capital losses provided in subchapter P (section 1201 and following), insurance companies are allowed a deduction for losses from capital assets sold or exchanged in order to obtain funds to meet abnormal insurance losses and to provide for the payment of dividends and similar distributions to policyholders. A special rule is provided for the application of the 5-year capital loss carryover provisions of section 1212. The deduction is the same as that allowed mutual insurance ocmpanies subject to the tax imposed by section 821; see section 822 (c) (6) and the regulations thereunder. Insurance companies, other than mutual fire insurance companies described in § 1.831–1, are also allowed a deduction for dividends and similar distributions paid or declared to policyholders in their capacity as such. The deduction is otherwise the same as that allowed mutual insurance companies subject to the tax imposed by section 821; see section 823 (2) and the regulations thereunder.

(b) Among the items which may not be deducted are income and profits taxes imposed by the United States, income and profits taxes imposed by any foreign country or possession of the United States (in cases where the company chooses to claim to any extent a credit for such taxes), taxes assessed against local benefits, decrease during the year due to adjustments in the book value of capital assets, decrease in liabilities during the year on account of reinsurance treaties, dividends paid to shareholders in their capacity as such, remittances to the home office of a foreign insurance company by the United States branch, and borrowed money repaid.

(c) In computing taxable income of insurance companies, losses sustained during the taxable year from the sale or other disposition of property are deductible subject to the limitation contained in section 1211. Insurance companies are entitled to the alternative taxes provided in section 1201.

PROVISIONS OF GENERAL APPLICATION

§ 1.841 Statutory provisions; credit for foreign taxes.

TAX ON EMPLOYEES

§ 31.3201 Statutory provisions; rate of tax.

SEC. 3201. Rate of tax. In addition to other taxes, there is hereby imposed on the income of every employee a tax equal to 6¼ percent of so much of the compensation paid to such employee after December 31, 1954, for services rendered by him after such date as is not in excess of $350 for any calendar month.

[Sec. 3201 as amended by sec. 206 (a), Act of Aug. 31, 1954, 68 Stat. 1040]

§ 31.3201–1 Measure of employee tax. The employee tax with respect to compensation paid after 1954 for services rendered after 1954 is measured by the amount of such compensation paid to an individual for services rendered as an employee to one or more employers, excluding, however, the amount of compensation in excess of $350 which is paid after 1954 to the employee for services rendered during any one calendar month after 1954. For provisions relating to compensation, see § 31.3231 (e)–1. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which certain compensation is to be disregarded for the purpose of determining the employee tax, see § 31.3231 (e)–1 (a) (4) and (5).

§ 31.3201–2 Rate and computation of employee tax. The rate of the employee tax is 6¼ percent. The employee tax is computed by multiplying the amount of the employee's compensation with respect to which the employee tax is imposed by 6¼ percent.

§ 31.3202 Statutory provisions; deduction of tax from compensation.

SEC. 3202. Deduction of tax from compensation—(a) Requirement. The tax imposed by section 3201 shall be collected by the employer of the taxpayer by deducting the amount of the tax from the compensation of the employee as and when paid. If an employee is paid compensation after December 31, 1954, by more than one employer for services rendered during any calendar month after 1954 and the aggregate of such compensation is in excess of $350, the tax to be deducted by each employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer from the compensation paid by him to the employee with respect to such month shall be that proportion of the tax with respect to such compensation paid by all such employers which the compensation paid by him after December 31, 1954, to the employee for services rendered during such month bears to the total compensation paid by all such employers after December 31, 1954, to such employee for services rendered during such month; and in the event that the compensation so paid by such employers to the employee for services rendered during such month is less than $350, each subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer shall deduct such proportion of any additional tax as the compensation paid by such employer after December 31, 1954, to such employee for services rendered during such month bears to the total compensation paid by all such employers after December 31, 1954, to such employee for services rendered during such month.

(b) Indemnification of employer. Every employer required under subsection (a) to deduct the tax shall be made liable for the payment of such tax and shall not be liable to any person for the amount of any such payment.

§ 31.3202–1 Collection of, and liability for, employee tax—(a) Collection; general rule. The employer shall collect from each of his employees the employee tax imposed with respect to the compensation of the employee by deducting or causing to be deducted the amount of such tax from the compensation subject to the tax as and when such compensation is paid. As to the measure of the employee tax, see § 31.3201–1.

(b) Collection; aggregate monthly compensation in excess of $350 paid by two or more employers. (1) If an employee is paid compensation after 1954 by two or more employers for services rendered during any one calendar month after 1954, and if the aggregate compensation paid to such employee after 1954 by all employers for services rendered during such month is in excess of $350, the employee tax to be deducted by each employer from the compensation as and when paid by him to the employee shall be determined as follows:

(i) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, none of whom is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer (see § 31.3231 (a)–1 (a) (6)), each employer shall deduct the employee tax with respect to that proportion of $350 of compensation which the compensation paid after 1954 by such employer to the employee for the month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all employers for that month. See example (1) in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(ii) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, each of which is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, each subordinate unit shall deduct the employee tax with respect to that proportion of $350 of compensation which the compensation paid after 1954 by such subordinate unit to the employee for the month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all such subordinate units for that month.

(iii) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, only one of whom is an employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by the employer other than a subordinate unit equals or exceeds $350 for the month, then no employee tax shall be deducted by any such subordinate unit from the compensation paid by it after 1954 to such employee for that month, and the employer other than a subordinate unit shall deduct the employee tax with respect to $350 of compensation paid by him after 1954 to such employee for that month. See example (2) in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(iv) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer and by one or more subordinate units of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the total compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by the employers other than a subordinate unit equals or exceeds $350 for the month, then no employee tax shall be deducted by any such subordinate unit from the compensation paid by it after 1954 to such employee for that month, and each employer other than a subordinate unit shall deduct the employee tax with respect to that proportion of $350 of compensation which the compensation paid after 1954 by such employer to the employee for the month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all such employers other than a subordinate unit for that month. See example (3) in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(v) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, only one of whom is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the total compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by all employers other than the subordinate unit is less than $350 for the month, then each employer other than the subordinate unit shall deduct the employee tax with respect to the full amount of compensation paid by him after 1954 to such employee for that month, and the subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer shall deduct the employee tax with respect to the remainder of $350 of compensation less the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee for that month by all other employers. See example (4) in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(vi) If such compensation is paid by one or more employers other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer and by two or more subordinate units of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the total compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by all employers other than the subordinate units is less than $350 for the month, then each employer other than the subordinate units shall deduct the employee tax with respect to the full amount of compensation paid by him after 1954 to such employee for that month, and each subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer shall deduct the employee tax with respect to that proportion of the remainder of $350 of compensation less the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee for the month by all employers other than the subordinate units which the compensation paid after 1954 by such subordinate unit to the employee for that month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all such subordinate units for that month. See example (5) in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

See § 31.3231 (e)–1 (a) (4) and (5) for provisions relating to the circumstances under which certain compensation is to be disregarded for the purpose of determining the employee tax.

(2) The application of certain of the principles stated in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). A, an employee, renders services during January 1955 for employers X, Y, and Z, none of whom is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer. For such services A is paid in the month or thereafter compensation of $100 by X, $100 by Y, and $300 by Z, or an aggregate of $500 for the month. In such case X pays one-fifth of A's aggregate compensation for the month, Y pays one-fifth, and Z pays three-fifths. X and Y, therefore, are each required to deduct the employee tax with respect to one-fifth of $350, or $70, and Z is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to three-fifths of $350, or $210.

Example (2). A, an employee, renders services during January 1955 for employer X, an employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and for employers Y and Z, each of which is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer. For such services A is paid in the month or thereafter compensation of $350 by X, $50 by Y, and $25 by Z. Since the compensation paid A for the month by X equals $350, neither Y nor Z is required to deduct any employee tax from the compensation paid by him to A for the month; and X is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to the full $350 paid by him to A for the month.

Example (3). A, an employee, renders services during January 1955 for employers W and X, each of whom is an employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and for employers Y and Z, each of which is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer. For such services A is paid in the month or thereafter compensation of $200 by W and $300 by X, or an aggregate of $500 for the month, and compensation of $50 by Y and $50 by Z. Since the aggregate compensation paid A for the month by W and X is in excess of $350, neither Y nor Z is required to deduct any employee tax from the compensation paid by him to A for the month. Of the aggregate compensation of $500 paid A for the month by W and X, W pays two-fifths and X pays three-fifths. W, therefore, is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to two-fifths of $350, or $140, and X is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to three-fifths of $350, or $210.

Example (4). A, an employee, renders services during January 1955 for employer X, an employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and for employer Y, a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer. For such services A is paid in the month or thereafter compensation of $250 by X and $200 by Y. In such case X is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to the full $250 paid by him to A for the month; and Y is required to deduct the employee tax only with respect to $100 ($350 minus $250 paid by X).

Example (5). A, an employee, renders services during January 1955 for employers W and X, each of whom is an employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and for employers Y and Z, each of which is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer. For such services A is paid in the month or thereafter compensation of $190 by W, $100 by X, $50 by Y, and $100 by Z. In such case W and X are each required to deduct the employee tax with respect to the full amount paid to A for the month, that is, W with respect to $190 and X with respect to $100; and Y and Z are required to deduct the employee tax with respect to their proportionate share of $60 ($350 minus $290 paid by W and X). Of the aggregate compensation of $150 paid by Y and Z, $50, or one-third, was paid by Y, and $100, or two-thirds, was paid by Z. In such case Y is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to one-third of $60, or $20, and Z is required to deduct the employee tax with respect to two-thirds of $60, or $40.

(c) Undercollections or overcollections. Any undercollection or overcollection of employee tax resulting from the employer's inability to determine, at the time compensation is paid, the correct amount of compensation with respect to which the deduction should be made shall be corrected in accordance with the provisions of Subpart G of this part relating to adjustments, credits, refunds, and abatements.

(d) When fractional part of cent may be disregarded. In collecting the employee tax, the employer shall disregard any fractional part of a cent of such tax unless it amounts to one-half cent or more, in which case it shall be increased to one cent.

(e) Employer's liability. The employer is liable for the employee tax with respect to compensation paid by him, whether or not collected from the employee. If the employer deducts less than the correct amount of employee tax or fails to deduct any part of the tax, he is nevertheless liable for the correct amount of the tax. Until collected from him, the employee is also liable for the employee tax. Any employee tax collected by or on behalf of an employer is a special fund in trust for the United States. See section 7501. An employer is not liable to any person for the amount of the employee tax deducted by him and paid to the district director.

TAX ON EMPLOYEE REPRESENTATIVES

§ 31.3211 Statutory provisions; rate of tax.

SEC. 3211. Rate of tax. In addition to other taxes, there is hereby imposed on the income of each employee representative a tax equal to 12½ percent of so much of the compensation, paid to such employee representative after December 31, 1954, for services rendered by him after such date as is not in excess of $350 for any calendar month.

§ 31.3211–1 Measure of employee representative tax—(a) General rule. Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, the employee representative tax with respect to compensation paid after 1954 for services rendered after 1954 is measured by the amount of such compensation paid to an individual for services rendered as an employee representative, excluding, however, the amount of compensation in excess of $350 which is paid after 1954 to the employee representative for services rendered during any one calendar month after 1954. See § 31.3231 (e)–1, relating to compensation.

(b) Aggregate monthly compensation in excess of $350 as employee representative and employee. (1) If during any one calendar month after 1954 an individual renders services as an employee representative and as an employee and the total compensation paid after 1954 to the individual for services rendered during such month as an employee representative and as an employee exceeds $350, the measure of the employee representative tax for such month shall be $350 minus the compensation paid after 1954 to such individual for services rendered by him during the month as an employee.

(2) The application of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A renders services as an employee representative during January 1955 for which he is paid in the month or thereafter $100. During January 1955 A also renders services as an employee for one or more employers and receives during the month or thereafter compensation of $300. Inasmuch as A's total compensation for services rendered during January 1955 as an employee representative and as an employee exceeds $350 ($300 plus $100), the measure of the employee representative tax is $350 minus $300 (A's compensation for services rendered as an employee), or $50.

§ 31.3211–2 Rate and computation of employee representative tax. The rate of the employee representative tax is 12½ percent. The employee representative tax is computed by multiplying the amount of the employee representative's compensation with respect to which the employee representative tax is imposed by 12½ percent.

§ 31.3212 Statutory provisions; determination of compensation.

SEC. 3212. Determination of compensation. The compensation of an employee representative for the purpose of ascertaining the tax thereon shall be determined in the same manner and with the same effect as if the employee organization by which such employee representative is employed were an employer as defined in section 3231 (a).

§ 31.3212–1 Determination of compensation. See § 31.3231 (e)–1 for regulations applicable to compensation.

TAX ON EMPLOYERS

§ 31.3221 Statutory provisions; rate of tax.

SEC. 3221. Rate of tax. In addition to other taxes, there is hereby imposed on every employer an excise tax, with respect to having individuals in his employ, equal to 6¼ percent of so much of the compensation paid by such employer after December 31, 1954, for services rendered to him after December 31, 1954, as is, with respect to any employee for any calendar month, not in excess of $350; except that if an employee is paid compensation after December 31, 1954, by more than one employer for services rendered during any calendar month after 1954, the tax imposed by this section shall apply to not more than $350 of the aggregate compensation paid to such employee by all such employers after December 31, 1954, for services rendered during such month, and each employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer shall be liable for that proportion of the tax with respect to such compensation paid by all such employers which the compensation paid by him after December 31, 1954, to the employee for services rendered during such month bears to the total compensation paid by all such employers after December 31, 1954, to such employee for services rendered during such month.

§ 31.3221–1 Measure of employer tax—(a) General rule. Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, the employer tax with respect to compensation paid after 1954 for services rendered after 1954 is measured by the amount of such compensation paid by an employer to his employees, excluding, however, the amount of compensation in excess of $350 which is paid after 1954 by the employer to any employee for services rendered during any one calendar month after 1954. For provisions relating to compensation, see § 31.3231 (e)–1. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which certain compensation is to be disregarded for the purpose of determining the employer tax, see § 31.3231 (e)–1 (a) (4) and (5).

(b) Aggregate monthly compensation in excess of $350 paid by two or more employers. (1) If an employee is paid compensation after 1954 by two or more employers for services rendered during any one calendar month after 1954, and if the aggregate compensation paid to such employee after 1954 by all employers for services rendered during such month is in excess of $350, the measure of the employer tax of each employer with respect to the compensation paid by him after 1954 to the employee for the month shall be determined as follows:

(i) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, none of whom is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer (see § 31.3231 (a)–1 (a) (6)), the measure of the employer tax of each employer shall be that proportion of $350 which the compensation paid after 1954 by such employer to the employee for the month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all employers for that month.

(ii) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, each of which is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, the measure of the employer tax of each subordinate unit shall be that proportion of $350 which the compensation paid after 1954 by such subordinate unit to the employee for the month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all such subordinate units for that month.

(iii) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, only one of whom is an employer other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by the employer other than a subordinate unit equals or exceeds $350 for the month, then no subordinate unit shall be liable for any employer tax with respect to the compensation paid by it after 1954 to such employee for that month, and the measure of the employer tax of the employer other than a subordinate unit with respect to the compensation paid by him after 1954 to such employee for that month shall be $350.

(iv) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer and by one or more subordinate units of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the total compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by the employers other than a subordinate unit equals or exceeds $350 for the month, then no subordinate unit shall be liable for any employer tax with respect to the compensation paid by it after 1954 to such employee for that month, and the measure of the employer tax of each employer other than a subordinate unit shall be that proportion of $350 which the compensation paid after 1954 by such employer to the employee for the month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all such employers other than a subordinate unit for that month.

(v) If such compensation is paid by two or more employers, only one of whom is a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the total compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by all employers other than the subordinate unit is less than $350 for the month, then the measure of the employer tax of each employer other than the subordinate unit shall be the full amount of compensation paid by him after 1954 to such employee for that month, and the measure of the employer tax of the subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer shall be the remainder of $350 less the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee for that month by all other employers.

(vi) If such compensation is paid by one or more employers other than a subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and by two or more subordinate units of a national railway-labor-organization employer, and if the total compensation paid after 1954 to the employee by all employers other than the subordinate units is less than $350 for the month, then the measure of the employer tax of each employer other than the subordinate units shall be the full amount of compensation paid by him after 1954 to such employee for that month, and the measure of the employer tax of each subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer shall be that proportion of the remainder of $350 less the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee for the month by all employers other than the subordinate units which the compensation paid after 1954 by such subordinate unit to the employee for that month bears to the total compensation paid after 1954 to such employee by all such subordinate units for that month.

See § 31.3231 (e)–1 (a) (4) and (5) for provisions relating to the circumstances under which certain compensation is to be disregarded for the purpose of determining the employer tax.

(2) For illustrations of the application of certain of the principles in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, see the examples, illustrating the analogous principles with respect to the deduction of employee tax, set forth in § 31.3202–1 (b) (2).

(c) Underpayments or overpayments. Any underpayment or overpayment of employer tax resulting from the employer's inability to determine, at the time such tax is paid, the correct amount of compensation with respect to which the tax should be paid shall be corrected in accordance with the provisions of Subpart G of the regulations in this part relating to adjustments, credits, refunds, and abatements.

§ 31.3221–2 Rate and computation of employer tax. The rate of employer tax is 6¼ percent. The employer tax is computed by multiplying the amount of the compensation with respect to which the employer tax is imposed by 6¼ percent.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 3231. Definitions—(a) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" means any carrier (as defined in subsection (g)), and any company which is directly or indirectly owned or controlled by one or more such carriers or under common control therewith, and which operates any equipment or facility or performs any service (except trucking service, casual service, and the casual operation of equipment or facilities) in connection with the transportation of passengers or property by railroad, or the receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer in transit, refrigeration or icing, storage, or handling of property transported by railroad, and any receiver, trustee, or other individual or body, judicial or otherwise, when in the possession of the property or operating all or any part of the business of any such employer; except that the term "employer" shall not include any street, interurban, or suburban electric railway, unless such railway is operating as a part of a general steam-railroad system of transportation, but shall not exclude any part of the general steam-railroad system of transportation now or hereafter operated by any other motive power. The Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby authorized and directed upon request of the Secretary or his delegate, or upon complaint of any party interested, to determine after hearing whether any line operated by electric power falls within the terms of this exception. The term "employer" shall also include railroad associations, traffic associations, tariff bureaus, demurrage bureaus, weighing and inspection bureaus, collection agencies and other associations, bureaus, agencies, or organizations controlled and maintained wholly or principally by two or more employers as hereinbefore defined and engaged in the performance of services in connection with or incidental to railroad transportation; and railway labor organizations, national in scope, which have been or may be organized in accordance with the provisions of the Railway Labor Act, as amended (44 Stat. 577; 45 U. S. C., chapter 8), and their State and National legislative committees and their general committees and their insurance departments and their local lodges and divisions, established pursuant to the constitutions and bylaws of such organizations. The term "employer" shall not include any company by reason of its being engaged in the mining of coal, the supplying of coal to an employer where delivery is not beyond the mine tipple, and the operation of equipment or facilities therefor, or in any of such activities.

§ 31.3231 (a)–1 Who are employers. (a) Each of the following persons is an employer within the meaning of the act:

(1) Any carrier, that is, any express company, sleeping-car company, or carrier by railroad, subject to part I of the Interstate Commerce Act;

(2) Any company—

(i) Which is directly or indirectly owned or controlled by one or more employers as defined in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, or under common control therewith, and

(ii) Which operates any equipment or facility or performs any service (except trucking service, casual service, and the casual operation of equipment or facilities) in connection with—

(a) The transportation of passengers or property by railroad, or

(b) The receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer in transit, refrigeration or icing, storage, or handling of property transported by railroad;

(3) Any receiver, trustee, or other individual or body, judicial or otherwise, when in the possession of the property or operating all or any part of the business of any employer as defined in subparagraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph;

(4) Any railroad association, traffic association, tariff bureau, demurrage bureau, weighing and inspection bureau, collection agency, and any other association, bureau, agency, or organization controlled and maintained wholly or principally by two or more employers as defined in subparagraph (1), (2) or (3) of this paragraph and engaged in the performance of services in connection with or incidental to railroad transportation;

(5) Any railway labor organization, national in scope, which has been or may be organized in accordance with the provisions of the Railway Labor Act; and

(6) Any subordinate unit of a national railway-labor-organization employer, that is, any State or National legislative committee, general committee, insurance department, or local lodge or division, of an employer as defined in subparagraph (5) of this paragraph, established pursuant to the constitution and bylaws of such employer.

(b) As used in paragraph (a) (2) of this section, the term "controlled" includes direct or indirect control, whether legally enforceable and however exercisable or exercised. The control may be by means of stock ownership, or by agreements, licenses, or any other devices which insure that the operation of the company is in the interest of one or more carriers. It is the reality of the control, however, which is decisive, not its form nor the mode of its exercise.

(c) The term "employer" does not include any street, interurban, or suburban electric railway, unless such railway is operating as a part of a general steam-railroad system of transportation, but shall not exclude any part of the general steam-railroad system of transportation which is operated by any other motive power.

(d) The term "employer" does not include any company by reason of its being engaged in the mining of coal, the supplying of coal to an employer where delivery is not beyond the mine tipple, and the operation of equipment or facilities for such mining or supplying of coal, or in any of such activities.

SEC. 3231. Definitions. • • •

(b) Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" means any individual in the service of one or more employers for compensation; except that the term "employee" shall include an employee of a local lodge or division defined as an employer in subsection (a) only if he was in the service of or in the employment relation to a carrier on or after August 29, 1935. An individual shall be deemed to have been in the employment relation to a carrier on August 29, 1935, if—

(1) He was on that date on leave of absence from his employment, expressly granted to him by the carrier by whom he was employed, or by a duly authorized representative of such carrier, and the grant of such leave of absence was established to the satisfaction of the Railroad Retirement Board before July 1947; or

(2) He was in the service of a carrier after August 29, 1935, and before January 1946 in each of 6 calendar months, whether or not consecutive; or

(3) Before August 29, 1935, he did not retire and was not retired or discharged from the service of the last carrier by whom he was employed or its corporate or operating successor, but—

(A) Solely by reason of his physical or mental disability he ceased before August 29, 1935, to be in the service of such carrier and thereafter remained continuously disabled until he attained age 65 or until August 1945, or

(B) Solely for such last stated reason a carrier by whom he was employed before August 29, 1935, or a carrier who is its successor did not on or after August 29, 1935, and before August 1945 call him to return to service, or

(C) If he was so called he was solely for such reason unable to render service in 6 calendar months as provided in paragraph (2); or

(4) He was on August 29, 1935, absent from the service of a carrier by reason of a discharge which, within 1 year after the effective date thereof, was protested, to an appropriate labor representative or to the carrier, as wrongful, and which was followed within 10 years of the effective date thereof by his reinstatement in good faith to his former service with all his seniority rights; except that an individual shall not be deemed to have been on August 29, 1935, in the employment relation to a carrier if before that date he was granted a pension or gratuity on the basis of which a pension was awarded to him pursuant to section 6 of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937 (50 Stat. 312; 45 U. S. C. 228f), or if during the last payroll period before August 29, 1935, in which he rendered service to a carrier he was not in the service of an employer, in accordance with subsection (d), with respect to any service in such payroll period, or if he could have been in the employment relation to an employer only by reason of his having been, either before or after August 29, 1935, in the service of a local lodge or division defined as an employer in subsection (a). The term "employee" includes an officer of an employer. The term "employee" shall not include any individual while such individual is engaged in the physical operations consisting of the mining of coal, the preparation of coal, the handling (other than movement by rail with standard railroad locomotives) of coal not beyond the mine tipple, or the loading of coal at the tipple.

§ 31.3231 (b)–1 Who are employees—(a) In general. (1) An individual who is in the service of one or more employers for compensation is an employee within the meaning of the act. (For definitions of the terms "employer", "service", and "compensation", see subsections (a), (d), and (e), respectively, of section 3231.) An individual is in the service of an employer, with respect to services rendered for compensation, if—

(i) He is subject to the continuing authority of the employer to supervise and direct the manner in which he renders such services; or

(ii) He is rendering professional or technical services and is integrated into the staff of the employer; or

(iii) He is rendering, on the property used in the employer's operations, other personal services the rendition of which is integrated into the employer's operations.

(2) In order that an individual may be in the service of an employer within the meaning of subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph, it is not necessary that the employer actually direct or control the manner in which the services are rendered; it is sufficient if the employer has the right to do so. The right of an employer to discharge an individual is also an important factor indicating that the individual is subject to the continuing authority of the employer to supervise and direct the manner of rendition of the services. Other factors indicating that an individual is subject to the continuing authority of the employer to supervise and direct the manner of rendition of the services are the furnishing of tools and the furnishing of a place to work by the employer to the individual who renders the services.

(3) In general, if an individual is subject to the control or direction of an employer merely as to the result to be accomplished by the work and not as to the means and methods for accomplishing the result, he is an independent contractor. An individual performing services as an independent contractor is not, as to such services, in the service of an employer within the meaning of subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph. However, an individual performing services as an independent contractor may be, as to such services, in the service of an employer within the meaning of subparagraph (1) (ii) or (iii) of this paragraph.

(4) Whether or not an individual is an employee will be determined upon an examination of the particular facts of the case.

(5) If an individual is an employee, it is of no consequence that he is designated as a partner, coadventurer, agent, independent contractor, or otherwise, or that he performs services on a part-time basis.

(6) No distinction is made between classes or grades of employees. Thus, superintendents, managers, and other supervisory personnel are employees within the meaning of the act. An officer of an employer is an employee, but a director as such is not.

(7) In determining whether an individual is an employee with respect to services rendered within the United States, the citizenship or residence of the individual, or the place where the contract of service was entered into, is immaterial.

(8) If an individual performs services for an employer (other than a local lodge or division or a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer) which does not conduct the principal part of its business within the United States, such individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such employer only to the extent that he performs services for it in the United States. Thus, with respect to services rendered for such employer outside the United States, such individual is not in the service of an employer.

(9) If an individual performs services for an employer (other than a local lodge or division or a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer) which conducts the principal part of its business within the United States, he is in the service of such employer whether his services are rendered within or without the United States. In the case of an individual, not a citizen or resident of the United States, rendering services in a place outside the United States to an employer which is required under the laws applicable in such place to employ, in whole or in part, citizens or residents thereof, such individual shall not be deemed to be in the service of an employer with respect to services so rendered.

(10) The term "employee" does not include any individual while he is engaged in the physical operations consisting of the mining of coal, the preparation of coal, the handling (other than movement by rail with standard railroad locomotives) of coal not beyond the mine tipple, or the loading of coal at the tipple.

(b) Employees of local lodges or divisions of railway-labor-organization employers. (1) An individual is in the service of a local lodge or division of a railway-labor-organization employer (see § 31.3231 (a)–1 (a) (6)) only if—

(i) All, or substantially all, the individuals constituting the membership of such local lodge or division are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or

(ii) The headquarters of such local lodge or division is located in the United States.

(2) (i) An individual in the service of a local lodge or division is not an employee within the meaning of the act unless he was, on or after August 29, 1935, in the service of a carrier (see § 31.3231 (g) for definition of carrier) or he was, on August 29, 1935, in the "employment relation" to a carrier.

(ii) An individual shall be deemed to have been in the employment relation to a carrier on August 29, 1935, if (a) he was on that date on leave of absence from his employment, expressly granted to him by the carrier by whom he was employed, or by a duly authorized representative of such carrier, and the grant of such leave of absence was established to the satisfaction of the Railroad Retirement Board before July 1947; or (b) he was in the service of a carrier after August 29, 1935, and before January 1946 in each of six calendar months, whether or not consecutive; or (c) before August 29, 1935, he did not retire and was not retired or discharged from the service of the last carrier by whom he was employed or its corporate or operating successor, but (1) solely by reason of his physical or mental disability he ceased before August 29, 1935, to be in the service of such carrier and thereafter remained continuously disabled until he attained age sixty-five or until August 1945, or (2) solely for such last stated reason a carrier by whom he was employed before August 29, 1935, or a carrier who is its successor did not on or after August 29, 1935, and before August 1945 call him to return to service, or (3) if he was so called he was solely for such reason unable to render service in six calendar months as provided in (b) of this subdivision; or (d) he was on August 29, 1935, absent from the service of a carrier by reason of a discharge which, within one year after the effective date thereof, was protested, to an appropriate labor representative or to the carrier, as wrongful, and which was followed within 10 years of the effective date thereof by his reinstatement in good faith to his former service with all his seniority rights. However, an individual shall not be deemed to have been in the employment relation to a carrier on August 29, 1935, if before that date he was granted a pension or gratuity on the basis of which a pension was awarded to him pursuant to section 6 of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937, or if during the last payroll period before August 29, 1935, in which he rendered service to a carrier he was not, with respect to any service in such payroll period, in the service of an employer (see paragraph (a) of this section).

(c) Employees of general committees of railway-labor-organization employers. An individual is in the service of a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer (see § 31.3231 (a)–1 (a) (6)) only if—

(1) He is representing a local lodge or division described in paragraph (b) (1) of this section; or

(2) All, or substantially all, the individuals represented by such general committee are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or

(3) He acts in the capacity of a general chairman or an assistant general chairman of a general committee which represents individuals rendering service in the United States to an employer. In such case, if his office or headquarters is not located in the United States and the individuals represented by such general committee are employees of an employer not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States, only a part of his remuneration for such service shall be regarded as compensation. The part of his remuneration regarded as compensation shall be in the same proportion to his total remuneration as the mileage in the United States under the jurisdiction of such general committee bears to the total mileage under its jurisdiction, unless such mileage formula is inapplicable, in which case such other formula as the Railroad Retirement Board may have prescribed pursuant to section 1 (c) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937 shall be applicable. However, no part of his remuneration for such service shall be regarded as compensation if the application of such mileage formula, or such other formula as the Railroad Retirement Board may have prescribed, would result in his compensation for the service being less than 10 percent of his remuneration for such service.

SEC. 3231. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employee representative. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee representative" means any officer or official representative of a railway labor organization other than a labor organization included in the term "employer" as defined in subsection (a), who before or after June 29, 1937, was in the service of an employer as defined in subsection (a) and who is duly authorized and designated to represent employees in accordance with the Railway Labor Act (44 Stat. 577; 45 U. S. C., chapter 8), as amended, and any individual who is regularly assigned to or regularly employed by such officer or official representative in connection with the duties of his office.

§ 31.3231 (c)–1 Who are employee representatives. (a) An employee representative within the meaning of the act is—

(1) Any officer or official representative of a railway labor organization which is not included as an employer under section 3231 (a) who—

(i) Was in the service of an employer either before or after June 29, 1937, and

(ii) Is duly authorized and designated to represent employees in accordance with the Railway Labor Act.

For railway labor organizations which are employers under section 3231 (a), see § 31.3231 (a)–1 (a) (5) and (6).

(2) Any individual who is regularly assigned to or regularly employed by an employee representative, as defined in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, in connection with the duties of such employee representative's office.

(b) In determining whether an individual is an employee representative, his citizenship or residence is material only insofar as those factors may affect the determination of whether he was "in the service of an employer" (see § 31.3231 (b)–1 (a)).

SEC. 3231. Definitions. • • •

(d) Service. For purposes of this chapter, an individual is in the service of an employer whether his service is rendered within or without the United States, if—

(1) He is subject to the continuing authority of the employer to supervise and direct the manner of rendition of his service, or he is rendering professional or technical services and is integrated into the staff of the employer, or he is rendering, on the property used in the employer's operations, other personal services the rendition of which is integrated into the employer's operations, and

(2) He renders such service for compensation; except that an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of an employer, other than a local lodge or division or a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer, not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States, only when he is rendering service to it in the United States; and an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such a local lodge or division only if—

(3) All, or substantially all, the individuals constituting its membership are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or

(4) The headquarters of such local lodge or division is located in the United States; and an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such a general committee only if—

(5) He is representing a local lodge or division described in paragraph (3) or (4) immediately above; or

(6) All, or substantially all, the individuals represented by it are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or

(7) He acts in the capacity of a general chairman or an assistant general chairman of a general committee which represents individuals rendering service in the United States to an employer, but in such case if his office or headquarters is not located in the United States and the individuals represented by such general committee are employees of an employer not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States, only such proportion of the remuneration for such service shall be regarded as compensation as the proportion which the mileage in the United States under the jurisdiction of such general committee bears to the total mileage under its jurisdiction, unless such mileage formula is inapplicable, in which case such other formula as the Railroad Retirement Board may have prescribed pursuant to section 1 (c) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937 (50 Stat. 308; 45 U. S. C. 228a) shall be applicable, and if the application of such mileage formula, or such other formula as the Board may prescribe, would result in the compensation of the individual being less than 10 percent of his remuneration for such service, no part of such remuneration shall be regarded as compensation;

Provided, however, That an individual not a citizen or resident of the United States shall not be deemed to be in the service of an employer when rendering service outside the United States to an employer who is required under the laws applicable in the place where the service is rendered to employ therein, in whole or in part, citizens or residents thereof; and the laws applicable on August 29, 1935, in the place where the service is rendered shall be deemed to have been applicable there at all times prior to that date.

§ 31.3231 (d)–1 Service. See § 31.3231 (b)–1 for regulations relating to the term "in the service of an employer."

SEC. 3231. Definitions. • • •

(e) Compensation. For purposes of this chapter—

(1) The term "compensation" means any form of money remuneration earned by an individual for services rendered as an employee to one or more employers, or as an employee representative, including remuneration paid for time lost as an employee, but remuneration paid for time lost shall be deemed earned in the month in which such time is lost. Such term does not include tips, or the voluntary payment by an employer, without deduction from the remuneration of the employee, of the tax imposed on such employee by section 3201. Compensation which is earned during the period for which the Secretary or his delegate shall require a return of taxes under this chapter to be made and which is payable during the calendar month following such period shall be deemed to have been paid during such period only. For the purpose of determining the amount of taxes under sections 3201 and 3221, compensation earned in the service of a local lodge or division of a railway-labor-organization employer shall be disregarded with respect to any calendar month if the amount thereof is less than $3. Compensation for service as a delegate to a national or international convention of a railway labor organization defined as an "employer" in subsection (a) of this section shall be disregarded for purposes of determining the amount of taxes due pursuant to this chapter if the individual rendering such service has not previously rendered service, other than as such a delegate, which may be included in his "years of service" for purposes of the Railroad Retirement Act.

(2) A payment made by an employer to an individual through the employer's payroll shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be compensation for service rendered by such individual as an employee of the employer in the period with respect to which the payment is made. An employee shall be deemed to be paid "for time lost" the amount he is paid by an employer with respect to an identifiable period of absence from the active service of the employer, including absence on account of personal injury, and the amount he is paid by the employer for loss of earnings resulting from his displacement to a less remunerative position or occupation. If a payment is made by an employer with respect to a personal injury and includes pay for time lost, the total payment shall be deemed to be paid for time lost unless, at the time of payment, a part of such payment is specifically apportioned to factors other than time lost, in which event only such part of the payment as is not so apportioned shall be deemed to be paid for time lost.

§ 31.3231 (e)–1 Compensation—(a) Definition. (1) The term "compensation" means all remuneration in money, or in something which may be used in lieu of money (for example, scrip and merchandise orders), which is earned by an individual for services rendered as an employee to one or more employers or as an employee representative. A payment made by an employer to an individual through the employer's payroll shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be compensation for services rendered by such individual as an employee of the employer. Likewise, a payment made by an employee organization to an employee representative through the organization's payroll shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be compensation for services rendered by the employee representative as such.

(2) The term "compensation" is not confined to amounts earned or paid for active service, but includes amounts earned or paid for an identifiable period during which the employee is absent from the active service of the employer and, in the case of an employee representative, amounts earned or paid for an identifiable period during which the employee representative is absent from the active service of the employee organization.

(3) The term "compensation" does not include tips or the voluntary payment by an employer of the employee tax without the deduction of such tax from the remuneration of the employee.

(4) If the amount of compensation earned in any calendar month by an individual as an employee in the service of a local lodge or division of a railway-labor-organization employer is less than $3, such amount shall be disregarded for purposes of determining the employee tax under section 3201 and the employer tax under section 3221.

(5) Compensation for service as a delegate to a national or international convention of a railway-labor-organization employer shall be disregarded for purposes of determining the employee tax under section 3201 and the employer tax under section 3221 if the individual rendering such service has not previously rendered service, other than as such a delegate, which may be included in his "years of service" for purposes of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1937.

(6) For special provisions relating to the compensation of certain general chairmen or assistant general chairmen of a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer, see § 31.3231 (b)–1 (c) (3).

(b) Items included as compensation. The following items are included in compensation with respect to employees and in analogous situations with respect to employee representatives:

(1) Salaries, wages, commissions, fees, bonuses, and any other remuneration in money or in something which may be used in lieu of money. The name by which remuneration is designated, the amount, and the basis upon which it is paid are immaterial. It may be paid upon the basis of piece-work, a percentage of profits, or on a daily, hourly, weekly, monthly, annual, or other basis.

(2) Sick pay, vacation allowances, or back pay upon reinstatement after wrongful discharge.

(3) Amounts paid to an employee for an identifiable period of absence from the active service of the employer on account of personal injury. If a payment is made to an employee with respect to a personal injury and includes pay for an identifiable period of absence from active service, the total payment shall be deemed to be paid for such period of absence from active service unless, at the time of payment, a part of such payment is specifically apportioned to factors other than absence from active service, in which event only such part of the payment as is not so apportioned shall be deemed to be paid for such period of absence from active service.

(4) Amounts paid to an employee for loss of earnings during an identifiable period as the result of the displacement of the employee to a less remunerative position or occupation.

(5) Amounts paid as allowance or reimbursement for traveling or other expenses incurred in the business of the employer to the extent of the excess of such amounts, if any, over such expenses actually incurred and accounted for by the employee to the employer.

(6) Generally, premiums paid by an employer on a policy of life insurance covering the life of an employee, if the employer is not a beneficiary under the policy. However, premiums paid by an employer on policies of group life insurance covering the lives of his employees are not compensation, if the employee has no option to take the amount of the premiums instead of accepting the insurance and has no equity in the policy (such as the right of assignment or the right to the surrender value on termination of his employment).

(7) Amounts deducted from the compensation of an employee, including the amount of the employee tax deducted pursuant to section 3202, constitute compensation paid to the employee.

(8) Payments made by an employer into a stock bonus, pension, or profit-sharing fund, if such payments inure to the exclusive benefit of the employee and may be withdrawn by the employee at any time, or upon resignation or dismissal, or if the contract for services requires such payment as part of the remuneration. Whether or not under other circumstances such payments constitute compensation depends upon the particular facts of each case.

(c) When compensation is earned. Compensation is earned when an employee, or employee representative, as such, performs services for which he is paid or for which there is a present or future obligation to pay, regardless of the time at which payment is made or is to be made. Remuneration paid for any period of absence from active service shall be deemed to have been earned in the month in which such absence from service occurred. A payment made by an employer or employee organization to an individual through the payroll of the employer or employee organization shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be for services rendered by such individual in the period covered by the payroll and, thus, to have been earned in such period.

(d) When compensation is paid. Compensation is deemed to be paid—

(1) When it is actually paid; or

(2) When it is constructively paid, that is, credited to the account of or set apart for an employee without any substantial limitation or restriction as to the time or manner of payment or condition upon which payment is to be made, and made available to him so that it may be drawn upon at any time and its payment brought within his own control and disposition; or

(3) Within the period for which a return of tax is required to be made, if the compensation was earned during such period and is payable during the calendar month following such period. For provisions relating to periods for which a return of tax is required, see the regulations under section 6011 in Subpart G of this part. See also paragraph (c) of this section, relating to when compensation is earned.

Example (1). During September 1955 (which falls in a period for which a return of tax is required to be made), A is employed by employer X at a monthly salary of $200, one-half of which is payable on the 25th of the month in which the services are performed and the other half on the 10th of the following month. Thus on October 10, A is paid $100 which was earned during September. That $100 is deemed to have been paid to A in September and should be included in X's return filed for the period in which September falls.

Example (2). During September 1955 (which falls in a period for which a return of tax is required to be made), A is employed by employer X on the basis of a 6-day week at a weekly salary of $60 payable on Saturday of each week. Thus on Saturday, October 1, 1955, A is paid $60 for services performed during the week September 26, 1955, to October 1, 1955, inclusive. In such case five-sixths of that amount or $50 is deemed to have been paid in September and should be included in X's return filed for the period in which September falls. The balance of A's salary for that week ($10) should be included in the return filed for the period in which October 1955 falls. But see the provisions of the regulations under section 6011 in Subpart G of this part, relating to returns of employers required by State law to pay compensation on a weekly basis.

The jurisdiction herein specifically conferred upon such Federal courts shall not be held exclusive of any jurisdiction otherwise possessed by such courts to entertain civil actions, whether legal or equitable in nature, in aid of the enforcement of rights or obligations arising under the provisions of this chapter.

AUTHORITY: §§ 31.3301 to 31.3308 issued under sec. 7805, 68A Stat. 917; 26 U. S. C. 7805. Interpret or apply chapter 23, 68A Stat. 439; 26 U. S. C. Ch. 23.

SEC. 3301. Rate of tax. There is hereby imposed on every employer (as defined in section 3306 (a)) for the calendar year 1955 and for each calendar year thereafter an excise tax, with respect to having individuals in his employ, equal to 3 percent of the total wages (as defined in section 3306 (b)) paid by him during the calendar year with respect to employment (as defined in section 3306 (c)) after December 31, 1938.

§ 31.3301-1 Persons liable for tax. Every person who is an employer as defined in section 3306 (a) (see § 31.3306 (a)-1) is liable for the tax. Even if an employer is not subject to any State unemployment compensation law, he is nevertheless liable for the tax. However, if he is subject to such a State law, he may be entitled to certain credits against the tax (see §§ 31.3302 (a)-1 to 31.3302 (c)-1, inclusive). For provisions relating to payment of the tax, see Subpart G of the regulations in this part.

§ 31.3301-2 Measure of tax. The tax for any calendar year is measured by the amount of wages paid by the employer during such year with respect to employment after December 31, 1938. (See §§ 31.3306 (c)-1 to 31.3306 (c) (17)-1, inclusive, relating to employment, and §§ 31.3306 (b)-1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)-1, inclusive, relating to wages.)

§ 31.3301-3 Rate and computation of tax. The rate of tax is 3 percent. The tax is computed by applying the 3 percent rate to the wages paid during the calendar year with respect to employment after December 31, 1938.

§ 31.3301-4 When wages are paid. Wages are paid when actually or constructively paid. Wages are constructively paid when they are credited to the account of or set apart for an employee so that they may be drawn upon by him at any time although not then actually reduced to possession. To constitute payment in such a case the wages must be credited to or set apart for the employee without any substantial limitation or restriction as to the time or manner of payment or condition upon which payment is to be made, and must be made available to him so that they may be drawn upon at any time, and their payment brought within his own control and disposition. See Subpart G of the regulations in this part, relating to the return on which wages are to be reported.

SEC. 3302. Credits against tax—(a) Contributions to State unemployment funds. (1) The taxpayer may, to the extent provided in this subsection and subsection (c), credit against the tax imposed by section 3301 the amount of contributions paid by him into an unemployment fund maintained during the taxable year under the unemployment compensation law of a State which is certified for the taxable year as provided in section 3304.

(2) The credit shall be permitted against the tax for the taxable year only for the amount of contributions paid with respect to such taxable year.

(3) The credit against the tax for any taxable year shall be permitted only for contributions paid on or before the last day upon which the taxpayer is required under section 6071 to file a return for such year; except that credit shall be permitted for contributions paid after such last day, but such credit shall not exceed 90 percent of the amount which would have been allowable as credit on account of such contributions had they been paid on or before such last day.

(4) Upon the payment of contributions into the unemployment fund of a State which are required under the unemployment compensation law of that State with respect to remuneration on the basis of which, prior to such payment into the proper fund, the taxpayer erroneously paid an amount as contributions under another unemployment compensation law, the payment into the proper fund shall, for purposes of credit against the tax, be deemed to have been made at the time of the erroneous payment. If, by reason of such other law, the taxpayer was entitled to cease paying contributions with respect to services subject to such other law, the payment into the proper fund shall, for purposes of credit against the tax, be deemed to have been made on the date the return for the taxable year was filed under section 6071.

§ 31.3302 (a)-1 Credit against tax for contributions paid—(a) In general. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section and to the provisions of § 31.3302 (c)-1, the taxpayer may credit against the tax for any taxable year the total amount of contributions paid by him into an unemployment fund maintained during such year under a State law which has been found by the Secretary of Labor to contain the provisions specified in section 3304 (a); Provided, however, That no credit may be taken for contributions under a State law if such State has not been duly certified for the calendar year to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Secretary of Labor. The contributions may be credited against the tax whether or not they are paid with respect to employment as defined in section 3306 (c). For provisions relating to additional credit against the tax, see § 31.3302 (b)-1.

(b) Limitation on the taxable year with respect to which contributions are allowable. In order to be allowable as credit against the tax for any taxable year, the contributions must have been paid with respect to such year.

Example (1). Under the unemployment compensation law of State X, employer M is required to report in his contribution return for the quarter ending December 31, 1955, all remuneration payable for services rendered in such quarter. A portion of such remuneration is not paid to his employees until February 1, 1956. On January 20, 1956, M pays to the State the total amount of contributions due with respect to all remuneration so required to be reported. Such contributions, including those with respect to the remuneration paid on February 1, 1956, may be included in computing the credit against the tax for the calendar year 1955. This is true even though the remuneration paid on February 1, 1956 (if it constitutes "wages") is required to be reported in the Federal return for 1956 and not in the Federal return for 1955.

Example (2). Under the unemployment compensation law of State Y, employer N is required to include in his contribution return for the quarter ending December 31, 1955, certain remuneration paid on December 30, 1955, to an employee for services to be rendered after December 31. On January 20, 1956, N pays to the State the total amount of contributions due with respect to all remuneration required to be reported on the contribution return. Such contributions, including those with respect to the remuneration paid on December 30, 1955, may be included in computing the credit against the tax for the calendar year 1955.

(c) Limitation on amount of credit allowable based on time when contributions are paid—(1) In general. The amount of credit allowable for contributions paid into a State unemployment fund depends in part on the time of payment of such contributions. Although contributions paid at any time may be credited against the tax (subject to the limitations referred to in subparagraphs (2) and (3) of this paragraph), no refund or credit of the tax based on credit for contributions paid will be allowed unless the contributions are paid prior to the expiration of the period of limitations applicable to refund or credit of the tax. See Subpart G of the regulations in this part.

(2) Amount of credit allowable when contributions are paid on or before last day for filing return. Contributions paid into a State unemployment fund on or before the last day upon which the Federal return for the taxable year is required to be filed may be credited against the tax in an amount equal to such contributions, but not, however, to exceed the limit on total credits prescribed in section 3302 (c). (See § 31.3302 (c)-1.) For provisions relating to the time for filing the return see § 31.6071 in Subpart G of this part.

(3) Amount of credit allowable when contributions are paid after last day for filing return. Contributions paid into a State unemployment fund after the last day upon which the Federal return for the taxable year is required to be filed may be credited against the tax in an amount not to exceed 90 percent of the amount which would have been allowable as credit on account of such contributions had they been paid into a State unemployment fund on or before such last day. However, see subparagraph (4) of this paragraph relating to the payment of contributions to the wrong State. For provisions relating to refund, credit, or abatement of the tax based on credit with respect to contributions, see Subpart G of the regulations in this part.

Example (1). The Federal return of the M Company for the calendar year 1955 discloses a total tax of $12,000. The company is liable for total State contributions of $8,000 for such year. The due date of the company's Federal return is January 31, 1956, no extension of time for filing the return having been granted. The contributions are not paid until February 1, 1956. If the contributions had been paid on or before January 31, 1956, the entire amount could have been credited against the tax (such amount not exceeding 90 percent of the Federal tax of $12,000). Since the contributions were paid after January 31, 1956, the M Company is entitled to a credit of 90 percent of the amount of the contributions ($8,000), or $7,200, the net liability for Federal tax being $4,800 ($12,000 minus $7,200).

Example (2). The facts are the same as in example (1), except that the M Company is liable for and pays total State contributions of $12,000, instead of $8,000. If the contributions had been paid on or before January 31, 1956, the amount allowable as credit would have been $10,800 (90 percent of the Federal tax of $12,000). Since the contributions were paid after January 31, 1956, the M Company is entitled to a credit of 90 percent of $10,800, or $9,720, the net liability for Federal tax being $2,280 ($12,000 minus $9,720).

Example (3). The Federal return of the R Company for the calendar year 1955 discloses a total tax of $10,000. The company is liable for total State contributions of $9,000 for such year. The due date of the company's Federal return is January 31, 1956, no extension of time for filing the return having been granted. The R Company pays $8,000 of the total State contributions on or before such date, and the remaining $1,000 on February 1, 1956. If the $1,000 had been paid on or before January 31, 1956, that amount could have been credited against the tax (such amount plus the $8,000 paid on or before January 31, 1956, not exceeding 90 percent of the Federal tax of $10,000). Since the $1,000 was paid after January 31, 1956, the R Company is entitled to a credit of 90 percent of this amount or $900, plus the credit of $8,000 allowable for the contributions paid on or before January 31, 1956. The net liability for Federal tax is thus $1,100 ($10,000 minus $8,900).

(4) Amount of credit allowable when contributions are paid to wrong State. Contributions for the taxable year paid into a State unemployment fund which are required under the unemployment compensation law of that State, but which are paid with respect to remuneration on the basis of which the taxpayer had, prior to such payment, erroneously paid an amount as contributions under another unemployment compensation law, shall be deemed for purposes of the credit to have been paid at the time of the erroneous payment. If, by reason of such other law, the taxpayer was entitled to cease paying contributions for such taxable year with respect to services subject to such other law, the payment into the proper fund shall be deemed for purposes of credit to have been made on the date the Federal return for such year was actually filed by the taxpayer under § 31.6011 (a) (3) in Subpart G of this part.

Example. Employer N, whose Federal return for the calendar year 1955 discloses a total tax of $1,000, employs individuals in State X and State Y during the calendar year 1955. N assumes in good faith that the services of his employees are covered by the unemployment compensation law of State Y, and pays as contributions to State Y the amount of $900 based upon the remuneration of the employees. All of the services were in fact covered by the unemployment compensation law of State X, and none by the law of State Y. The payment to State Y was made on January 31, 1956. When the error was discovered thereafter, N paid to State X contributions in the amount of $900 based upon such remuneration. Since the contributions were paid to State Y on January 31, 1956, the contributions to State X are, for purposes of the credit, deemed to have been paid on such date. N is entitled to a credit of $900 against the Federal tax of $1,000, the net liability for Federal tax being $100 ($1,000 minus $900).

§ 31.3302 (a)-2 Refund of State contributions. If, subsequent to the filing of the return, a refund is made by a State to the taxpayer of any part of his contribution credited against the tax, the taxpayer is required to advise the district director of the date and amount of such refund and the reason therefor, and to pay the tax, if any, due as a result of such refund, together with interest from the date when the tax was due.

§ 31.3302 (a)–3 Proof of credit under section 3302 (a). Credit against the tax for any calendar year for contributions paid into State unemployment funds shall not be allowed unless there is submitted to the district director:

(a) A certificate of the proper officer of each State (the laws of which required the contributions to be paid) showing, for the taxpayer:

(1) The total amount of contributions required to be paid under the State law with respect to such calendar year (exclusive of penalties and interest) which was actually paid on or before the date the Federal return is required to be filed; and

(2) The amounts and dates of such required payments (exclusive of penalties and interest) actually paid after the date the Federal return is required to be filed.

(b) A statement by the taxpayer that no part of any payment made by him into a State unemployment fund for such calendar year, which is claimed as a credit against the tax, was deducted or is to be deducted from the remuneration of individuals in his employ. Such statement shall contain or be verified by a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury.

(c) Such other or additional proof as the Commissioner or the district director may deem necessary to establish the right to the credit provided for under section 3302 (a).

SEC. 3302. Credits against tax. • • •

(b) Additional credit. In addition to the credit allowed under subsection (a), a taxpayer may credit against the tax imposed by section 3301 for any taxable year an amount, with respect to the unemployment compensation law of each State certified for the taxable year as provided in section 3303 (or with respect to any provisions thereof so certified), equal to the amount, if any, by which the contributions required to be paid by him with respect to the taxable year were less than the contributions such taxpayer would have been required to pay if throughout the taxable year he had been subject under such State law to the highest rate applied thereunder in the taxable year to any person having individuals in his employ, or to a rate of 2.7 percent, whichever rate is lower.

§ 31.3302 (b)–1 Additional credit against tax—(a) In general. In addition to the credit against the tax allowable for contributions actually paid to State unemployment funds (see § 31.3302 (a)–1), the taxpayer may be entitled to a credit under section 3302 (b). This additional credit is allowable to the taxpayer with respect to the amount of contributions which he is relieved from paying to an unemployment fund under the provisions of a State law which have been certified for the taxable year as provided in section 3303. Generally, an additional credit is available to an employer, if under the provisions of a State law which have been so certified he is permitted to pay contributions to such State for the taxable year, or portion thereof, at a rate which is both lower than the highest rate applied under such law in such year and lower than 2.7 percent. No additional credit is allowable except with respect to a State law certified by the Secretary of Labor for the taxable year as provided in section 3303 (or with respect to any provisions thereof so certified).

(b) Method of computing amount of additional credit allowable with respect to a State law—(1) Certification of a State law as a whole. In ascertaining the additional credit for any taxable year with respect to a particular State law which the Secretary of Labor certifies as a whole to the Secretary of the Treasury in accordance with the provisions of section 3303, the taxpayer must first compute the following amounts:

(i) The amount of contributions (whether or not with respect to employment as defined in section 3306 (c)) which the taxpayer would have been required to pay under the State law for such year if throughout the year he had been subject to the highest rate applied under such law in such year, or to a rate of 2.7 percent, whichever rate is lower.

(ii) The amount of contributions (whether or not with respect to employment as defined in section 3306 (c)) he was required to pay under the State law with respect to such year, whether or not paid.

The amount computed under subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph should then be subtracted from the amount computed under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph and the result will be the additional credit for the taxable year with respect to the law of that State.

Example. A employs individuals only in State X during the calendar year 1955. The unemployment compensation law of State X has been certified in its entirety to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Secretary of Labor for such year. The highest rate applied in such year under such State law to any taxpayer is 3 percent. However, A has obtained a rate of 1 percent under the law of such State and is required to pay his entire year's contributions at that rate. The amount of remuneration of A's employees subject to contributions under such State law is $25,000. The amount of wages paid by A during that year with respect to employment under the Federal law likewise is $25,000, the Federal tax at the 3 percent rate being $750. A's additional credit under section 3302 (b) is $425, computed as follows:

Remuneration subject to contributions	$25,000
Contributions at 2.7 percent rate	675
Less:
Contributions required to be paid at 1 percent rate	250
Additional credit to A	425

Since the 2.7 percent rate is less than the highest rate applied (3 percent), the 2.7 percent rate is used in computing the amount ($675) from which the amount of contributions required to be paid at the 1 percent rate ($250) is deducted in order to ascertain the additional credit ($425).

(2) Certification with respect to particular provisions of a State law. If the Secretary of Labor makes a certification to the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to particular provisions of a State law for any taxable year pursuant to section 3303, the additional credit of the taxpayer for such year with respect to such law shall be computed in such manner as the Commissioner shall determine.

(c) Amount of additional credit allowable to taxpayer with respect to more than one State law. If the taxpayer is entitled to additional credit with respect to more than one State law in any taxable year, the additional credit allowable with respect to each State law shall be computed separately (in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section) and the total additional credit allowable against the tax for such year shall be the aggregate of the additional credits allowable with respect to such State laws. For limitation on total credits, see § 31.3302 (c)–1.

§ 31.3302 (b)–2 Proof of additional credit under section 3302 (b). Additional credit under section 3302 (b) shall not be allowed against the tax for any calendar year unless there is submitted—

(a) To the Commissioner a certificate of the proper officer of each State (with respect to the law of which the additional credit is claimed) showing the highest rate of contributions applied under the State law in such calendar year to any person having individuals in his employ; and

(b) To the district director a certificate of the proper officer of each State (with respect to the law of which the additional credit is claimed) showing for the taxpayer—

(1) The total remuneration with respect to which contributions were required to be paid by the taxpayer under the State law with respect to such calendar year; and

(2) The rate of contributions applied to the taxpayer under the State law with respect to such calendar year.

If under the law of such State different rates of contributions were applied to the taxpayer during particular periods of such calendar year, the certificate shall set forth the information called for in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph with respect to each such period.

(c) Such other or additional proof as the Commissioner or the district director may deem necessary to establish the right to the additional credit provided for under section 3302 (b).

SEC. 3302. Credits against tax. • • •

(c) Limit on total credits. (1) The total credits allowed to a taxpayer under this section shall not exceed 90 percent of the tax against which such credits are allowable.

(2) If an advance or advances have been made to the unemployment account of a State under title XII of the Social Security Act, and if any balance of such advance or advances has not been returned to the Federal unemployment account as provided in that title before December 1 of the taxable year, then the total credits (after other reductions under this section) otherwise allowable under this section for such taxable year in the case of a taxpayer subject to the unemployment compensation law of such State shall be reduced—

(A) In the case of a taxable year beginning with the fourth consecutive January 1 on which such a balance of unreturned advances existed, by 5 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during such taxable year which are attributable to such State; and

(B) In the case of any succeeding taxable year beginning with a consecutive January 1 on which such a balance of unreturned advances existed, by an additional 5 percent, for each such succeeding taxable year, of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during such taxable year which are attributable to such State.

For purposes of this paragraph, wages shall be attributable to a particular State if they are subject to the unemployment compensation law of the State, or (if not subject to the unemployment compensation law of any State) if they are determined (under rules or regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate) to be attributable to such State.

§ 31.3302 (c)–1 Limit on total credits—(a) Ninety percent limitation on credits against tax. The aggregate of the credit under section 3302 (a) and the additional credit under section 3302 (b) shall not exceed 90 percent of the tax against which credit is taken.

(b) Reduction of amount of total credit otherwise allowable. (1) Section 3302 (c) (2) provides for a reduction, under certain circumstances, of the amount of the total credits allowable under section 3302 (a), (b), and (c) (1). If any balance of an advance or advances made under title XII of the Social Security Act to the unemployment account of a State remains unpaid on January 1 of 4 consecutive taxable years, the total credits which would be allowable under section 3302 (without regard to the provisions of section 3302 (c) (2)) to a taxpayer subject to the unemployment compensation law of such State shall be reduced for the taxable year beginning with the fourth consecutive January 1, unless prior to December 1 of that taxable year the total amount of any advance or advances made to the account of such State has been fully repaid. The reduction in the total credits allowable under section 3302 (without regard to the provisions of section 3302 (c) (2)) for the taxable year beginning with the fourth consecutive January 1 shall be 5 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during such taxable year which are attributable to such State. In the case of any succeeding taxable year beginning with a consecutive January 1 on which such a balance of an unreturned advance or advances exists, the total credits which would be allowable (without regard to the provisions of section 3302 (c) (2)) shall be reduced unless prior to December 1 of such succeeding taxable year the total amount of any advance or advances made to the account of the State has been fully repaid. The reduction for each such succeeding taxable year beginning with a consecutive January 1 on which such a balance exists shall be a percentage of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by the taxpayer during such succeeding taxable year which are attributable to such State. The percentage reduction for any such succeeding taxable year shall be the percentage reduction for the immediately preceding taxable year plus 5 percent.

(2) The computation of the percentage reduction referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). If an advance is made, under title XII of the Social Security Act, to the unemployment account of State X in 1955 and if such advance is not fully returned before December 1, 1959, a balance of an advance will remain unreturned on January 1 of each of 4 consecutive taxable years (1956 through 1959), and will remain unreturned on December 1, 1959. In such event, the total credits which would be allowable under section 3302 (without regard to section 3302 (c) (2)) will be reduced for the taxable year 1959 in the case of any taxpayer who during such year is subject to the unemployment compensation law of State X. The reduction will be 5 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during 1959 which are attributable to State X.

Example (2). If an advance made in 1955 to the unemployment account of State Y is fully returned in 1956 but an advance made to the account of such State in 1956 is not fully returned before December 1, 1959, a reduction of 5 percent (as in example (1)) will be imposed for the taxable year 1959 because a balance of advances will remain unreturned on January 1 of each of 4 consecutive taxable years (1956 through 1959) and will remain unreturned on December 1, 1959. If such a balance also exists on January 1, 1960, and all advances made before December 1, 1960, to the unemployment account of State Y are not fully returned before December 1, 1960, the total credits will be reduced for the taxable year 1960. The reduction in the total credits for the taxable year 1960 in the case of any taxpayer who during such year is subject to the unemployment compensation law of State Y will be 10 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during 1960 which are attributable to State Y. If such a balance also exists on January 1, 1961, and if all advances made before December 1, 1961, to the unemployment account of State Y are not fully returned before December 1, 1961, the total credits will be reduced for the taxable year 1961. The reduction in the total credits for the taxable year 1961 in the case of any taxpayer who during such year is subject to the unemployment compensation law of State Y will be 15 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during 1961 which are attributable to State Y.

(3) For purposes of section 3302 (c) (2), wages are attributable to a particular State if they are subject to the unemployment compensation law of the State. If wages are not subject to the unemployment compensation law of any State, the determination as to whether such wages, or any portion thereof, are attributable to the particular State with respect to which the reduction in total credits is imposed shall be made in accordance with rules prescribed by the Commissioner.

SEC. 3303. Conditions of additional credit allowance—(a) State standards. A taxpayer shall be allowed an additional credit under section 3302 (b) with respect to any reduced rate of contributions permitted by a State law, only if the Secretary of Labor finds that under such law—

(1) No reduced rate of contributions to a pooled fund or to a partially pooled account is permitted to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ except on the basis of his (or their) experience with respect to unemployment or other factors bearing a direct relation to unemployment risk during not less than the 3 consecutive years immediately preceding the computation date;

(2) No reduced rate of contributions to a guaranteed employment account is permitted to a person (or a group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ unless—

(A) The guaranty of remuneration was fulfilled in the year preceding the computation date; and

(B) The balance of such account amounts to not less than 2½ percent of that part of the payroll or payrolls for the 3 years preceding the computation date by which contributions to such account were measured; and

(C) Such contributions were payable to such account with respect to 3 years preceding the computation date;

(3) No reduced rate of contributions to a reserve account is permitted to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ unless—

(A) Compensation has been payable from such account throughout the year preceding the computation date, and

(B) The balance of such account amounts to not less than five times the largest amount of compensation paid from such account within any 1 of the 3 years preceding such date, and

(C) The balance of such account amounts to not less than 2½ percent of that part of the payroll or payrolls for the 3 years preceding such date by which contributions to such account were measured, and

(D) Such contributions were payable to such account with respect to the 3 years preceding the computation date.

For any person (or group of persons) who has (or have) not been subject to the State law for a period of time sufficient to compute the reduced rates permitted by paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this subsection on a 3-year basis, the period of time required may be reduced to the amount of time the person (or group of persons) has (or have) had experience under or has (or have) been subject to the State law, whichever is appropriate, but in no case less than 1 year immediately preceding the computation date.

[Sec. 3303 (a) as amended by sec. 2, Act of Sept. 1, 1954, 68 Stat. 1130]

(b) Certification by the Secretary of Labor with respect to additional credit allowance. (1) On December 31 in each taxable year, the Secretary of Labor shall certify to the Secretary of the law of each State (certified with respect to such year by the Secretary of Labor as provided in section 3304) with respect to which he finds that reduced rates of contributions were allowable with respect to such taxable year only in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a).

(2) If the Secretary of Labor finds that under the law of a single State (certified by the Secretary of Labor as provided in section 3304) more than one type of fund or account is maintained, and reduced rates of contributions to more than one type of fund or account were allowable with respect to any taxable year, and one or more of such reduced rates were allowable under conditions not fulfilling the requirements of subsection (a), the Secretary of Labor shall, on December 31 of such taxable year, certify to the Secretary only those provisions of the State law pursuant to which reduced rates of contributions were allowable with respect to such taxable year under conditions fulfilling the requirements of subsection (a), and shall, in connection therewith, designate the kind of fund or account, as defined in subsection (c), established by the provisions so certified. If the Secretary of Labor finds that a part of any reduced rate of contributions payable under such law or under such provisions is required to be paid into one fund or account and a part into another fund or account, the Secretary of Labor shall make such certification pursuant to this paragraph as he finds will assure the allowance of additional credits only with respect to that part of the reduced rate of contributions which is allowed under provisions which do fulfill the requirements of subsection (a).

(3) The Secretary of Labor shall, within 30 days after any State law is submitted to him for such purpose, certify to the State agency his findings with respect to reduced rates of contributions to a type of fund or account, as defined in subsection (c), which are allowable under such State law only in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a). After making such findings, the Secretary of Labor shall not withhold his certification to the Secretary of such State law, or of the provisions thereof with respect to which such findings were made, for any taxable year pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) unless, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency, the Secretary of Labor finds the State law no longer contains the provisions specified in subsection (a) or the State has, with respect to such taxable year, failed to comply substantially with any such provision.

(c) Definitions. As used in this section—

(1) Reserve account. The term "reserve account" means a separate account in an unemployment fund, maintained with respect to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ, from which account, unless such account is exhausted, is paid all and only compensation payable on the basis of services performed for such person (or for one or more of the persons comprising the group).

(2) Pooled fund. The term "pooled fund" means an unemployment fund or any part thereof (other than a reserve account or a guaranteed employment account) into which the total contributions of persons contributing thereto are payable, in which all contributions are mingled and undivided, and from which compensation is payable to all individuals eligible for compensation from such fund.

(3) Partially pooled account. The term "partially pooled account" means a part of an unemployment fund in which part of the fund all contributions thereto are mingled and undivided, and from which part of the fund compensation is payable only to individuals to whom compensation would be payable from a reserve account or from a guaranteed employment account but for the exhaustion or termination of such reserve account or of such guaranteed employment account. Payments from a reserve account or guaranteed employment account into a partially pooled account shall not be construed to be inconsistent with the provisions of paragraph (1) or (4).

(4) Guaranteed employment account. The term "guaranteed employment account" means a separate account, in an unemployment fund, maintained with respect to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ who, in accordance with the provisions of the State law or of a plan thereunder approved by the State agency,

(A) Guarantees in advance at least 30 hours of work, for which remuneration will be paid at not less than stated rates, for each of 40 weeks (or if more, 1 weekly hour may be deducted for each added week guaranteed) in a year, to all the individuals who are in his (or their) employ in, and who continue to be available for suitable work in, one or more distinct establishments, except that any such individual's guaranty may commence after a probationary period (included within the 11 or less consecutive weeks immediately following the first week in which the individual renders services), and

(B) Gives security or assurance, satisfactory to the State agency, for the fulfillment of such guaranties, from which account, unless such account is exhausted or terminated, is paid all and only compensation, payable on the basis of services performed for such person (or for one or more of the persons comprising the group), to any such individual whose guaranteed remuneration has not been paid (either pursuant to the guaranty or from the security or assurance provided for the fulfillment of the guaranty), or whose guaranty is not renewed and who is otherwise eligible for compensation under the State law.

(5) Year. The term "year" means any 12 consecutive calendar months.

(6) Balance. The term "balance", with respect to a reserve account or a guaranteed employment account, means the amount standing to the credit of the account as of the computation date; except that, if subsequent to January 1, 1940, any moneys have been paid into or credited to such account other than payments thereto by persons having individuals in their employ, such term shall mean the amount in such account as of the computation date less the total of such other moneys paid into or credited to such account subsequent to January 1, 1940.

(7) Computation date. The term "computation date" means the date, occuring at least once in each calendar year and within 27 weeks prior to the effective date of new rates of contributions, as of which such rates are computed.

(8) Reduced rate. The term "reduced rate" means a rate of contributions lower than the standard rate applicable under the State law, and the term "standard rate" means the rate on the basis of which variations therefrom are computed.

(d) Voluntary contributions. A State law may, without being deemed to violate the standards set forth in subsection (a), permit voluntary contributions to be used in the computation of reduced rates if such contributions are paid prior to the expiration of 120 days after the beginning of the year for which such rates are effective.

§ 31.3304 Statutory provisions; approval of State laws.

SEC. 3304. Approval of State laws—(a) Requirements. The Secretary of Labor shall approve any State law submitted to him, within 30 days of such submission, which he finds provides that—

(1) All compensation is to be paid through public employment offices or such other agencies as the Secretary of Labor may approve;

(2) No compensation shall be payable with respect to any day of unemployment occurring within 2 years after the first day of the first period with respect to which contributions are required;

(3) All money received in the unemployment fund shall (except for refunds of sums erroneously paid into such fund and except for refunds paid in accordance with the provisions of section 3305 (b)) immediately upon such receipt be paid over to the Secretary to the credit of the Unemployment Trust Fund established by section 904 of the Social Security Act (49 Stat. 640; 52 Stat. 1104, 1105; 42 U. S. C. 1104);

(4) All money withdrawn from the unemployment fund of the State shall be used solely in the payment of unemployment compensation, exclusive of expenses of administration, and for refunds of sums erroneously paid into such fund and refunds paid in accordance with the provisions of section 3305 (b); except that—

(A) An amount equal to the amount of employee payments into the unemployment fund of a State may be used in the payment of cash benefits to individuals with respect to their disability, exclusive of expenses of administration; and

(B) The amounts specified by section 903 (c) (2) of the Social Security Act may, subject to the conditions prescribed in such section, be used for expenses incurred by the State for administration of its unemployment compensation law and public employment offices;

(5) Compensation shall not be denied in such State to any otherwise eligible individual for refusing to accept new work under any of the following conditions:

(A) If the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute;

(B) If the wages, hours, or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality;

(C) If as a condition of being employed the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization;

(6) All the rights, privileges, or immunities conferred by such law or by acts done pursuant thereto shall exist subject to the power of the legislature to amend or repeal such law at any time.

(b) Notification. The Secretary of Labor shall, upon approving such law, notify the governor of the State of his approval.

(c) Certification. On December 31 of each taxable year the Secretary of Labor shall certify to the Secretary each State whose law he has previously approved, except that he shall not certify any State which, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency, the Secretary of Labor finds has amended its law so that it no longer contains the provisions specified in subsection (a) or has with respect to such taxable year failed to comply substantially with any such provision and such finding has become effective. Such finding shall become effective on the 90th day after the governor of the State has been notified thereof, unless the State has before such 90th day so amended its law that it will comply substantially with the Secretary of Labor's interpretation of the provision of subsection (a), in which event such finding shall not become effective. No finding of a failure to comply substantially with the provision in State law specified in paragraph (5) of subsection (a) shall be based on an application or interpretation of State law with respect to which further administrative or judicial review is provided for under the laws of the State.

(d) Notice of Noncertification. If, at any time during the taxable year, the Secretary of Labor has reason to believe that a State whose law he has previously approved may not be certified under subsection (c), he shall promptly so notify the governor of such State.

§ 31.3305 Statutory provisions; applicability of State law.

SEC. 3305. Applicability of State law—(a) Interstate and foreign commerce. No person required under a State law to make payments to an unemployment fund shall be relieved from compliance therewith on the ground that he is engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, or that the State law does not distinguish between employees engaged in interstate or foreign commerce and those engaged in intrastate commerce.

(b) Federal instrumentalities in general. The legislature of any State may require any instrumentality of the United States (except such as are (1) wholly owned by the United States, or (2) exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law), and the individuals in its employ, to make contributions to an unemployment fund under a State unemployment compensation law approved by the Secretary of Labor under section 3304 and (except as provided in section 5240 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (12 U. S. C. 484), and as modified by subsection (c)) to comply otherwise with such law. The permission granted in this subsection shall apply (A) only to the extent that no discrimination is made against such instrumentality, so that if the rate of contribution is uniform upon all other persons subject to such law on account of having individuals in their employ, and upon all employees of such persons, respectively, the contributions required of such instrumentality or the individuals in its employ shall not be at a greater rate than is required of such other persons and such employees, and if the rates are determined separately for different persons or classes of persons having individuals in their employ or for different classes of employees, the determination shall be based solely upon unemployment experience and other factors bearing a direct relation to unemployment risk, and (B) only if such State law makes provision for the refund of any contributions required under such law from an instrumentality of the United States or its employees for any year in the event said State is not certified by the Secretary of Labor under section 3304 with respect to such year.

(c) National banks. Nothing contained in section 5240 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (12 U. S. C. 484), shall prevent any State from requiring any national banking association to render returns and reports relative to the association's employees, their remuneration and services, to the same extent that other persons are required to render like returns and reports under a State law requiring contributions to an unemployment fund. The Comptroller of the Currency shall, upon receipt of a copy of any such return or report of a national banking association from, and upon request of, any duly authorized official, body, or commission of a State, cause an examination of the correctness of such return or report to be made at the time of the next succeeding examination of such association, and shall thereupon transmit to such official, body, or commission a complete statement of his findings respecting the accuracy of such returns or reports.

(d) Federal property. No person shall be relieved from compliance with a State unemployment compensation law on the ground that services were performed on land or premises owned, held, or possessed by the United States, and any State shall have full jurisdiction and power to enforce the provisions of such law to the same extent and with the same effect as though such place were not owned, held, or possessed by the United States.

(e) Bonneville Power Administrator. [Repealed, effective with respect to services performed after 1954, by sec. 4 (c), Act of Sept. 1, 1954, 68 Stat. 1135]

(f) American vessels. The legislature of any State in which a person maintains the operating office, from which the operations of an American vessel operating on navigable waters within or within and without the United States are ordinarily and regularly supervised, managed, directed and controlled, may require such person and the officers and members of the crew of such vessel to make contributions to its unemployment fund under its State unemployment compensation law approved by the Secretary of Labor under section 3304 and otherwise to comply with its unemployment compensation law with respect to the service performed by an officer or member of the crew on or in connection with such vessel to the same extent and with the same effect as though such service was performed entirely within such State. Such person and the officers and members of the crew of such vessel shall not be required to make contributions, with respect to such service, to the unemployment fund of any other State. The permission granted by this subsection is subject to the condition that such service shall be treated, for purposes of wage credits given employees, like other service subject to such State unemployment compensation law performed for such person in such State, and also subject to the same limitation, with respect to contributions required from such person and from the officers and members of the crew of such vessel, as is imposed by the second sentence (other than clause (B) thereof) of subsection (b) with respect to contributions required from instrumentalities of the United States and from individuals in their employ.

(g) Vessels operated by general agents of United States. The permission granted by subsection (f) shall apply in the same manner and under the same conditions (including the obligation to comply with all requirements of State unemployment compensation laws) to general agents of the Secretary of Commerce with respect to service performed on or after July 1, 1953, by officers and members of the crew on or in connection with American vessels—

(1) Owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States, and

(2) Whose business is conducted by such general agents,

As to any such vessel, the State permitted to require contributions on account of such service shall be the State to which the general agent would make contributions if the vessel were operated for his own account. Such general agents are designated, for this purpose, instrumentalities of the United States not wholly owned by it and shall not be exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301. The permission granted by this subsection is subject to the same conditions and limitations as are imposed in subsection (f), except that clause (B) of the second sentence of subsection (b) shall apply.

(h) Requirement by State of contributions. Any State may, as to service performed on or after July 1, 1953, and on account of which contributions are made pursuant to subsection (g)—

(1) Require contributions from persons performing such service under its unemployment compensation law or temporary disability insurance law administered in connection therewith, and

(2) Require general agents of the Secretary of Commerce to make contributions under such temporary disability insurance law and to make such deductions from wages or remuneration as are required by such unemployment compensation or temporary disability insurance law.

(i) General agent as legal entity. Each general agent of the Secretary of Commerce making contributions pursuant to subsection (g) or (h) shall, for purposes of such subsections, be considered a legal entity in his capacity as an instrumentality of the United States, separate and distinct from his identity as a person employing individuals on his own account.

SEC. 3306. Definitions—(a) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" does not include any person unless on each of some 20 days during the taxable year, each day being in a different calendar week, the total number of individuals who were employed by him in employment for some portion of the day (whether or not at the same moment of time) was 4 or more.

[Sec. 3306 (a) as amended by sec. 1, Act of Sept. 1, 1954, 68 Stat. 1130, effective with respect to services performed after December 31, 1955. With respect to services performed before 1956, sec. 3306 (a), as set forth below, is applicable.

SEC. 3306. Definitions—(a) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" does not include any person unless on each of some 20 days during the taxable year, each day being in a different calendar week, the total number of individuals who were employed by him in employment for some portion of the day (whether or not at the same moment of time) was 8 or more.]

§ 31.3306 (a)–1 Who are employers—(a) Definition—(1) For 1956 and subsequent calendar years. Every person who employs 4 or more employees in employment (within the meaning of section 3306 (c) and (d)) on a total of 20 or more calendar days during any calendar year after 1955, each such day being in a different calendar week, is with respect to such year an employer subject to the tax.

(2) For calendar year 1955. Every person who employs 8 or more employees in employment (within the meaning of section 3306 (c) and (d)) on a total of 20 or more calendar days during the calendar year 1955, each such day being in a different calendar week, is with respect to such year an employer subject to the tax.

(3) General agents of the Secretary of Commerce. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which an employee who performs services as an officer or member of the crew of an American vessel (i) which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and (ii) whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce shall be deemed to be performing services for such general agent rather than for the United States, see § 31.3306 (n)–1.

(b) The several weeks in each of which occurs a day on which the prescribed number of employees are employed need not be consecutive weeks. It is not necessary that the employees so employed be the same individuals; they may be different individuals on each day. Neither is it necessary that the prescribed number of employees be employed at the same moment of time or for any particular length of time or on any particular basis of compensation. It is sufficient if the total number of employees employed during the 24 hours of a calendar day is 4 or more (8 or more for the calendar year 1955).

(c) In determining whether a person employs a sufficient number of employees to be an employer subject to the tax, each employee is counted with respect to services which constitute employment as defined in section 3306 (c) (see § 31.3306 (c)–2). No employee is counted with respect to services which do not constitute employment as so defined. See, however, paragraph (d) of this section.

(d) The provisions of paragraph (c) of this section are subject to the provisions of section 3306 (d), relating to services which do not constitute employment but which are deemed to be employment, and relating to services which constitute employment but which are deemed not to be employment (see § 31.3306 (d)–1). For example, if the services of an employee during a pay period are deemed to be employment under section 3306 (d), even though a portion thereof does not constitute employment under section 3306 (c), the employee is counted with respect to all services during the pay period. On the other hand, if the services of an employee during a pay period are deemed not to be employment, even though a portion thereof constitutes employment, the employee is not counted with respect to any services during the pay period.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

§ 31.3306 (b)–1 Wages—(a) Applicable law and regulations—(1) Remuneration paid after 1954. Whether remuneration paid after 1954 for employment performed after 1938 constitutes wages is determined under section 3306 (b). Accordingly, only remuneration paid after 1954 for employment performed after 1938 is covered by this section of the regulations and by the sections relating to the statutory exclusions from wages (§§ 31.3306 (b) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1).

(2) Remuneration paid after 1939 and before 1955. Whether remuneration paid after 1939 and before 1955 for employment performed after 1938 constitutes wages shall be determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of law and of Regulations 107; 26 CFR (1939) Part 403.

(3) Remuneration paid in 1939. Whether remuneration paid in 1939 for employment performed after 1938 constitutes wages shall be determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of law and of Regulations 90; 26 CFR (1939) Part 400.

(b) The term "wages" means all remuneration for employment unless specifically excepted under section 3306 (b) (see §§ 31.3306 (b) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive) or paragraph (j) of this section.

(c) The name by which the remuneration for employment is designated is immaterial. Thus, salaries, fees, bonuses, and commissions are wages if paid as compensation for employment.

(d) The basis upon which the remuneration is paid is immaterial in determining whether the remuneration constitutes wages. Thus, it may be paid on the basis of piecework or a percentage of profits; and it may be paid hourly, daily, weekly, monthly, or annually.

(e) Except in the case of remuneration paid for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business (see § 31.3306 (b) (7)–1), the medium in which the remuneration is paid is also immaterial. It may be paid in cash or in something other than cash, as for example, goods, lodging, food, or clothing. Remuneration paid in items other than cash shall be computed on the basis of the fair value of such items at the time of payment.

(f) Ordinarily, facilities or privileges (such as entertainment, medical services, or so-called "courtesy" discounts on purchases), furnished or offered by an employer to his employees generally, are not considered as remuneration for employment if such facilities or privileges are of relatively small value and are offered or furnished by the employer merely as a means of promoting the health, good will, contentment, or efficiency of his employees. The term "facilities or privileges", however, does not ordinarily include the value of meals or lodging furnished, for example, to restaurant or hotel employees, or to seamen or other employees aboard vessels, since generally these items constitute an appreciable part of the total remuneration of such employees.

(g) Amounts of so-called "vacation allowances" paid to an employee constitute wages. Thus, the salary of an employee on vacation, paid notwithstanding his absence from work, constitutes wages.

(h) Amounts paid specifically—either as advances or reimbursements—for traveling or other bona fide ordinary and necessary expenses incurred or reasonably expected to be incurred in the business of the employer are not wages. Traveling and other reimbursed expenses must be identified either by making a separate payment or by specifically indicating the separate amounts where both wages and expense allowances are combined in a single payment.

(i) Remuneration paid by an employer to an individual for employment, unless such remuneration is specifically excepted under section 3306 (b), constitutes wages even though at the time paid the individual is no longer an employee.

Example. A is employed by B, an employer, during the month of June 1955 in employment and is entitled to receive remuneration of $100 for the services performed for B during the month. A leaves the employ of B at the close of business on June 30, 1955. On July 15, 1955 (when A is no longer an employee of B), B pays A the remuneration of $100 which was earned for the services performed in June. The $100 is wages, and the tax is payable with respect thereto.

(j) In addition to the exclusions specified in §§ 31.3306 (b) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive, the following types of payments are excluded from wages:

(1) Remuneration for services which do not constitute employment under section 3306 (c) (§§ 31.3306 (c) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, inclusive).

(2) Remuneration for services which are deemed not to be employment under section 3306 (d) (§ 31.3306 (d)–1).

(3) Tips or gratuities paid directly to an employee by a customer of an employer, and not accounted for by the employee to the employer.

(k) For provisions relating to the treatment of deductions from remuneration as payments of remuneration, see § 31.3307–1.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(1) That part of the remuneration which, after remuneration (other than remuneration referred to in the succeeding paragraphs of this subsection) equal to $3,000 with respect to employment has been paid to an individual by an employer during any calendar year, is paid to such individual by such employer during such calendar year. If an employer (hereinafter referred to as successor employer) during any calendar year acquires substantially all the property used in a trade or business of another employer (hereinafter referred to as a predecessor), or used in a separate unit of a trade or business of a predecessor, and immediately after the acquisition employs in his trade or business an individual who immediately prior to the acquisition was employed in the trade or business of such predecessor, then, for the purpose of determining whether the successor employer has paid remuneration (other than remuneration referred to in the succeeding paragraphs of this subsection) with respect to employment equal to $3,000 to such individual during such calendar year, any remuneration (other than remuneration referred to in the succeeding paragraphs of this subsection) with respect to employment paid (or considered under this paragraph as having been paid) to such individual by such predecessor during such calendar year and prior to such acquisition shall be considered as having been paid by such successor employer;

§ 31.3306 (b) (1)–1 $3,000 limitation—(a) In general. (1) The term "wages" does not include that part of the remuneration paid within any calendar year by an employer to an employee which exceeds the first $3,000 of remuneration (exclusive of remuneration excepted from wages in accordance with § 31.3306 (b)–1 (j) or §§ 31.3306 (b) (2)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive), paid within such calendar year by such employer to such employee for employment performed for him at any time after 1938.

(2) The $3,000 limitation applies only if the remuneration paid during any one calendar year by an employer to the same employee for employment performed after 1938 exceeds $3,000. The limitation in such case relates to the amount of remuneration paid during any one calendar year for employment after 1938 and not to the amount of remuneration for employment performed in any one calendar year.

Example. Employer B, in 1955, pays employee A $2,500 on account of $3,000 due him for employment performed in 1955. In 1956 employer B pays employee A the balance of $500 due him for employment performed in the prior year (1955), and thereafter in 1956 also pays A $3,000 for employment performed in 1956. The $2,500 paid in 1955 is subject to tax in 1955. The balance of $500 paid in 1956 for employment during 1955 is subject to tax in 1956, as is also the first $2,500 paid of the $3,000 for employment during 1956 (this $500 for 1955 employment added to the first $2,500 paid for 1956 employment constitutes the maximum wages subject to the tax which could be paid in 1956 by B to A). The final $500 paid by B to A in 1956 is not included as wages and is not subject to the tax.

(3) If during a calendar year an employee is paid remuneration by more than one employer, the limitation of wages to the first $3,000 of remuneration paid applies, not to the aggregate remuneration paid by all employers with respect to employment performed after 1938, but instead to the remuneration paid during such calendar year by each employer with respect to employment performed after 1938. In such case the first $3,000 paid during the calendar year by each employer constitutes wages and is subject to the tax. In connection with the application of the $3,000 limitation, see also paragraph (b) of this section relating to the circumstances under which wages paid by a predecessor employer are deemed to be paid by his successor.

Example (1). During 1955 employer D pays to employee C a salary of $600 a month for employment performed for D during the first seven months of 1955, or total remuneration of $4,200. At the end of the fifth month C has been paid $3,000 by employer D, and only that part of his total remuneration from D constitutes wages subject to the tax. The $600 paid to employee C by employer D in the sixth month, and the like amount paid in the seventh month, are not included as wages and are not subject to the tax. At the end of the seventh month C leaves the employ of D and enters the employ of E. Employer E pays to C remuneration of $600 a month in each of the remaining five months of 1955, or total remuneration of $3,000. The entire $3,000 paid by E to employee C constitutes wages and is subject to the tax. Thus, the first $3,000 paid by employer D and the entire $3,000 paid by employer E constitute wages.

Example (2). During the calendar year 1955 F is simultaneously an officer (an employee) of the X Corporation, the Y Corporation, and the Z Corporation, each such corporation being an employer for such year. During such year F is paid a salary of $3,000 by each corporation. Each $3,000 paid to F by each of the corporations, X, Y, and Z (whether or not such corporations are related), constitutes wages and is subject to the tax.

(b) Wages paid by predecessor attributed to successor. (1) If an employer (hereinafter referred to as a successor) during any calendar year acquires substantially all the property used in a trade or business of another employer (hereinafter referred to as a predecessor), or used in a separate unit of a trade or business of a predecessor, and if immediately after the acquisition the successor employs in his trade or business an individual who immediately prior to the acquisition was employed in the trade or business of such predecessor, then, for purposes of the application of the $3,000 limitation set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, any remuneration (exclusive of remuneration excepted from wages in accordance with § 31.3306 (b)–1 (j) or §§ 31.3306 (b) (2)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive), with respect to employment paid (or considered under this provision as having been paid) to such individual by such predecessor during such calendar year and prior to such acquisition shall be considered as having been paid by such successor. Wages paid by a predecessor shall not be considered as having been paid by the successor unless both the predecessor and the successor are employers as defined in section 3306 (a) for the calendar year in which the acquisition occurs (see § 31.3306 (a)–1, relating to who are employers).

(2) The wages paid, or considered as having been paid, by a predecessor to an employee shall, for purposes of the $3,000 limitation, be treated as having been paid to such employee by a successor, if:

(i) The successor during a calendar year acquired substantially all the property used in a trade or business, or used in a separate unit of a trade or business, of the predecessor;

(ii) Such employee was employed in the trade or business of the predecessor immediately prior to the acquisition and is employed by the successor in his trade or business immediately after the acquisition; and

(iii) Such wages were paid during the calendar year in which the acquisition occurred and prior to such acquisition.

(3) The method of acquisition of the property is immaterial. The acquisition may occur as a consequence of a corporate merger or consolidation, the incorporation of a business by a sole proprietor or a partnership, the continuance without interruption of the business of a previously existing partnership by a new partnership or by a sole proprietor, or a purchase or any other transaction whereby substantially all the property used in a trade or business, or used in a separate unit of a trade or business, of one employer is acquired by another employer.

(4) Substantially all the property used in a separate unit of a trade or business may consist of substantially all the property used in the performance of an essential operation of the trade or business, or it may consist of substantially all the property used in a relatively self-sustaining entity which forms a part of the trade or business.

Example (1). The M Corporation which is engaged in the manufacture of automobiles, including the manufacture of automobile engines, discontinues the manufacture of the engines and transfers all the property used in such manufacturing operations to the N Company. The N Company is considered to have acquired a separate unit of the trade or business of the M Corporation, namely, its engine manufacturing unit.

Example (2). The R Corporation which is engaged in the operation of a chain of grocery stores transfers one of such stores to the S Company. The S Company is considered to have acquired a separate unit of the trade or business of the R Corporation.

(5) A successor may receive credit for wages paid to an employee by a predecessor only if immediately prior to the acquisition the employee was employed by the predecessor in his trade or business which was acquired by the successor and if immediately after the acquisition such employee is employed by the successor in his trade or business (whether or not in the same trade or business in which the acquired property is used). If the acquisition involves only a separate unit of a trade or business of the predecessor, the employee need not have been employed by the predecessor in that unit provided he was employed in the trade or business of which the acquired unit was a part.

Example. The Y Corporation in 1955 acquires all the property of the X Manufacturing Company and immediately after the acquisition employs in its trade or business employee A, who, immediately prior to the acquisition, was employed by the X Company. Both the Y Corporation and the X Company are employers, as defined in the Act, for the calendar year 1955. The X Company has in 1955 (the calendar year in which the acquisition occurs) and prior to the acquisition paid $2,000 of wages to A. The Y Corporation in 1955 pays to A remuneration with respect to employment of $2,000. Only $1,000 of such remuneration is considered to be wages. For purposes of the $3,000 limitation, the Y Corporation is credited with the $2,000 paid to A by the X Company. If, in the same calendar year, the property is acquired from the Y Corporation by the Z Company, an employer for such year, and A immediately after the the acquisition is employed by the Z Company in its trade or business, no part of the remuneration paid to A by the Z Company in the year of the acquisition will be considered to be wages. The Z Company will be credited with the remuneration paid to A by the Y Corporation and also with the wages paid to A by the X Company (considered for purposes of the application of the $3,000 limitation as having also been paid by the Y Corporation).

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(2) The amount of any payment (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) made to, or on behalf of, an employee or any of his dependents under a plan or system established by an employer which makes provision for his employees generally (or for his employees generally and their dependents) or for a class or classes of his employees (or for a class or classes of his employees and their dependents), on account of—

(A) Retirement, or

(B) Sickness or accident disability, or

(C) Medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability, or

(D) Death;

§ 31.3306 (b) (2)–1 Payments under employers' plans on account of retirement, sickness or accident disability, medical or hospitalization expenses, or death. (a) The term "wages" does not include the amount of any payment (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) made to, or on behalf of, an employee or any of his dependents under a plan or system established by an employer which makes provision for his employees generally (or for his employees generally and their dependents) or for a class or classes of his employees (or for a class or classes of his employees and their dependents), on account of:

(1) An employee's retirement,

(2) Sickness or accident disability of an employee or any of his dependents,

(3) Medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability of an employee or any of his dependents, or

(4) Death of an employee or any of his dependents.

(b) The plan or system established by an employer need not provide for payments on account of all of the specified items, but such plan or system may provide for any one or more of such items. Payments for any one or more of such items under a plan or system established by an employer solely for the dependents of his employees are not within this exclusion from wages.

(c) Dependents of an employee include the employee's husband or wife, children, and any other members of the employee's immediate family.

(d) It is immaterial for purposes of this exclusion whether the amount or possibility of such benefit payments is taken into consideration in fixing the amount of an employee's remuneration or whether such payments are required, expressly or impliedly, by the contract of service.

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(3) Any payment made to an employee (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) on account of retirement;

§ 31.3306 (b) (3)–1 Retirement payments. The term "wages" does not include any payment made by an employer to an employee (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) on account of the employee's retirement. Thus, payments made to an employee on account of his retirement are excluded from wages under this exception even though not made under a plan or system.

(4) Any payment on account of sickness or accident disability, or medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability, made by an employer to, or on behalf of, an employee after the expiration of 6 calendar months following the last calendar month in which the employee worked for such employer;

§ 31.3306 (b) (4)–1 Payments on account of sickness or accident disability, or medical or hospitalization expenses. The term "wages" does not include any payment made by an employer to, or on behalf of, an employee on account of the employee's sickness or accident disability or the medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with the employee's sickness or accident disability, if such payment is made after the expiration of 6 calendar months following the last calendar month in which such employee worked for such employer. Such payments are excluded from wages under this exception even though not made under a plan or system. If the employee does not actually perform services for the employer during the requisite period, the existence of the employer-employee relationship during that period is immaterial.

(5) Any payment made to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary—

(A) From or to a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust, or

(B) Under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6);

§ 31.3306 (b) (5)–1 Payments from or to certain tax-exempt trusts or under or to certain annuity plans. The term "wages" does not include—

(a) Any payment made by an employer, on behalf of an employee or his beneficiary, into a trust or annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6); or

(b) Any payment made to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary from a trust or under an annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6).

A payment made to an employee of a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) for services rendered as an employee of such trust and not as a beneficiary of the trust is not within this exclusion from wages.

(A) Of the tax imposed upon a employee under section 3101 (or the corresponding section of prior law), or

(B) Of any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law;

§ 31.3306 (b) (6)–1 Payment by an employer of employee tax under section 3101 or employee contributions under a State law. The term "wages" does not include any payment by an employer (without deduction from the remuneration of, or other reimbursement from, the employee) of either (a) the employee tax imposed by section 3101 or the corresponding section of prior law, or (b) any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law.

(7) Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash to an employee for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business;

§ 31.3306 (b) (7)–1 Payments other than in cash for service not in the course of employer's trade or business. The term "wages" does not include remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business. Cash remuneration includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute wages. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for other types of services does not come within this exclusion from wages. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which service not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute employment, see § 31.3306 (c) (3)–1.

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(8) Any payment (other than vacation or sick pay) made to an employee after the month in which he attains the age of 65, if he did not work for the employer in the period for which such payment is made.

§ 31.3306 (b) (8)–1 Payments to stand-by employees. The term "wages" does not include any payment (other than vacation or sick pay) made by an employer to an employee after the calendar month in which the employee attains age 65, if—

(a) Such employee does no work (other than being subject to call for the performance of work) for such employer in the period for which such payment is made; and

(b) The employer-employee relationship exists between the employer and employee throughout the period for which such payment is made.

Vacation or sick pay is not within this exclusion from wages. If the employee does any work for the employer in the period for which the payment is made, no remuneration paid by such employer to such employee with respect to such period is within this exclusion from wages. For example, if employee A, who attained the age of 65 in January 1955, is employed by the X Company on a standby basis and is paid $200 by the X Company for being subject to call during the month of February 1955 and an additional $25 for work performed for the X Company on one day in February 1955, then none of the $225 is excluded from wages under this exception.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means any service performed prior to 1955, which was employment for purposes of subchapter C of chapter 9 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 under the law applicable to the period in which such service was performed, and any service, of whatever nature, performed after 1954 by an employee for the person employing him, irrespective of the citizenship or residence of either, (A) within the United States, or (B) on or in connection with an American vessel under a contract of service which is entered into within the United States or during the performance of which the vessel touches at a port in the United States, if the employee is employed on and in connection with such vessel when outside the United States, except—

§ 31.3306 (c)–1 Employment; services performed before 1955. (a) Services performed after 1938 and before 1955 constitute employment under section 3306 (c) if such services were employment under the law applicable to the period in which they were performed.

(b) The tax applies with respect to remuneration paid by an employer after 1954 for services performed after 1938 and before 1955, as well as for services performed after 1954, to the extent that the remuneration and services constitute wages and employment. See §§ 31.3306 (b)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive, relating to wages.

(c) Determination of whether services performed after 1938 and before 1955 constitute employment shall be made in accordance with the provisions of law applicable to the period in which they were performed and of the regulations thereunder. The regulations applicable in determining whether services performed after 1938 and before 1955 constitute employment are as follows:

(1) Services performed in 1939—Regulations 90; 26 CFR (1939) Part 400.

(2) Services performed after 1939 and before 1955—Regulations 107; 26 CFR (1939) Part 403.

§ 31.3306 (c)–2 Employment; services performed after 1954—(a) In general. Whether services performed after 1954 constitute employment is determined under section 3306 (c). This section, and §§ 31.3306 (c)–3 to 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, inclusive, apply with respect only to services performed after 1954. (For provisions relating to the circumstances under which services which do not constitute employment are nevertheless deemed to be employment, and relating to the circumstances under which services which constitute employment are nevertheless deemed not to be employment, see § 31.3306 (d)–1. For provisions relating to services performed before 1955, see § 31.3306 (c)–1.)

(b) Services performed within the United States. (1) Services performed after 1954 within the United States, that is, within any of the several States, the District of Columbia, or the Territory of Alaska or Hawaii, by an employee for the person employing him, unless specifically excepted by section 3306 (c), constitute employment. Services performed outside the United States, that is, outside the several States, the District of Columbia, and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii (except certain services performed on or in connection with an American vessel—see paragraph (c) of this section), do not constitute employment.

(2) With respect to services performed within the United States, the place where the contract of service is entered into and the citizenship or residence of the employee or of the person employing him are immaterial. Thus, the employee and the person employing him may be citizens and residents of a foreign country and the contract of service may be entered into in a foreign country, and yet, if the employee under such contract actually performs services within the United States, there may be to that extent employement.

(c) Services performed outside the United States. (1) Services performed after 1954 by an employee for the person employing him "on or in connection with" an American vessel outside the United States constitute employment provided—

(i) The employee is also employed "on and in connection with" such vessel when outside the United States; and

(ii) The services are performed under a contract of service, between the employee and the person employing him, which is entered into within the United States, or during the performance of which the vessel touches at a port within the United States; and

(iii) The services are not excepted under section 3306 (c). (See particularly § 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, relating to fishing.)

(2) An employee performs services on and in connection with the vessel if he performs services on the vessel which are also in connection with the vessel. Services performed on the vessel as officers or members of the crew, or as employees of concessionaires, of the vessel, for example, are performed under such circumstances, since such services are also connected with the vessel. Services may be performed on the vessel, however, which have no connection with it, as in the case of services performed by an employee while on the vessel merely as a passenger in the general sense. For example, the services of a buyer in the employ of a department store while he is a passenger on a vessel are not in connection with the vessel.

(3) If services are performed by an employee "on and in connection with" an American vessel when outside the United States and the conditions in subparagraph (1) (ii) and (iii) of this paragraph are met, then the services of that employee performed on or in connection with the vessel constitute employment. The expression "on or in connection with" refers not only to services performed on the vessel but also to services connected with the vessel which are not actually performed on it (for example, shore services performed as officers or members of the crew, or as employees of concessionaires, of the vessel).

(4) Services performed by a member of the crew or other employee whose contract of service is not entered into within the United States, and during the performance of which the vessel does not touch at a port within the United States, do not constitute employment, notwithstanding services performed by other members of the crew or other employees on or in connection with the vessel may constitute employment.

(5) A vessel includes every description of watercraft, or other contrivance, used as a means of transportation on water. It does not include any type of aircraft.

(6) For definition of the term "American vessel", see § 31.3306 (m)–1.

(7) With respect to services performed outside the United States, the citizenship or residence of the employee is immaterial, and the citizenship or residence of the person employing him is material only in case it has a bearing in determining whether a vessel is an American vessel.

§ 31.3306 (c)–3 Employment; excepted services in general. (a) Services performed after 1954 by an employee for the person employing him do not constitute employment for purposes of the tax if they are specifically excepted by any of the numbered paragraphs of section 3306 (c). Services so excepted do not constitute employment for purposes of the tax even though they are performed within the United States or are performed outside the United States on or in connection with an American vessel. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which services which are excepted are nevertheless deemed to be employment, and relating to the circumstances under which services which are not excepted are nevertheless deemed not to be employment, see § 31.3306 (d)–1.

(b) The exception attaches to the services performed by the employee and not to the employee as an individual; that is, the exception applies only to the services rendered by the employee in an excepted class.

Example. A is an individual who is employed part time by B to perform services which constitute "agricultural labor" (see § 31.3306 (k)–1). A is also employed by C part time to perform services as a grocery clerk in a store owned by him. While A's services which constitute "agricultural labor" are excepted, the exception does not embrace the services performed by A as a grocery clerk in the employ of C and the latter services are not excepted from employment.

(c) This section, §§ 31.3306 (c) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, inclusive (relating to the several classes of excepted services), and § 31.3306 (d)–1 (relating to included and excluded services) apply with respect to services performed after 1954. For provisions relating to services performed before 1955, see § 31.3306 (c)–1.

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means • • • any service, of whatever nature, performed • • • by an employee for the person employing him • • • except—

(1) Agricultural labor (as defined in subsection (k));

§ 31.3306 (c) (1)–1 Agricultural labor. Services performed by an employee for the person employing him which constitute "agricultural labor" as defined in section 3306 (k) are excepted from employment. For provisions relating to the definition of the term "agricultural labor", see § 31.3306 (k)–1.

(2) Domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority;

§ 31.3306 (c) (2)–1 Domestic service—(a) In a private home. (1) Services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about a private home of the person by whom he is employed are excepted from employment. A private home is a fixed place of abode of an individual or family. A separate and distinct dwelling unit maintained by an individual in an apartment house, hotel, or other similar establishment may constitute a private home. If a dwelling house is used primarily as a boarding or lodging house for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to the public as a business enterprise, it is not a private home and the services performed therein are not excepted.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about a private home include services performed by cooks, waiters, butlers, housekeepers, governesses, maids, valets, baby sitters, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, caretakers, handymen, gardeners, footmen, grooms, and chauffeurs of automobile for family use.

(b) In a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. (1) Services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or of a local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority by which he is employed are excepted for employment. A local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority does not include an alumni club or chapter. If the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority is used primarily for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to students or the public as a business enterprise, the services performed therein are not within the exception.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority include services rendered by cooks, waiters, butlers, maids, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, handymen, gardeners, housekeepers, and housemothers.

(c) Services not excepted. Services not of a household nature, such as services performed as a private secretary, tutor, or librarian, even though performed in the employer's private home or in a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority, are not within the exception. Services of a household nature are not within the exception if performed in or about rooming or lodging houses, boarding houses, clubs (except local college clubs, hotels, hospitals, eleemosynary institutions, or commercial offices or establishments.

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means • • • any service, of whatever nature, performed • • • by an employee for the person employing him • • • except—

(3) Service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(A) On each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business, or

(B) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter;

§ 31.3306 (c) (3)–1 Services not in the course of employer's trade or business. (a) Services not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed by an employee for an employer in a calendar quarter are excepted from employment unless—

(1) The cash remuneration paid for such services performed by the employee for the employer in the calendar quarter is $50 or more; and

(2) Such employee is regularly employed in the calendar quarter by such employer to perform such services.

Unless the tests set forth in both subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are met, the services are excepted from employment.

(b) The term "services not in the course of the employer's trade or business" includes services that do not promote or advance the trade or business of the employer. Services performed for a corporation do not come within the exception.

(c) The test relating to cash remuneration of $50 or more is based on the remuneration earned during a calendar quarter rather than on the remuneration paid in a calendar quarter. However, for purposes of determining whether the test is met, it is also required that the remuneration be paid, although it is immaterial when the remuneration is paid. Furthermore, in determining whether $50 or more has been paid for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, only cash remuneration for such services shall be taken into account. The term "cash remuneration" includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any other medium, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, is disregarded in determining whether the cash-remuneration test is met.

(d) For purposes of this exception, an individual is deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(1) Such individual performs services not in the course of the employer's trade or business for such employer for some portion of the day on at least 24 days (whether or not consecutive) during such calendar quarter; or

(2) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph) by such employer in the performance of services not in the course of the employer's trade or business during the preceding calendar quarter (including the last calendar quarter of 1954).

(e) In determining whether an employee has performed services not in the course of the employer's trade or business on at least 24 days during a calendar quarter, there shall be counted as one day—

(1) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee actually performs such services; and

(2) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee does not perform services of the prescribed character but with respect to which cash remuneration is paid or payable to the employee for such services, such as a day on which the employee is sick or on vacation.

An employee who on a particular day reports for work and, at the direction of his employer, holds himself in readiness to perform services not in the course of the employer's trade or business shall be considered to be engaged in the actual performance of such services on that day. For purposes of this exception, a day is a period of 24 hours commencing at midnight and ending at midnight.

(f) For provisions relating to the exclusion from wages of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, see § 31.3306 (b) (7)–1.

(4) Service performed on or in connection with a vessel not an American vessel by an employee, if the employee is employed on and in connection with such vessel when outside the United States;

§ 31.3306 (c) (4)–1 Services on or in connection with a non-American vessel. (a) In order for services performed within the United States "on or in connection with" a vessel not an American vessel to be excepted from employment under section 3306 (c) (4), the services must be performed by an employee who is also employed "on and in connection with" the vessel when outside the United States.

(b) An employee performs services on and in connection with the vessel if he performs services on the vessel when outside the United States which are also in connection with the vessel. Services performed on the vessel outside the United States by employees as officers or members of the crew, or by employees of concessionaires, of the vessel, for example, are performed under such circumstances, since such services are also connected with the vessel. Services may be performed on the vessel, however, which have no connection with it, as in the case of services performed by an employee while on the vessel merely as a passenger in the general sense. For example, the services of a buyer in the employ of a department store while he is a passenger on a vessel are not in connection with the vessel.

(c) The expression "on or in connection with" refers not only to services performed on the vessel but also to services connected with the vessel which are not actually performed on it (for example, shore services performed as officers or members of the crew, or as employees of concessionaires, of the vessel).

(d) The citizenship or residence of the employee and the place where the contract of service is entered into are immaterial for purposes of this exception, and the citizenship or residence of the person employing him is material only in case it has a bearing in determining whether the vessel is an American vessel. For definitions of the terms "vessel" and "American vessel", see §§ 31.3306 (c)–2 (c) (5) and 31.3306 (m)–1, respectively.

(e) Since the only services performed outside the United States which constitute employment are those described in § 31.3306 (c)–2 (c) (relating to services performed outside the United States on or in connection with an American vessel), services performed outside the United States on or in connection with a vessel not an American vessel do not constitute employment in any event.

(5) Service performed by an individual in the employ of his son, daughter, or spouse, and service performed by a child under the age of 21 in the employ of his father or mother;

§ 31.3306 (c) (5)–1 Family employment. (a) Certain services are excepted from employment because of the existence of a family relationship between the employee and the individual employing him. The exceptions are as follows:

(1) Services performed by an individual in the employ of his or her spouse;

(2) Services performed by a father or mother in the employ of his or her son or daughter; and

(3) Services performed by a son or daughter under the age of 21 in the employ of his or her father or mother.

(b) Under paragraph (a) (1) and (2) of this section, the exception is conditioned solely upon the family relationship between the employee and the individual employing him. Under paragraph (a) (3) of this section, in addition to the family relationship, there is a further requirement that the son or daughter shall be under the age of 21, and the exception continues only during the time that such son or daughter is under the age of 21.

(c) Services performed in the employ of a corporation are not within the exception. Services performed in the employ of a partnership are not within the exception unless the requisite family relationship exists between the employee and each of the partners comprising the partnership.

(A) Wholly owned by the United States, or

(B) Exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law;

§ 31.3306 (c) (6)–1 Services in employ of United States or instrumentality thereof. (a) Services performed in the employ of the United States Government, except as provided in section 3306 (n) (see § 31.3306 (n)–1), are excepted from employment. Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of the United States are also excepted if the instrumentality is either wholly owned by the United States or exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law.

(b) Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of the United States which is neither wholly owned by the United States nor exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law are not within the exception. For example, services performed in the employ of a national bank or a State member bank of the Federal Reserve System are not within the exception.

§ 31.3306 (c) (7)–1 Services in employ of States or their political subdivisions or instrumentalities. (a) Services performed in the employ of any State, or of any political subdivision thereof, are excepted from employment. Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of one or more States or political subdivisions thereof are excepted if the instrumentality is wholly owned by one or more of the foregoing. Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of one or more of the several States or political subdivisions thereof which is not wholly owned by one or more of the foregoing are excepted only to the extent that the instrumentality is with respect to such services immune under the Constitution of the United States from the tax imposed by section 3301.

§ 31.3306 (c) (8)–1 Services in employ of religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational organization, community chest, or organization testing for public safety. Services performed by an employee in the employ of an organization described in section 3306 (c) (8), that is, a corporation, community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, testing for public safety, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation, are excepted from employment. Any organization which is an organization of a type described in section 501 (c) (3) and which—is an organization of a type described in section 3306 (c) (8). An organization which would be an organization of a type described in section 501 (c) (3) except for those provisions of section 501 (c) (3) which are not contained in section 3306 (c) (8) (provisions relating to participation or intervention in a political campaign on behalf of a candidate for public office) is also an organization of a type described in section 3306 (c) (8). (9) Service performed by an individual as an employee or employee representative as defined in section 1 of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act (52 Stat. 1094, 1095; 45 U. S. C. 351);

(a) Is exempt from income tax under section 501 (a), or

(b) Has been denied exemption from income tax under section 501 (a) by reason of the provisions of section 503 or 504, relating to prohibited transactions and to accumulations out of income, respectively,

§ 31.3306 (c) (9)–1 Railroad industry; services performed by an employee or an employee representative under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act. (a) Services performed by an individual as an "employee" or as an "employee representative", as those terms are defined in section 1 of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, as amended, are excepted from employment.

(b) Section 1 of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, as amended, provides, in part, as follows:

For the purposes of this Act, except when used in amending the provisions of other Acts—

(a) The term "employer" means any carrier (as defined in subsection (b) of this section), and any company which is directly or indirectly owned or controlled by one or more such carriers or under common control therewith, and which operates any equipment or facility or performs any service (except trucking service, casual service, and the casual operation of equipment or facilities) in connection with the transportation of passengers or property by railroad, or the receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer in transit, refrigeration or icing, storage, or handling of property transported by railroad, and any receiver, trustee, or other individual or body, judicial or otherwise, when in the possession of the property or operating all or any part of the business of any such employer: Provided, however, That the term "employer" shall not include any street, interurban, or suburban electric railway, unless such railway is operating as a part of a general steam-railroad system of transportation, but shall not exclude any part of the general steam-railroad system of transportation now or hereafter operated by any other motive power. The Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby authorized and directed upon request of the Board, or upon complaint of any party interested, to determine after hearing whether any line operated by electric power falls within the terms of this proviso. The term "employer" shall also include railroad associations, traffic associations, tariff bureaus, demurrage bureaus, weighing and inspection bureaus, collection agencies, and other associations, bureaus, agencies, or organizations controlled and maintained wholly or principally by two or more employers as hereinbefore defined and engaged in the performance of services in connection with or incidental to railroad transportation; and railway labor organizations, national in scope, which have been or may be organized in accordance with the provisions of the Railway Labor Act, and their State and National legislative committees and their general committees and their insurance departments and their local lodges and divisions, established pursuant to the constitution and bylaws of such organizations. The term "employer" shall not include any company by reason of its being engaged in the mining of coal, the supplying of coal to an employer where delivery is not beyond the mine tipple, and the operation of equipment or facilities therefor, or in any of such activities.

(b) The term "carrier" means an express company, sleeping-car company, or carrier by railroad, subject to part I of the Interstate Commerce Act.

(c) The term "company" includes corporations, associations, and joint-stock companies.

(d) The term "employee" (except when used in phrases establishing a different meaning) means any individual who is or has been (i) in the service of one or more employers for compensation, or (ii) an employee representative. The term "employee" shall include an employee of a local lodge or division defined as an employer in section 1 (a) only if he was in the service of a carrier on or after August 29, 1935. The term "employee" includes an officer of an employer.

The term "employee" shall not include any individual while such individual is engaged in the physical operations consisting of the mining of coal, the preparation of coal, the handling (other than movement by rail with standard railroad locomotives) of coal not beyond the mine tipple, or the loading of coal at the tipple.

(e) An individual is in the service of an employer whether his service is rendered within or without the United States if (i) he is subject to the continuing authority of the employer to supervise and direct the manner of rendition of his service, or he is rendering professional or technical services and is integrated into the staff of the employer, or he is rendering, on the property used in the employer's operations, other personal services the rendition of which is integrated into the employer's operations, and (ii) he renders such service for compensation: Provided, however, That an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of an employer, other than a local lodge or division or a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer, not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States only when he is rendering service to it in the United States; and an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such a local lodge or division only if (1) all, or substantially all, the individuals constituting its membership are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or (2) the headquarters of such local lodge or division is located in the United States; and an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such a general committee only if (1) he is representing a local lodge or division described in clauses (1) or (2) immediately above; or (2) all, or substantially all, the individuals represented by it are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or (3) he acts in the capacity of a general chairman or an assistant general chairman of a general committee which represents individuals rendering service in the United States to an employer, but in such case if his office or headquarters is not located in the United States and the individuals represented by such general committee are employees of an employer not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States, only such proportion of the remuneration for such service shall be regarded as compensation as the proportion which the mileage in the United States under the jurisdiction of such general committee bears to the total mileage under its jurisdiction, unless such mileage formula is inapplicable, in which case the Board may prescribe such other formula as it finds to be equitable, and if the application of such mileage formula, or such other formula as the Board may prescribe, would result in the compensation of the individual being less than 10 per centum of his remuneration for such service no part of such remuneration shall be regarded as compensation: Provided further, That an individual not a citizen or resident of the United States shall not be deemed to be in the service of an employer when rendering service outside the United States to an employer who is required under the laws applicable in the place where the service is rendered to employ therein, in whole or in part, citizens or residents thereof.

(f) The term "employee representative" means any officer or official representative of a railway labor organization other than a labor organization included in the term employer as defined in section 1 (a) who before or after August 29, 1935, was in the service of an employer as defined in section 1 (a) and who is duly authorized and designated to represent employees in accordance with the Railway Labor Act, and any individual who is regularly assigned to or regularly employed by such officer or official representative in connection with the duties of his office.

• • • • • •

(l) The term "compensation" means any form of money remuneration, including pay for time lost but excluding tips, paid for services rendered as an employee to one or more employers, or as an employee representative: Provided, however, That in computing the compensation paid to any employee with respect to any calendar month before July 1, 1954, no part of any compensation in excess of $300 shall be recognized, and with respect to any calendar month after June 30, 1954, no part of any compensation in excess of $350 shall be recognized. A payment made by an employer to an individual through the employer's pay roll shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be compensation for service rendered by such individual as an employee of the employer in the period with respect to which the payment is made. An employee shall be deemed to be paid, "for time lost" the amount he is paid by an employer with respect to an identifiable period of absence from the active service of the employer, including absence on account of personal injury, and the amount he is paid by the employer for loss of earnings resulting from his displacement to a less remunerative position or occupation. If a payment is made by an employer with respect to a personal injury and includes pay for time lost, the total payment shall be deemed to be paid for time lost unless, at the time of payment, a part of such payment is specifically apportioned to factors other than time lost, in which event only such part of the payment as is not so apportioned shall be deemed to be paid for time lost. Compensation earned in any calendar month before 1947 shall be deemed paid in such month regardless of whether or when payment will have been in fact made, and compensation earned in any calendar year after 1946 but paid after the end of such calendar year shall be deemed to be compensation paid in the calendar year in which it will have been earned if it is so reported by the employer before February 1 of the next succeeding calendar year or, if the employee establishes, subject to the provisions of section 8, the period during which such compensation will have been earned.

(r) The term "Board" means the Railroad Retirement Board.

(s) The term "United States", when used in a geographical sense, means the States, Alaska, Hawaii, and the District of Columbia.

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means • • • any service, of whatever nature, performed • • • by an employee for the person employing him • • • except—

• • • • • •

(10) (A) Service performed in any calendar quarter in the employ of any organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521, if—

(i) The remuneration for such service is less than $50, or

(ii) Such service is in connection with the collection of dues or premiums for a fraternal beneficiary society, order, or association, and is performed away from the home office, or is ritualistic service in connection with any such society, order, or association, or

(iii) Such service is performed by a student who is enrolled and is regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university;

§ 31.3306 (c) (10) (A)–1 Services in employ of certain organizations exempt from income tax—(a) In general. (1) This section deals with the exception from employment of certain services performed in the employ of any organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521. (See the provisions of the Income Tax Regulations (Part 1 of this chapter) under sections 501 and 521.) If the services meet the tests set forth in paragraph (b), (c), or (d) of this section, such services are excepted.

(2) See also § 31.3306 (c) (8)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of a religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational organization, community chest, or organization testing for public safety; § 31.3306 (c) (10) (B)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of an agricultural or horticultural organization; § 31.3306 (c) (10) (C)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of a voluntary employees' beneficiary association; and § 31.3306 (c) (10) (D)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of a Federal employees' beneficiary association.

(b) Remuneration less than $50 for calendar quarter. Services performed by an employee in a calendar quarter in the employ of an organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521 are excepted from employment, if the remuneration for the services is less than $50. The test relating to remuneration of $50 is based on the remuneration earned during a calendar quarter rather than on the remuneration paid in a calendar quarter. The exception applies separately with respect to each organization for which the employee renders services in a calendar quarter. The type of services performed by the employee and the place where the services are performed are immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in the employ of which the services are performed and the amount of the remuneration for services performed by the employee in the calendar quarter.

Example (1). X is a local lodge of a fraternal organization and is exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) as an organization of the character described in section 501 (c) (8). X has a number of paid employees, among them being A who serves exclusively as recording secretary for the lodge, and B who performs services for the lodge as janitor of its clubhouse. For services performed during the first calendar quarter of 1955 (that is, January 1, 1955, through March 31, 1955, both dates inclusive) A earns a total of $30. For services performed during the same calendar quarter B earns $180. Since the remuneration for the services performed by A during such quarter is less than $50, all of such services are excepted. Thus, A is not counted as an employee in employment on any of the days during such quarter for purposes of determining whether the X organization is an employer (see § 31.3306 (a)–1). Even though it is subsequently determined that X is an employer, A's remuneration of $30 for services performed during the first calendar quarter of such year is not subject to tax. B's services, however, are not excepted during such quarter since the remuneration therefor is not less than $50. Thus, B is counted as an employee in employment during all of such quarter for purposes of determining whether the X organization is an employer. If it is determined that the X organization is an employer, B's remuneration of $180 for services performed during the first calendar quarter is included in computing the tax.

Example (2). The facts are the same as in example (1), above, except that on April 1, 1955, A's salary is increased and, for services performed during the calendar quarter beginning on that date (that is, April 1, 1955, through June 30, 1955, both dates inclusive), A earns $60. Although all of the services performed by A during the first quarter were excepted, none of A's services performed during the second quarter are excepted since the remuneration for such services is not less than $50. A, therefore, is counted as an employee in employment during all of the second quarter for the purpose of determining whether the X organization is an employer. If it is determined that the X organization is an employer, A's remuneration of $60 for services performed during the second calendar quarter is included in computing the tax.

Example (3). The facts are the same as in example (1), above, except that A earns $120 for services performed during the year 1955, and such amount is paid to him in a lump sum at the end of the year. The services performed by A in any calendar quarter during the year are excepted if the portion of the $120 attributable to services performed in that quarter is less than $50. In such case, A is not counted as an employee in employment on any of the days during such quarter for purposes of determining whether the X organization is an employer. If, however, the portion of the $120 attributable to services performed in any calendar quarter during the year is not less than $50, the services during that quarter are not excepted. In the latter case, A is counted as an employee in employment during all of such quarter and, if the X organization is determined to be an employer, that portion of the $120 attributable to services performed in such quarter is included in computing the tax.

(c) Collection of dues or premiums for fraternal beneficiary societies, and ritualistic services in connection with such societies. The following services performed by an employee in the employ of a fraternal beneficiary society, order, or association exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) are excepted from employment:

(1) Services performed away from the home office of such a society, order, or association in connection with the collection of dues or premiums for such society, order, or association; and

(2) Ritualistic services (wherever performed) in connection with such a society, order, or association.

For purposes of this paragraph the amount of the remuneration for services performed by the employee in the calendar quarter is immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in whose employ the services are performed, the type of services, and, in the case of collection of dues or premiums, the place where the services are performed.

(d) Students employed by organizations exempt from income tax. (1) Services performed in the employ of an organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521 by a student who is enrolled and is regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university, are excepted from employment. For purposes of this paragraph, the amount of remuneration for services performed by the employee in the calendar quarter, the type of services, and the place where such services are performed are immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in whose employ the services are performed and the status of the employee as a student enrolled and regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university.

(2) The term "school, college, or university" within the meaning of this exception is to be taken in its commonly or generally accepted sense. For provisions relating to services performed by a student enrolled and regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university not exempt from income tax in the employ of such school, college, or university, see § 31.3306 (c) (10) (E)–1.

(b) For purposes of this section, the type of services performed by the employee, the place where the services are performed, and the amount of remuneration for services performed by the employee are immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in the employ of which the services are performed and the status of the employee as a student enrolled and regularly attending classes at the school, college, or university in the employ of which he performs the services.

(c) The status of the employee as a student performing the services shall be determined on the basis of the relationship of such employee with the organization for which the services are performed. An employee who performs services in the employ of a school, college, or university as an incident to and for the purpose of pursuing a course of study at such school, college, or university has the status of a student in the performance of such services.

(d) The term "school, college, or university" within the meaning of this exception is to be taken in its commonly or generally accepted sense.

(15) (A) Service performed by an individual under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution;

(B) Service performed by an individual in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers, under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, whether or not he is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such service, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back;

§ 31.3306 (c) (15)–1 Services in delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines—(a) Services of individuals under age 18. Services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution (as, for example, by a regional distributor) to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution, are excepted from employment. Thus, the services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in making house-to-house delivery or sale of newspapers or shopping news, including handbills and other similar types of advertising material, are excepted. The services are excepted irrespective of the form or method of compensation. Incidental services by the employee who makes the house-to-house delivery, such as services in assembling newspapers, are considered to be within the exception. The exception continues only during the time that the employee is under age of 18.

(b) Services of individuals of any age. Services performed by an employee in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, are excepted from employment. The services are excepted whether or not the employee is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such services, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back. Moreover, the services are excepted without regard to the age of the employee. Services performed other than at the time of sale to the ultimate consumer are not within the exception. Thus, the services of a regional distributor which are antecedent to but not immediately part of the sale to the ultimate consumer are not within the exception. However, incidental services by the employee who makes the sale to the ultimate consumer, such as services in assembling newspapers or in taking newspapers or magazines to the place of sale, are considered to be within the exception.

(16) Service performed in the employ of an international organization; or § 31.3306 (c) (16)–1 Services in employ of international organization. (a) Subject to the provisions of section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act, services performed in the employ of an international organization as defined in section 7701 (a) (18) are excepted from employment.

(b) (1) Section 7701 (a) (18) provides as follows:

SEC. 7701. Definitions. (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

• • • • •

(18) International organization. The term "international organization" means a public international organization entitled to enjoy privileges, exemptions, and immunities as an international organization under the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U. S. C. 288–288f).

(2) Section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act provides as follows:

SEC. 1. [International Organizations Immunities Act.] For the purposes of this title [International Organizations Immunities Act], the term "international organization" means a public international organization in which the United States participates pursuant to any treaty or under the authority of any Act of Congress authorizing such participation or making an appropriation for such participation, and which shall have been designated by the President through appropriate Executive order as being entitled to enjoy the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided. The President shall be authorized, in the light of the functions performed by any such international organization, by appropriate Executive order to withhold or withdraw from any such organization or its officers or employees any of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities provided for in this title (including the amendments made by this title) or to condition or limit the enjoyment by any such organization or its officers or employees of any such privilege, exemption, or immunity. The President shall be authorized, if in his judgment such action should be justified by reason of the abuse by an international organization or its officers and employees of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided or for any other reason, at any time to revoke the designation of any international organization under this section, whereupon the international organization in question shall cease to be classed as an international organization for the purposes of this title.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means • • • any service, of whatever nature, performed • • • by an employee for the person employing him • • • except—

• • • • • •

(17) Service performed by an individual in (or as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel while it is engaged in) the catching, taking, harvesting, cultivating, or farming of any kind of fish, shellfish, crustacea, sponges, seaweeds, or other aquatic forms of animal and vegetable life (including service performed by any such individual as an ordinary incident to any such activity), except—

(A) Service performed in connection with the catching or taking of salmon or halibut, for commercial purposes, and

(B) Service performed on or in connection with a vessel of more than 10 net tons (determined in the manner provided for determining the register tonnage of merchant vessels under the laws of the United States).

§ 31.3306 (c) (17)–1 Fishing services—(a) In general. Subject to the limitations prescribed in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, services described in this paragraph are excepted from employment. Services performed by an individual in the catching, taking, harvesting, cultivating, or farming of any kind of fish, shell-fish (for example, oysters, clams, and mussels), crustacea (for example, lobsters, crabs, and shrimps), sponges, seaweeds, or other aquatic forms of animal and vegetable life are excepted. The exception extends to services performed as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel while the vessel is engaged in any such activity whether or not the officer or member of the crew is himself so engaged. In the case of an individual who is engaged in any such activity in the employ of any person, the services performed, by such individual in the employ of such person, as an ordinary incident to any such activity are also excepted. Similarly, for example, the shore services of an officer or member of the crew of a vessel engaged in any such activity are excepted if such services are an ordinary incident to any such activity. Services performed as an ordinary incident to any such activity may include, for example, services performed in such cleaning, icing, and packing of fish as are necessary for the immediate preservation of the catch.

(b) Salmon and halibut fishing. Services performed in connection with the catching or taking of salmon or halibut, for commercial purposes, are not within the exception. Thus, neither the services of an officer or member of the crew of a vessel (irrespective of its tonnage) which is engaged in the catching or taking of salmon or halibut, for commercial purposes, nor the services of any other individual in connection with such activity, are within the exception.

(c) Vessels of more than 10 net tons. Services described in paragraph (a) of this section performed on or in connection with a vessel of more than 10 net tons are not within the exception. For purposes of the exception, the tonnage of the vessel shall be determined in the manner provided for determining the register tonnage of merchant vessels under the laws of the United States.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(d) Included and excluded service. For purposes of this chapter, if the services performed during one-half or more of any pay period by an employee for the person employing him constitute employment, all the services of such employee for such period shall be deemed to be employment; but if the services performed during more than one-half of any such pay period by an employee for the person employing him do not constitute employment, then none of the services of such employee for such period shall be deemed to be employment. As used in this subsection, the term "pay period" means a period (of not more than 31 consecutive days) for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by the person employing him. This subsection shall not be applicable with respect to services performed in a pay period by an employee for the person employing him, where any of such service is excepted by subsection (c) (9).

§ 31.3306 (d)–1 Included and excluded services. (a) If a portion of the services performed by an employee for the person employing him during a pay period constitutes employment, and the remainder does not constitute employment, all the services of the employee during the period shall for purposes of the tax be treated alike, that is, either all as included or all as excluded. The time during which the employee performs services which under section 3306 (c) constitute employment, and the time during which he performs services which under such section do not constitute employment, within the pay period, determine whether all the services during the pay period shall be demed to be included or excluded.

(b) If one-half or more of the employee's time in the employ of a particular person in a pay period is spent in performing services which constitute employment, then all the services of that employee for that person in that pay period shall be deemed to be employment.

(c) If less than one-half of the employee's time in the employ of a particular person in a pay period is spent in performing services which constitute employment, then none of the services of that employee for that person in that pay period shall be deemed to be employment.

(d) The application of the provisions of paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Employer B, who operates a farm and a store, employs A to perform services in connection with both operations. A's services on the farm are such that they are excepted as agricultural labor and do not constitute employment, and his services in the store constitute employment. He is paid at the end of each month. During a particular month A works 120 hours on the farm and 80 hours in the store. None of A's services during the month are deemed to be employment, since less than one-half of his services during the month constitutes employment. During another month A works 75 hours on the farm and 120 hours in the store. All of A's services during the month are deemed to be employment, since one-half or more of his services during the month constitutes employment.

Example (2). Employee C is employed as a maid by D, a medical doctor, whose home and office are located in the same building. C's services in the home are excepted as domestic service and do not constitute employment, and her services in the office constitute employment. She is paid each week. During a particular week C works 20 hours in the home and 20 hours in the office. All of C's services during that week are deemed to be employment, since one-half or more of her services during the week constitutes employment. During another week C works 22 hours in the home and 15 hours in the office. None of C's services during that week are deemed to be employment, since less than one-half of her services during the week constitutes employment.

(e) For purposes of this section, a "pay period" is the period (of not more than 31 consecutive calendar days) for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by the person employing him. Thus, if the periods for which payments of remuneration are made to the employee by such person are of uniform duration, each such period constitutes a "pay period". If, however, the periods occasionally vary in duration, the "pay period" is the period for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by such person, even though that period does not coincide with the actual period for which a particular payment of remuneration is made. For example, if a person ordinarily pays a particular employee for each calendar week at the end of the week, but the employee receives a payment in the middle of the week for the portion of the week already elapsed and receives the remainder at the end of the week, the "pay period" is still the calendar week; or if, instead, that employee is sent on a trip by such person and receives at the end of the third week a single remuneration payment for 3 weeks' services, the "pay period" is still the calendar week.

(f) If there is only one period (and such period does not exceed 31 consecutive calendar days) for which a payment of remuneration is made to the employee by the person employing him, such period is deemed to be a "pay period" for purposes of this section.

(g) The rules set forth in this section do not apply (1) with respect to any services performed by the employee for the person employing him if the periods for which such person makes payments of remuneration to the employee vary to the extent that there is no period "for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee", or (2) with respect to any services performed by the employee for the person employing him if the period for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by such person exceeds 31 consecutive calendar days, or (3) with respect to any service performed by the employee for the person employing him during a pay period if any of such service is excepted by section 3306 (c) (9) (see § 31.3306 (c) (9)–1).

(h) If during any period for which a person makes a payment of remuneration to an employee only a portion of the employee's services constitutes employment, but the rules prescribed in this section are not applicable, the tax attaches with respect to such services as constitute employment as defined in section 3306 (c) (provided such person is an employer as defined in section 3306 (a) and § 31.3306 (a)–1).

(e) State agency. For purposes of this chapter, the term "State agency" means any State officer, board, or other authority, designated under a State law to administer the unemployment fund in such State.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(f) Unemployment fund. For purposes of this chapter, the term "unemployment fund" means a special fund, established under a State law and administered by a State agency, for the payment of compensation. Any sums standing to the account of the State agency in the Unemployment Trust Fund established by section 904 of the Social Security Act, as amended (49 Stat. 640; 52 Stat. 1104, 1105; 42 U. S. C. 1104), shall be deemed to be a part of the unemployment fund of the State, and no sums paid out of the Unemployment Trust Fund to such State agency shall cease to be a part of the unemployment fund of the State until expended by such State agency. An unemployment fund shall be deemed to be maintained during a taxable year only if throughout such year, or such portion of the year as the unemployment fund was in existence, no part of the moneys of such fund was expended for any purpose other than the payment of compensation (exclusive of expenses of administration) and for refunds of sums erroneously paid into such fund and refunds paid in accordance with the provisions of section 3305 (b); except that—

(1) An amount equal to the amount of employee payments into the unemployment fund of a State may be used in the payment of cash benefits to individuals with respect to their disability, exclusive of expenses of administration; and

(2) The amounts specified by section 903 (c) (2) of the Social Security Act may, subject to the conditions prescribed in such section, be used for expenses incurred by the State for administration of its unemployment compensation law and public employment offices.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(i) Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer of a corporation, but such term does not include—

(1) Any individual who, under the usual common law rules applicable in determining the employer-employee relationship, has the status of an independent contractor, or

(2) Any individual (except an officer of a corporation) who is not an employee under such common law rules.

§ 31.3306 (i)–1 Who are employees. (a) Every individual is an employee if the relationship between him and the person for whom he performs services is the legal relationship of employer and employee. (The word "employer" as used in this section only, notwithstanding the provisions of § 31.3306 (a)–1, includes a person who employs one or more employees.)

(b) Generally such relationship exists when the person for whom services are performed has the right to control and direct the individual who performs the services, not only as to the result to be accomplished by the work but also as to the details and means by which that result is accomplished. That is, an employee is subject to the will and control of the employer not only as to what shall be done but how it shall be done. In this connection, it is not necessary that the employer actually direct or control the manner in which the services are performed; it is sufficient if he has the right to do so. The right to discharge is also an important factor indicating that the person possessing that right is an employer. Other factors characteristic of an employer, but not necessarily present in every case, are the furnishing of tools and the furnishing of a place to work, to the individual who performs the services. In general, if an individual is subject to the control or direction of another merely as to the result to be accomplished by the work and not as to the means and methods for accomplishing the result, he is an independent contractor. An individual performing services as an independent contractor is not as to such services an employee. Individuals such as physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, construction contractors, public stenographers, and auctioneers, engaged in the pursuit of an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are independent contractors and not employees.

(c) Whether the relationship of employer and employee exists will in doubtful cases be determined upon an examination of the particular facts of each case.

(d) If the relationship of employer and employee exists, the designation or description of the relationship by the parties as anything other than that of employer and employee is immaterial. Thus, if such relationship exists, it is of no consequence that the employee is designated as a partner, coadventurer, agent, independent contractor, or the like.

(e) All classes or grades of employees are included within the relationship of employer and employee. Thus, superintendents, managers, and other supervisory personnel are employees. Generally, an officer of a corporation is an employee of the corporation. However, an officer of a corporation who as such does not perform any services or performs only minor services and who neither receives nor is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, any remuneration is considered not to be an employee of the corporation. A director of a corporation in his capacity as such is not an employee of the corporation.

(f) Although an individual may be an employee under this section, his services may be of such a nature, or performed under such circumstances, as not to constitute employment (see § 31.3306 (c)–2).

(k) Agricultural labor. For purposes of this chapter, the term "agricultural labor" includes all service performed—

(1) On a farm, in the employ of any person, in connection with cultivating the soil, or in connection with raising or harvesting any agricultural or horticultural commodity, including the raising, shearing, feeding, caring for, training, and management of livestock, bees, poultry, and fur-bearing animals and wildlife;

(2) In the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of a farm, in connection with the operation, management, conservation, improvement, or maintenance of such farm and its tools and equipment, or in salvaging timber or clearing land of brush and other debris left by a hurricane, if the major part of such service is performed on a farm;

(3) In connection with the production or harvesting of maple sirup or maple sugar or any commodity defined as an agricultural commodity in section 15 (g) of the Agricultural Marketing Act, as amended (46 Stat. 1550, § 3; 12 U. S. C. 1141j), or in connection with the raising or harvesting of mushrooms, or in connection with the hatching of poultry, or in connection with the ginning of cotton, or in connection with the operation or maintenance of ditches, canals, reservoirs, or waterways used exclusively for supplying and storing water for farming purposes; or

(4) In handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, any agricultural or horticultural commodity; but only if such service is performed as an incident to ordinary farming operations or, in the case of fruits and vegetables, as an incident to the preparation of such fruits or vegetables for market. The provisions of this paragraph shall not be deemed to be applicable with respect to service performed in connection with commercial canning or commercial freezing or in connection with any agricultural or horticultural commodity after its delivery to a terminal market for distribution for consumption.

As used in this subsection, the term "farm" includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, fur-bearing animal, and truck farms, plantations, ranches, nurseries, ranges, greenhouses or other similar structures used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities, and orchards.

S. C. 92 (c), (h)].

(c) "Gum spirits of turpentine" means spirits of turpentine made from gum (oleoresin) from a living tree.

(h) "Gum rosin" means rosin remaining after the distillation of gum spirits of turpentine.

§ 31.3306 (k)–1 Agricultural labor—(a) In general. (1) Services performed by an employee for the person employing him which constitute "agricultural labor" as defined in section 3306 (k) are excepted from employment by reason of section 3306 (c) (1). See § 31.3306 (c) (1)–1. The term "agricultural labor" as defined in section 3306 (k) includes services of the character described in paragraphs (b), (c), (d), and (e) of this section. In general, however, the term does not include services performed in connection with forestry, lumbering, or landscaping.

(2) The term "farm" as used in this subpart includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, fur-bearing animal, and truck farms, plantations, ranches, nurseries, ranges, orchards, and such greenhouses and other similar structures as are used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities. Greenhouses and other similar structures used primarily for other purposes (for example, display, storage, and fabrication of wreaths, corsages, and bouquets) do not constitute "farms".

(b) Services described in section 3306 (k) (1). Services performed on a farm by an employee of any person in connection with any of the following activities constitute agricultural labor:

(1) The cultivation of the soil;

(2) The raising, shearing, feeding, caring for, training, or management of livestock, bees, poultry, fur-bearing animals, or wildlife; or

(3) The raising or harvesting of any other agricultural or horticultural commodity.

(c) Services described in section 3306 (k) (2). (1) The following services performed by an employee in the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of one or more farms constitute agricultural labor, if the major part of such services is performed on a farm:

(i) Services performed in connection with the operation, management, conservation, improvement, or maintenance of any of such farms or its tools or equipment; or

(ii) Services performed in salvaging timber, or clearing land of brush and other debris, left by a hurricane.

(2) The services described in subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph may include, for example, services performed by carpenters, painters, mechanics, farm supervisors, irrigation engineers, bookkeepers, and other skilled or semiskilled workers, which contribute in any way to the conduct of the farm or farms, as such, operated by the person employing them, as distinguished from any other enterprise in which such person may be engaged.

(3) Since the services described in this paragraph must be performed in the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of the farm, services performed by employees of a commercial painting concern, for example, which contracts with a farmer to renovate his farm properties, do not constitute agricultural labor.

(d) Services described in section 3306 (k) (3). Services performed by an employee in the employ of any person in connection with any of the following operations constitute agricultural labor without regard to the place where such services are performed:

(1) The ginning of cotton;

(2) The hatching of poultry;

(3) The raising or harvesting of mushrooms;

(4) The operation or maintenance of ditches, canals, reservoirs, or waterways used exclusively for supplying or storing water for farming purposes;

(5) The production or harvesting of maple sap or the processing of maple sap into maple sirup or maple sugar (but not the subsequent blending or other processing of such sirup or sugar with other products); or

(6) The production or harvesting of crude gum (oleoresin) from a living tree or the processing of such crude gum into gum spirits of turpentine and gum rosin, provided such processing is carried on by the original producer of such crude gum.

(e) Services described in section 3306 (k) (4). (1) (i) Services performed by an employee in the employ of a farmer or a farmers' cooperative organization or group in the handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of any agricultural or horticultural commodity, other than fruits and vegetables (see subparagraph (2) of this paragraph), produced by such farmer or farmer-members of such organization or group of farmers constitute agricultural labor, if such services are performed as an incident to ordinary farming operations.

(ii) Generally services are performed "as an incident to ordinary farming operations" within the meaning of this paragraph if they are services of the character ordinarily performed by the employees of a farmer or of a farmers' cooperative organization or group as a prerequisite to the marketing, in its unmanufactured state, of any agricultural or horticultural commodity produced by such farmer or by the members of such farmers' organization or group. Services performed by employees of such farmer or farmers' organization or group in the handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of commodities produced by persons other than such farmer or members of such farmers' organization or group are not performed "as an incident to ordinary farming operations".

(2) Services performed by an employee in the employ of any person in the handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of fruits and vegetables, whether or not of a perishable nature, constitute agricultural labor, if such services are performed as an incident to the preparation of such fruits and vegetables for market. For example, if services in the sorting, grading, or storing of fruits, or in the cleaning of beans, are performed as an incident to their preparation for market, such services may constitute agricultural labor, whether performed in the employ of a farmer, a farmers' cooperative, or a commercial handler of such commodities.

(3) The services described in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph do not include services performed in connection with commercial canning or commercial freezing or in connection with any commodity after its delivery to a terminal market for distribution for consumption. Moreover, since the services described in such subparagraphs must be rendered in the actual handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of the commodity, such services do not, for example, include services performed as stenographers, bookkeepers, clerks, and other office employees, even though such services may be in connection with such activities. However, to the extent that the services of such individuals are performed in the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of a farm and are rendered in major part on a farm, they may be within the provisions of paragraph (c) of this section.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(m) American vessel. For purposes of this chapter, the term "American vessel" means any vessel documented or numbered under the laws of the United States; and includes any vessel which is neither documented or numbered under the laws of the United States nor documented under the laws of any foreign country, if its crew is employed solely by one or more citizens or residents of the United States or corporations organized under the laws of the United States or of any State.

§ 31.3306 (m)–1 American vessel. The term "American vessel" means any vessel which is documented (that is, registered, enrolled, or licensed) or numbered in conformity with the laws of the United States. It also includes any vessel which is neither documented nor numbered under the laws of the United States, nor documented under the laws of any foreign country, if the crew of such vessel is employed solely by one or more citizens or residents of the United States or corporations organized under the laws of the United States or of any State (including the District of Columbia or the Territory of Alaska or Hawaii). For provisions relating to services performed outside the United States on or in connection with an American vessel, see § 31.3306 (c)–2 (c).

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(n) Vessels operated by general agents of United States. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (c) (6), service performed on or after July 1, 1953, by officers and members of the crew of a vessel which would otherwise be included as employment under subsection (c) shall not be excluded by reason of the fact that it is performed on or in connection with an American vessel—

(1) Owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and

(2) Whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce,

For purposes of this chapter, each such general agent shall be considered a legal entity in his capacity as such general agent, separate and distinct from his identity as a person employing individuals on his own account, and the officers and members of the crew of such an American vessel whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce shall be deemed to be performing services for such general agent rather than the United States. Each such general agent who in his capacity as such is an employer within the meaning of subsection (a) shall be subject to all the requirements imposed upon an employer under this chapter with respect to service which constitutes employment by reason of this subsection.

§ 31.3306 (n)–1 Services on American vessel whose business is conducted by general agent of Secretary of Commerce. (a) Section 3306 (n) and this section of the regulations apply with respect only to services performed by an officer or member of the crew of an American vessel (1) which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States, and (2) whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce. Whether services performed by such an officer or member of a crew under the above conditions constitute employment is determined under section 3306 (c) and (n), but without regard to section 3306 (c) (6). See § 31.3306 (c) (6)–1, relating to services performed in the employ of the United States and instrumentalities thereof. If, without regard to section 3306 (c) (6), such services constitute employment, they are not excepted from employment by reason of the fact that they are performed on or in connection with an American vessel which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce, that is, such services are not excepted from employment by section 3306 (c) (6). For provisions relating to services performed within the United States and services performed outside the United States which constitute employment, see § 31.3306 (c)–2.

(b) The expression "officer or member of the crew" includes the master or officer in charge of the vessel, however designated, and every individual, subject to his authority, serving on board and contributing in any way to the operation and welfare of the vessel. Thus, the expression includes, for example, the master, mates, pilots, pursers, surgeons, stewards, engineers, firemen, cooks, clerks, carpenters, and deck hands.

(c) An employee of the United States who performs services as an officer or member of the crew of an American vessel which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce shall be deemed, under section 3306 (n), to be performing services for such general agent rather than for the United States. Any such general agent of the Secretary of Commerce is considered a legal entity in his capacity as such general agent, separate and distinct from his identity as a person employing individuals on his own account. Each such general agent who in his capacity as such qualifies as an employer under section 3306 (a) is with respect to each calendar year for which he so qualifies subject to the tax imposed by section 3301, and to all the requirements imposed upon an employer as defined in section 3306 (a) by the regulations in this part, with respect to services which constitute employment by reason of section 3306 (n) and this section of the regulations.

SEC. 3307. Deductions as constructive payments. Whenever under this chapter or any act of Congress, or under the law of any State, an employer is required or permitted to deduct any amount from the remuneration of an employee and to pay the amount deducted to the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, then for purposes of this chapter the amount so deducted shall be considered to have been paid to the employee at the time of such deduction.

§ 31.3307–1 Deductions by an employer from remuneration of an employee. Any amount deducted by an employer from the remuneration of an employee is considered to be a part of the employee's remuneration and is considered to be paid to the employee as remuneration at the time that the deduction is made. It is immaterial that any act of Congress or the law of any State requires or permits such deductions and the payment of the amount thereof to the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof.

AUTHORITY: §§ 51.2860 to 51.2872 issued under sec. 205, 60 Stat. 1090, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1624.

GENERAL

§ 51.2860 General. The standards contained in this subpart are applicable to beet greens consisting of either plants (with or without attached roots), or cut leaves, but they shall not be applicable to a mixture of plants and cut leaves in the same container. The standards apply only to the common red-rooted table varieties of beets (Beta vulgaris) but not to mangel wurzel varieties primarily grown for stock feed, or to sugar beets (Beta saccarifera).

GRADES

§ 51.2861 U. S. No. 1. "U. S. No. 1" consists of beet greens of similar varietal characteristics which are fresh, fairly clean, fairly tender, well trimmed and free from other kinds of leaves, weeds, grass or other foreign material, and decay and which are free from damage caused by discoloration, freezing, disease, insects or mechanical or other means.

(a) In the case of beet greens with roots attached, the roots shall be free from damage by any cause and the maximum diameter of the root shall not be larger than five-eighths inch.

(b) The leaf blades of beet greens shall not be longer than five and one-half inches.

(c) In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling, the following tolerances shall be permitted (see §§ 51.2863 and 51.2864):

(1) For over-size roots. 5 percent for beet greens with roots in any lot which are larger than five-eights inch in diameter;

(2) For over-size leaf blades. 3 percent for beet leaves in any lot which are longer than five and one-half inches;

(3) For mixtures of whole plants and leaves. Not more than 3 percent of the beet greens may consist of cut leaves in a lot consisting of plants, or of plants in a lot consisting of cut leaves;

(4) For leaves other than beet leaves, weeds, grass or other foreign material. Not more than 3 pieces in a one-pound sample; and,

(5) For other defects. Not more than a total of 10 percent, but not more than one-half of this tolerance, or 5 percent, shall be allowed for defects causing serious damage, including therein not more than one percent for decay.

UNCLASSIFIED

§ 51.2862 Unclassified. "Unclassified" consists of beet greens which have not been classified in accordance with the foregoing grade. The term "unclassified" is not a grade within the meaning of these standards but is provided as a designation to show that no grade has been applied to the lot.

APPLICATION OF TOLERANCES

§ 51.2863 Application of tolerances. (a) The contents of individual packages in the lot, based on sample inspection, are subject to the following limitations: Provided, That the averages for the entire lot are within the tolerances specified for the grade:

(1) For a tolerance of 10 percent or more, individual packages in any lot may contain not more than one and one-half times the tolerances specified; and,

(2) For a tolerance of less than 10 percent, individual packages in any lot may contain not more than double the tolerance specified.

§ 51.2864 Basis for calculating percentages. Percentages shall be calculated on the basis of weight or an equivalent basis, except that the amount of leaves other than beet leaves, blades of grass, weeds or parts of weeds or other foreign material shall be calculated on the basis of count, using one pound of beet greens as the sample. In inspecting the sample, the unit shall be the plant or leaf exactly as it occurs in the sample. A plant or portion of plant shall not be broken to remove the defective portion, but shall be considered as a unit.

DEFINITIONS

§ 51.2865 Similar varietal characteristics. "Similar varietal characteristics" means that the beet greens in any container are similar in color and type.

§ 51.2866 Fresh. "Fresh" means that the greens are not more than slightly wilted.

§ 51.2867 Fairly clean. "Fairly clean" means that the individual leaf or plant is reasonably free from dirt or other foreign material and that the general appearance of the beet greens in the container is not materially affected.

§ 51.2868 Fairly tender. "Fairly tender" means that the beet greens are not tough, or excessively fibrous.

§ 51.2869 Well trimmed. "Well trimmed" in the case of cut leaf beet greens means that the leaf stem or petiole is not more than the length of the leaf blade.

§ 51.2870 Damage. "Damage" means any defect which materially affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the individual leaf, or plant, or the general appearance of the beet greens in the container. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as a damage:

(a) Discoloration when the appearance of the individual leaf or plant is materially affected by yellowing, spotting, or any other type of discoloration, except that leaves showing a reddish color, often caused by cold weather, shall not be considered as damaged by discoloration. Plants which have small dried, withered, or slightly yellowed leaves at the base of the plant shall not be considered as damaged by discoloration unless the general appearance of the plant or of the plants in the container is materially affected; and,

(b) Mechanical damage when the individual leaf is badly crushed, torn or broken.

§ 51.2871 Diameter. "Diameter" means the greatest dimension of the root measured at right angles to a line from the center of the crown to the base of the root.

§ 51.2872 Serious damage. "Serious damage" means any defect which seriously affects the appearance, or the edible or shipping quality of the individual beet leaf, or plant, or the general appearance of the beet greens in the container. Any one of the following defects, or any combination of defects the seriousness of which exceeds the maximum allowed for any one defect, shall be considered as serious damage:

(a) Discoloration when the individual leaf, or plant, is badly discolored;

(b) Insects when the individual leaf or plant is noticeably infested, or when it is seriously damaged by them; and,

(c) Decay.

No. 1" consists of spinach plants of similar varietal characteristics which are well grown, fresh, fairly clean, well trimmed, and which are free from decay, and free from damage caused by coarse stalks or seed stems, discoloration, foreign material, second growth, freezing, disease, insects or mechanical or other means.

(a) In order to allow for variations incident to proper grading and handling, not more than a total of 10 percent, by weight, of the spinach plants in any lot may fail to meet the requirements of the grade: Provided, That not more than one-half of this amount, or 5 percent, shall be allowed for serious damage, including therein not more than 1 percent for decay.

§51.2881 U. S. Commercial. "U. S. Commercial" consists of spinach plants which meet all the requirements for U. S. No. 1 grade except that the spinach plants need only be free from damage by dirt and except for the increased tolerances specified in this section.

VALENCIA ORANGES GROWN IN ARIZONA AND DESIGNATED PART OF CALIFORNIA

ORDER DIRECTING THAT A REFERENDUM BE CONDUCTED; DESIGNATION OF REFERENDUM AGENTS TO CONDUCT SUCH REFERENDUM; AND DETERMINATION OF REPRESENTATIVE PERIOD

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of Marketing Agreement No. 131 and Order No. 22, as amended (7 CFR Part 922; 21 F. R. 4392), and the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended, 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047), it is hereby directed that a referendum be conducted among the growers who, during the period February 1, 1955, through January 31, 1956, (which period is hereby determined to be a representative period for the purposes of such referendum), were engaged, in the State of Arizona and that part of the State of California, south of the 37th Parallel, in the production of Valencia oranges for market to determine whether such growers favor continuation of the said marketing agreement and order. Warren C. Noland and Edward H. Bixby of the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, are hereby designated as agents of the Secretary of Agriculture to perform, jointly, or severally, the following functions in connection with the referendum:

(a) Conduct said referendum in the manner herein prescribed:

(1) By giving opportunity for each of the aforesaid growers to cast his ballot, in the manner herein authorized, relative to the aforesaid continuance of the marketing agreement and amended order, on a copy of the appropriate ballot form. A cooperative association of such growers, bona fide engaged in marketing Valencia oranges grown in the aforesaid production area or in rendering services for or advancing the interests of the growers of such Valencia oranges, may vote for the growers who are members of, stockholders in, or under contract with, such cooperative association (such vote to be cast on a copy of the appropriate ballot form), and the vote of such cooperative association shall be considered as the vote of such growers.

(2) By determining the time of commencement and termination of the period of the referendum and by giving public notice, as prescribed in (a) (3) hereof, (i) of the time during which the referendum will be conducted, (ii) that any ballot may be cast by mail, and (iii) that all ballots so cast must be addressed to Warren C. Noland, Field Representative, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, 1031 South Broadway, Room 1005, Los Angeles 15, California, and the time such ballots must be received.

(3) By giving public notice (i) by utilizing available agencies of public information (without advertising expense), including both press and radio facilities in the State of Arizona and designated part of California; (ii) by mailing a notice thereof (including a copy of the appropriate ballot form) to each such cooperative association and to each grower whose name and address are known; and (iii) by such other means as said referendum agents or any of them may deem advisable.

(4) By conducting meetings of growers and arranging for balloting at the meeting places, if said referendum agents or any of them determine that voting shall be at meetings. At each such meeting, balloting shall continue until all of the growers who are present, and who desire to do so, have had an opportunity to vote. Any grower may cast his ballot at any such meeting in lieu of voting by mail.

(5) By giving ballots to growers at the meetings, and receiving any ballots when they are cast.

(6) By securing the name and address of each person casting a ballot, and inquiring into the eligibility of such person to vote in the referendum.

(7) By giving public notice of the time and place of each meeting authorized hereunder by posting a notice thereof, at least two days in advance of each such meeting, at each such meeting place, and in two or more public places within the applicable area; and, so far as may be practicable, by giving additional notice in the manner prescribed in paragraph (a) (3) hereof.

(8) By appointing such person or persons as are deemed necessary or desirable to assist said agents in performing their functions hereunder. Each person so appointed shall serve without compensation and may be authorized, by said referendum agents or any of them, to perform any or all of the functions set forth in paragraphs (a) (5), (6), (7), and (8) hereof (which, in the absence of such appointment of subagents, shall be performed by said referendum agents) in accordance with the requirements set forth; and shall forward to Warren C. Noland, Field Representative, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, 1031 South Broadway, Room 1005, Los Angeles 15, California, immediately after the close of the referendum, the following:

(i) A register containing the name and address of each grower to whom a ballot form was given;

(ii) A register containing the name and address of each grower from whom an executed ballot was received;

(iii) All of the ballots received by the respective referendum agent in connection with the referendum, together with a certificate to the effect that the ballots forwarded are all of the ballots cast and which were received by the respective agent during the referendum period;

(iv) A statement showing when and where each notice of the referendum posted by said agent was posted and, if the notice was mailed to growers, the mailing list showing the names and addresses to which the notice was mailed and the time of such mailing, and

(v) A detailed statement reciting the method used in giving publicity to such referendum.

(b) Upon receipt by Warren C. Noland of all ballots cast in accordance with the provisions hereof, he shall canvass the ballots and prepare and submit to the Secretary a detailed report covering the results of the referendum, the manner in which the referendum was conducted, the extent and kind of public notice given, and all other information pertinent to the full analysis of the referendum and its results; and shall forward such report, together with the ballots and other information and data, to the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

(c) Each referendum agent and appointee pursuant hereto shall not refuse to accept a ballot submitted or cast; but should they, or any of them, deem that a ballot should be challenged for any reason, or if such ballot is challenged by any other person, said agent or appointee shall endorse above his signature, on the back of said ballot, a statement that such ballot was challenged, by whom challenged, and the reasons therefor; and the number of such challenged ballots shall be stated when they are forwarded as provided herein.

(d) All ballots shall be treated as confidential. The Director of the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, is hereby authorized to prescribe additional instructions, not inconsistent with the provisions hereof, to govern the procedure to be followed by the said referendum agents and appointees in conducting said referendum.

Copies of the text of the aforesaid marketing agreement and amended order may be examined in the Office of the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and at the Western Marketing Field Office, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, 1031 South Broadway, Room 1005, Los Angeles 15, California.

HANDLING OF MILK IN NEW YORK METROPOLITAN MARKETING AREA AND IN NORTHERN NEW JERSEY

SUPPLEMENTAL NOTICE CONCERNING PROCEDURE

Notice of hearing was issued on May 18, 1956 (21 F. R. 3537) and a supplemental notice on May 29, 1956 (21 F. R. 3799) on proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the New York metropolitan milk marketing area and on a proposed marketing agreement and order regulating the handling of milk in the Northern New Jersey milk marketing area.

During the hearing thus far held pursuant to such notices, testimony has been submitted (1) regarding proposals for a separate new milk marketing order for Northern New Jersey (together with proposed coordinating amendments to the New York milk marketing order), and (2) with reference to proposals to expand the New York metropolitan milk marketing area to include additional territory within the State of New York as specified in the notices of hearing.

After considering the complexity of the issues and the progress made thereon since the beginning of the hearing on June 18, 1956, it is determined that it is in the interest of orderly and expeditious procedure to separate and give prior consideration to those proposals contained in the May 18 notice of hearing which concern expansion of the present New York metropolitan milk marketing area, together with the proposals in the supplemental notice of hearing, dated May 29, 1956, and such other proposals to amend the New York milk marketing order as may be appropriate or necessary to such proposed expansion of the Order No. 27 marketing area.

Accordingly, notice is hereby given that beginning September 10, 1956, at a hearing place to be designated by the presiding officer, and continuing until the presentation of evidence on these issues has been completed, the hearing will be confined to the reception of evidence on the proposals to expand the New York metropolitan marketing area and the related issues hereinbefore more fully described.

Upon the completion of the evidence relating to such issues the presiding officer will close and certify the record as to such issues and will fix and announce a time for filing briefs thereon. Thereafter, the hearing will continue with the reception of evidence upon the other issues presented by the notices of hearing, and the entire record as theretofore and thereafter made will be the record upon such remaining issues, including, but not limited to, any further amendment of the provisions of Order No. 27, as amended, as may be appropriate or necessary to coordinate Order No. 27 and any milk marketing order that may be issued for a Northern New Jersey milk marketing area.

It is hereby ordered that this notice be filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 29th day of August, 1956.

II. Functions and procedures—A. Law enforcement. The Food and Drug Administration, acting under the supervision of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, administers the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U. S. C. 301 et seq.), the Tea Importation Act (21 U. S. C. 41 et seq.), the Federal Caustic Poison Act (15 U. S. C. 401 et seq.), the Federal Import Milk Act (21 U. S. C. 141 et seq.), and the Federal Filled Milk Act (21 U. S. C. 61 et seq.). In the enforcement of these acts and related duties, the following procedures have been established:

1. Evidence acquired through examinations and investigations by the Food and Drug Administration of violations of any of the acts listed above, on which criminal, libel for condemnation, or injunction proceedings are contemplated under the authority of such act, is referred by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to the Department of Justice with recommendation for the institution of such proceedings.

2. Any interested person may propose to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare the issuance, amendment, or repeal of any regulation authorized by any law listed above. The request should describe the representative capacity, if any, of the applicant and set forth the proposal in general terms, and should state reasonable grounds therefor. Reasonable grounds include a description of what the person proposing the action will prove if a hearing is held. Failure to state with reasonable precision the grounds relied upon to support a proposal for the issuance, amendment, or repeal of a regulation will result in denial of the proposal. Denial of the proposal will also result if the grounds relied upon by the person proposing the action would not support the proposed action even if proved at a hearing. Proceedings on proposals with respect to regulations under sections 408 (d) and (e), 507 (f), and 701 (e) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U. S. C. 346a (d) and (e), 357 (f) and 371 (e)) are prescribed in those sections and in the rules of practice for hearings under section 701 (e) which appear in Title 21 of the Code of Federal Regulations (21 CFR 1.701). Proposals with respect to regulations on which no hearing is required are announced for informal public hearings or for the submission of written comments, unless such proposals are clearly noncontroversial, relate solely to the internal management of the Department, or involve interpretative rules, statements of policy, procedure, or practice.

3. Procedure governing imports under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act is prescribed in the Code of Federal Regulations (21 CFR 1.315 et seq.); procedure governing imports under the Federal Caustic Poison Act is prescribed by 21 CFR Part 285. Appeals from decisions under either act of officers of districts are informal and may be made by letter or in person by the importer or his representative.

4. Procedure governing the filing of applications with respect to new drugs pursuant to section 505 (b) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U. S. C. 355 (b)) is prescribed by Part 130 of the Code of Federal Regulations. Copies of the form to be followed in preparing applications may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, the Bureau of Medicine, and the districts. A procedure for hearings in relation to removing the prescription limitation from drugs limited to prescription by effective new-drug applications is contained in § 130.101 (b) of the Code of Federal Regulations (21 CFR 130.101 (b)).

5. Procedure governing the importation of merchandise subject to the Tea Importation Act is prescribed in 21 CFR Part 281. Forms may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, the New York and San Francisco Districts and from any Collector of Customs.

6. Procedure governing the importation of milk and cream under the Federal Import Milk Act is prescribed by 21 CFR Part 290. Forms may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs and from the Veterinary Director General, Health of Animals Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Canada. Canadian shippers may obtain from the Veterinary Director General information as to the Canadian officials who are available to supervise tests and examinations.

7. Procedure governing the certification of coal-tar colors under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act is prescribed in 21 CFR Part 9. Specimen forms for use as guides in preparing requests for certification of batches of straight colors, color mixtures, and repacked colors may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, the Division of Cosmetics, Bureau of Biological and Physical Sciences, and the districts.

8. Procedure for the certification under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of drugs composed wholly or partly of insulin is prescribed by 21 CFR Part 164. Specimen forms for use as guides in preparing requests for certification of insulin-containing drugs may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs and the Division of Pharmacology, Bureau of Biological and Physical Sciences.

9. Procedure for the certification under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of drugs composed wholly or partly of penicillin, streptomycin, dihydrostreptomycin, chlortetracycline, tetracycline, bacitracin, or chloramphenicol is prescribed in 21 CFR Parts 146, 146a, 146b, 146c, 146d, and 146e. Specimen forms for use as guides in preparing the applications and requests for certification or exemption from certification may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs and the Division of Antibiotics, Bureau of Biological and Physical Sciences.

10. Procedure governing the service of inspection of establishments packing seafood under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and applications therefor is prescribed in the case of processed shrimp and canned oysters by 21 CFR Part 85. Forms for application for such service, its renewal or extension may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs and the Atlanta or New Orleans District.

11. Informal conferences may be arranged for discussion of any subject pertaining to the functions of the Food and Drug Administration, although the scope of discussion of pending court cases is necessarily limited. Such conferences are particularly encouraged in connection with the formulation of proposals to issue, amend, or repeal regulations. The Food Standards Committee usually holds informal public hearings, after appropriate notice, on proposals to formulate definitions and standards of identity for food.

12. Procedures governing the establishment of tolerances and exemptions from tolerances for pesticide chemicals in or on raw agricultural commodities under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act are prescribed in 21 CFR Part 120. Copies of these regulations, including § 120.7, which outlines the data required to be submitted in petitions, may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, and the Director of the Bureau of Biological and Physical Sciences.

13. Procedures governing the issuance of temporary permits for interstate shipment of experimental packs of food varying from the requirements of applicable definitions and standards of identity established pursuant to the authority of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act are prescribed in 21 CFR 3.12. Copies of these regulations, in which are outlined the information to be contained in applications for such permits may be obtained from the Commissioner of Food and Drugs.

28.115 (b) of the Regulations under the United States Cotton Standards Act was recently amended (21 F. R. 4904) to change the validity period of such practical forms from 18 to 12 months. These minor changes in the regulations will not require any advance preparation by, or impose any hardship on, affected persons. Therefore, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to such amendments are unnecessary, impracticable, and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making the amendments effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PART 722—COTTON

PROCLAMATION RELATING TO NATIONAL MARKETING QUOTA AND NATIONAL ACREAGE ALLOTMENT FOR 1957 CROP OF UPLAND COTTON

Sec.
722.801 Basis and purpose.
722.802 Findings and determinations with respect to a national marketing quota for the 1957 crop of cotton.
722.803 Determination of a national acreage allotment for the 1957 crop of cotton.

AUTHORITY: §§ 722.801 to 722.803 issued under sec. 375, 52 Stat. 66, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1375. Interpret or apply secs. 301, 341–348, 52 Stat. 38, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1301, 1341–1348.

§ 722.801 Basis and purpose. (a) This proclamation is issued to announce findings made by the Secretary of Agriculture with respect to the total supply and the normal supply of upland cotton for the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956, and to proclaim whether, upon the basis of such findings, a national marketing quota and a national acreage allotment for the 1957 crop of upland cotton are required under the provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (referred to herein as the "act"). The term "upland cotton" (referred to herein as "cotton") and the data appearing in §§ 722.802 and 722.803 do not include extra long staple cotton described in section 347 (a) of the act or similar types of such cotton which are imported. Section 342 of the act provides, in part, that, whenever during any calendar year the Secretary determines that the total supply of cotton for the marketing year beginning in such calendar year will exceed the normal supply for such marketing year, the Secretary shall proclaim such fact and a national marketing quota shall be in effect for the crop of cotton produced in the next calendar year. Whenever a national marketing quota is proclaimed, the Secretary is required by section 344 (a) of the act to determine and proclaim a national acreage allotment for the crop of cotton to be produced in the next calendar year. The act further provides that the proclamation with respect to a national marketing quota shall be made not later than October 15 of the calendar year in which the determinations relating thereto are made.

(b) The terms "total supply", "carry-over", and "normal supply", as they relate to cotton, are defined in section 301 of the act as follows:

(1) "Total supply" of cotton for any marketing year shall be the carry-over at the beginning of such marketing year, plus the estimated production of cotton in the United States during the calendar year in which such marketing year begins and the estimated imports of cotton into the United States during such marketing year.

(2) "Carry-over" of cotton for any marketing year shall be the quantity of cotton on hand in the United States at the beginning of such marketing year, not including any part of the crop which was produced in the United States during the calendar year then current.

(3) "Normal supply" of cotton for any marketing year shall be the estimated domestic consumption of cotton for the marketing year for which such normal supply is being determined, plus the estimated exports of cotton for such marketing year, plus 30 per centum of the sum of such consumption and exports as an allowance for carry-over.

(c) The findings and determinations made by the Secretary are contained in §§ 722.802 and 722.803 and have been made on the basis of the latest available statistics of the Federal Government. Prior to making such findings and determinations, notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5063) in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) that the Secretary was preparing to examine the supply situation with respect to cotton to determine if quotas were required under the act and that any interested person might express his views in writing with respect thereto, postmarked not later than 15 days from the date of publication of the notice, which was July 7, 1956. All written expressions submitted pursuant to such notice have been duly considered in connection with making the findings and determinations.

§ 722.802 Findings and determinations with respect to a national marketing quota for the 1957 crop of cotton—(a) Total supply. The total supply of cotton for the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956 (in terms of running bales or the equivalent), is 27,550,000 bales, consisting of (1) a carry-over on August 1, 1956, of 14,100,000 bales,[1] (2) estimated production from the 1956 crop of 13,400,000 bales, and (3) estimated imports into the United States during the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956, of 50,000 bales.

(b) Normal supply. The normal supply of cotton for the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956 (in terms of running bales or the equivalent), is 17,680,000 bales, consisting of (1) estimated domestic consumption for the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956, of 9,100,000 bales, (2) estimated exports during the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956, of 4,500,000 bales, and (3) 30 percent of the sum of subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph as an allowance for carry-over, or 4,080,000 bales.

(c) National marketing quota. It is hereby determined and proclaimed that the total supply of cotton for the marketing year beginning August 1, 1956, will exceed the normal supply of cotton for such marketing year. Therefore, a national marketing quota shall be in effect for the crop of cotton produced in the calendar year 1957. It is further determined and proclaimed that the amount of the national marketing quota for the 1957 crop of cotton shall be 11,014,493 bales (standard bales of 500 pounds gross weight). The amount of such quota has been determined under section 342 of the act which, in effect, provides that the 1957 quota shall be the largest of the following:

(1) The number of bales of cotton (standard bales of 500 pounds gross weight) adequate, together with (i) the estimated carry-over at the beginning of the 1957–58 marketing year and (ii) the estimated imports during the 1957–58 marketing year, to make available a normal supply of cotton. The number of bales of cotton determined under this provision is 2,450,412 bales.

(2) The number of bales of cotton (standard bales of 500 pounds gross weight) equal to the smaller of (i) 10,000,000 bales, or (ii) 1,000,000 bales less than the estimated domestic consumption plus exports of cotton for the marketing year ending July 31, 1956. The number of bales of cotton determined under subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph would be 10,386,520 bales. Therefore, the smaller of subdivision (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph would be 10,000,000 bales.

(3) The number of bales of cotton (standard bales of 500 pounds gross weight) required to provide a national acreage allotment for the 1957 crop of upland cotton equal to the national acreage allotment for the 1956 crop of upland cotton. The number of bales of cotton determined under this provision is 11,014,493 bales.

§ 722.803 Determination of national acreage allotment for the 1957 crop of cotton. It is hereby further determined and proclaimed that a national acreage allotment shall be in effect for the crop of cotton produced in the calendar year 1957. The amount of such national acreage allotment shall be 17,391,304 acres. The amount of such national acreage allotment has been determined under section 342 of the act, which provides that the national acreage allotment for cotton for 1957 shall be not less than the national acreage allotment for 1956. The national acreage allotment for the 1956 crop of upland cotton was 17,391,304 acres. The 1957 national acreage allotment will be apportioned to the States in the regulations pertaining to acreage allotments for the 1957 crop of upland cotton. Section 722.802 and this section will also contain the additional acreage allotment which each State will receive under the 100,000-acre national acreage reserve provision and the 99 percent minimum State allotment provision which were added to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 by the Agricultural Act of 1956.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 30th day of August, 1956. Witness my hand and the seal of the Department of Agriculture.

Assistant Secretary.

Subchapter G—Determination of Proportionate Shares

[Sugar Determination 850.30, Supp. 3]

NEBRASKA PROPORTIONATE SHARE AREAS AND FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop, 20 F. R. 7159, as amended; 20 F. R. 8772; 21 F. R. 986 and 3670, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Nebraska State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for dividing the State into proportionate share areas and establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 58,816 acres established for Nebraska by the Determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such Committee at Room 407, U. S. Post Office and Court House Building, Lincoln, Nebraska, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Nebraska. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.33 Nebraska—(a) Proportionate share areas. Nebraska shall be divided into four proportionate share areas as served by beet sugar companies. These areas shall be designated "American Crystal", "Great Western", "Holly", and "Utah-Idaho", respectively. Acreage allotments for these areas shall be computed by applying to the planted sugar beet acreage record for each area, a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954 as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the largest acreage of any of the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "ability to produce", with pro rata adjustments to a total of 58,816 acres. Acreage allotments computed as aforestated are established as follows: American Crystal Area—5,701 acres; Great Western Area—49,518 acres; Holly Area—445 acres; and Utah-Idaho area—3,152 acres.

(b) Set-asides of acreage. Set-asides of acreage shall be made from each area allotment of 1 percent for appeals, and for new producers as follows: Holly Area—10 acres; American Crystal Area—90 acres; Great Western Area—495 acres; Utah-Idaho Area—3,152 acres.

(c) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC County Office on form SU–100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(d) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares—(1) For new producers. Within the acreage set aside for new producers in each proportionate share area, proportionate shares shall be established in an equitable manner for farms to be operated during the 1956-crop year by new producers (as defined in § 850.30) by taking into consideration the availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(2) For second-year producers. For each farm operated in the 1956-crop year by a second-year producer (as defined in § 850.30), an initial proportionate share shall be established equal to the initial 1955-crop share established for such farm.

(3) For old producers—(i) Farm bases. For each farm operated by an old producer (any producer except a new producer or a second-year producer) a farm base shall be computed as follows:

(a) American Crystal Area. For each farm in the American Crystal Area, the farm base shall be computed from the applicable planted sugar beet acreage, as defined hereinafter, by giving a 75 percent weighting to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a 25 percent weighting to the largest acreage of the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "ability to produce", with a minimum of 94 percent of the average 1953–54 acreage. The applicable planted sugar beet acreage shall be determined as follows: For a farm totally owned by the 1956 operator, the applicable planted sugar beet acreage shall be the planted acreage for the farm within the base period; and for a farm for which the 1956 operator is a tenant in any capacity, the applicable planted sugar beet acreage shall be the acreage planted by the operator in the area within the base period; provided that in case both the owner-operator of land and the person who was a tenant on the same land request proportionate shares, the acreage record of such land shall be divided between such owner and tenant on the basis of the effective crop shares.

(b) Great Western and Holly Areas. For each farm in the Great Western Area or the Holly Area, the factors "past production" and "ability to produce" shall be measured by establishing a farm base computed by multiplying the average planted sugar beet acreage for the farm for the crops of 1950 through 1954 (total planted acreage divided by the number of crops for which beets were actually planted) by the percentage shown for the category applicable to the farm, as follows:

	Percent
Planted acreage for all 5 crops	100
Planted acreage only for last 4 crops	88
Planted acreage only for 4 crops other than last 4 consecutive crops	83
Planted acreage only for last 3 crops	72
Planted acreage only for 3 crops other than last 3 consecutive crops	65
Planted acreage only for last 2 crops	58
Planted acreage only for 2 crops other than last 2 consecutive crops	50
Planted acreage only for 1954 crop	40
Planted acreage only for one crop other than 1954 crop	18

(c) Utah-Idaho Area. For each farm in the Utah-Idaho Area, the farm base shall be computed from the planted sugar beet acreage record of the farm by giving a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1953–54, as a measure of "ability to produce".

(ii) Initial proportionate shares. Initial proportionate shares shall be established from farm bases in each area on a pro rata basis so that the total of the farm shares equals the area allotment less the prescribed set-asides and the initial shares of second-year producers.

(4) Adjustments in initial shares. Within the acreage of initial shares in excess of requested acreages in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in initial farm proportionate shares for old producers and second-year producers so as to establish a proportionate share for each farm which is fair and equitable as compared with proportionate shares for all other farms in the area by taking into consideration availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(5) Adjustments under appeals. Within the acreage set aside for making adjustments under appeals and any other acreage remaining unused in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in proportionate shares under appeals to establish fair and equitable farm shares in accordance with the provisions of § 850.30 applicable to appeals.

(6) Adjustments because of unused acreage. To the extent of acreage available within the allotment for each proportionate share area from underplanting and failure to plant, and unused acreage from set-asides and other sources, adjustments shall be made in farm proportionate shares during the 1956-crop season. Insofar as practicable, acreage remaining unused in any area shall be reallotted to the other areas wherein it may be used.

(7) Notification of farm operators. The farm operator shall be notified concerning the proportionate share established for his farm on form SU–103, Notice of Farm Proportionate Share—1956 Sugar Beet Crop, even if the acreage established is "none", and in each case of approved adjustment the farm operator shall be notified regarding the adjusted proportionate share on another form SU–103 if the adjustment results from an appeal, otherwise on a form SU–103–A or other similar written notice.

(8) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

STATEMENT OF BASES AND CONSIDERATIONS

This supplement sets forth the bases and procedures established by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Nebraska State Committee for determining farm proportionate shares in Nebraska in accordance with the determination of proportionate shares for the 1956 crop of sugar beets, as issued by the Secretay of Agriculture.

In general, the bases and procedures specified herein are the same as those which were effective in the State for the 1955 crop. Nebraska is again divided into four areas, which division is considered reasonable and appropriate considering geographical locations, the operation of sugar beet processing plants and the organization of advisory committees including grower and processor representatives. Farm proportionate shares of old producers are established under formulas which measure "past production" and "ability to produce" sugar beets. These standards are reflected in the initial farm shares established for second-year producers, which coincide with their initial 1955-crop shares, as provided under § 850.30. The procedure for establishing farm shares for new producers meets the related requirements of such section.

The bases and procedures for making adjustments in initial proportionate shares and for adjusting shares subsequently because of unused acreage and appeals are designed to provide a fair and equitable proportionate share for each farm of the total acreage of sugar beets required to enable the domestic beet sugar area to meet its quota and provide a normal carryover inventory.

KANSAS PROPORTIONATE SHARE AREAS AND FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop, 20 F. R. 7159, as amended (20 F. R. 8772); 21 F. R. 986 and 3670, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Kansas State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for dividing the State into proportionate share areas and establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 7,267 acres established for Kansas by the Determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such Committee at the Wareham Building, 417 Humbolt Street, Manhattan, Kansas, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Kansas. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.38 Kansas—(a) Proportionate share areas. Kansas shall be divided into two proportionate share areas, Area I comprising Wichita, Scott, Greeley and Wallace Counties, and Area II the balance of the State. Acreage allotments for these areas shall be computed by applying to the planted sugar beet acreage record for each area a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1955, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the largest acreage of any of the crops of 1950 through 1955, as a measure of "ability to produce". Acreage allotments computed as aforestated are established as follows: Area I—1,802 acres and Area II—5,465 acres.

(b) Set-asides of acreage. Set-asides of acreage shall be made from area allotments as follows: Area I—18 acres each for new producers and appeals; Area II—300 acres for new producers and 55 acres for appeals.

(c) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC County Office on form SU–100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(d) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares—(1) For new producers. Within the acreage set aside for new producers in each proportionate share area, proportionate shares shall be established in an equitable manner for farms to be operated during the 1956-crop year by new producers (as defined in § 850.30) by taking into consideration the availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(2) For second-year producers. For each farm operated in the 1956-crop year by a second-year producer (as defined in § 850.30), an initial proportionate share shall be established equal to the initial 1955-crop share established for such farm.

(3) For old producers—(i) Farm bases. For each farm whose operator is not a tenant in the 1956-crop season, the farm base shall be established from the planted sugar beet acreage record of the farm, and for each farm whose operator is a tenant in the 1956-crop season, a farm base shall be established from the planted sugar beet acreage record of the farm, or the planted sugar beet acreage record of the producer, whichever gives the higher base. Such farm base shall be computed by giving a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage of the crops of 1953 through 1955, as a measure of "ability to produce" and 25 percent to the average acreage of the crops of 1950 through 1955, as a measure of "past production."

(ii) Initial proportionate shares. Initial proportionate shares shall be established from farm bases in each area on a pro rata basis so that the total of the farm shares equals the area allotment less the prescribed set-asides and the initial shares of second-year producers.

(4) Adjustments in initial shares. Within the acreage available from initial shares in excess of requested acreages in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in initial farm proportionate shares for old producers and second-year producers so as to establish a proportionate share for each farm which is fair and equitable as compared with proportionate shares for all other farms in the area by taking into consideration availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(5) Adjustments under appeals. Within the acreage set aside for making adjustments under appeals and any other acreage remaining unused in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in proportionate shares under appeals to establish fair and equitable farm shares in accordance with the provisions of § 850.30 applicable to appeals.

(6) Adjustments because of unused acreage. To the extent of acreage available within the allotment for each proportionate share area from underplanting and failure to plant, and unused acreage from set-asides and other sources, adjustments shall be made in farm proportionate shares during the 1956-crop season. Insofar as practicable, acreage remaining unused in any area shall be reallotted to the other area wherein it may be used.

(7) Notification of farm operators. The farm operator shall be notified concerning the proportionate share established for his farm on form SU–103, Notice of Farm Proportionate Share—1956 Sugar Beet Crop, even if the acreage established is "none", and in each case of approved adjustment the farm operator shall be notified regarding the adjusted proportionate share on another form SU–103 if the adjustment results from an appeal, otherwise on a form SU–103–A or other similar written notice.

(8) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

TEXAS FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop, 20 F. R. 7159, as amended 20 F. R. 8772, 21 F. R. 986 and 3670, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Texas State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 1,631 acres established for Texas by the determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such committee at the U. S. D. A. Building, College Station, Texas, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Texas. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.45 Texas—(a) Set-asides of acreage. From the State allocation there is set aside 49 acres for use in establishing farm proportionate shares for new producers, 16 acres for adjusting individual farm proportionate shares under appeals, and 75.4 acres for adjusting initial farm proportionate shares.

(b) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC county office on form SU–100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(c) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares—(1) For new producers. Within the acreage set aside for new producers proportionate shares shall be established in an equitable manner for farms to be operated during the 1956–crop year by new producers (as defined in § 850.30) by taking into consideration the availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(2) For second-year producers. For each farm operated in the 1956–crop year by a second-year producer (as defined in § 850.30), an initial proportionate share shall be established equal to the initial 1955–crop share established for such farm.

(3) For old producers—(i) Farm bases. The farm base for each farm shall be established from the planted sugar beet acreage record of the farm by giving a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production" and a weighting of 25 percent to the average acreage of the crops of 1953–54, as a measure of "ability to produce."

(ii) Initial proportionate shares. Initial proportionate shares shall be established from farm bases on a pro rata basis so that the total of the farm shares equals the State allotment less the prescribed set-asides and the initial shares of second-year producers.

(4) Adjustments in initial shares. Within the acreage available from the set-aside for adjustments, and from acreage of initial shares in excess of requested acreages, adjustments shall be made in initial farm proportionate shares for old producers and second-year producers so as to establish a proportionate share for each farm which is fair and equitable as compared with proportionate shares for all other farms in the locality by taking into consideration availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(5) Adjustments under appeals. Within the acreage set aside for making adjustments under appeals and any other acreage remaining unused, adjustments shall be made in proportionate shares under appeals to establish fair and equitable farm shares in accordance with the provisions of § 850.30 applicable to appeals.

(6) Adjustments because of unused acreage. To the extent of acreage available within the State allocation from underplanting and failure to plant, and unused acreage from set-asides and other sources, adjustments shall be made in farm proportionate shares during the 1956–crop season.

(7) Notification of farm operators. The farm operator shall be notified concerning the proportionate share established for his farm on form SU–103, Notice of Farm Proportionate Share—1956 Sugar Beet Crop, even if the acreage established is "none", and in each case of approved adjustment the farm operator shall be notified regarding the adjusted proportionate share on another form SU–103 if the adjustment results from an appeal, otherwise on a form SU–103–A or other similar written notice.

(8) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

STATEMENT OF BASES AND CONSIDERATIONS

This supplement sets forth the bases and procedures established by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Texas State Committee for determining farm proportionate shares in Texas in accordance with the determination of proportionate shares for the 1956 crop of sugar beets, as issued by the Secretary of Agriculture.

In general, the bases and procedures specified herein are the same as those which were effective in the State for the 1955 crop. The establishment of individual farm proportionate shares directly from the State allocation, without subdividing the State into proportionate share areas, is reasonable, considering that the sugar beet producing region of the State is relatively small and only one beet sugar company contracts for acreage in Texas.

Farm proportionate shares of old producers are established under formulas which measure "past production" and "ability to produce" sugar beets. These standards are reflected in the initial farm shares established for second-year producers, which coincide with their initial 1955-crop shares, as provided under § 850.30. The procedure for establishing farm shares for new producers meets the related requirements of such section.

The bases and procedure for making adjustments in initial proportionate shares and for adjusting shares subsequently because of unused acreage and appeals are designed to provide a fair and equitable proportionate share for each farm of the total acreage of sugar beets required to enable the domestic sugar area to meet its quota and provide a normal carryover inventory.

PART 969—AVOCADOS GROWN IN SOUTH FLORIDA

REPORTS

Notice is hereby given of the approval of the amendment, as hereinafter set forth, of the rules and regulations (7 CFR 969.110 et seq.; Subpart—Rules and Regulations; 21 F. R. 2409) of the Avocado Administrative Committee, currently in effect pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 69, as amended (7 CFR Part 969), regulating the handling of avocados grown in South Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047).

It is hereby found and determined that the said amendment of the rules and regulations is in accordance with the provisions of the said amended marketing agreement and order and will tend to effectuate the declared purposes of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and the said rules and regulations are amended as follows:

Delete the provisions of § 969.150 Reports and insert in lieu thereof the following:

§ 969.150 Reports. Each handler shall file with the Avocado Administrative Committee, on a weekly basis, a report of all avocados received by him. Such report shall be on forms prescribed by the committee and shall include (a) the name and address of the handler; (b) weekly period covered by the report; (c) district in which the avocados were received; and (d) the quantity of each variety of avocados received. Each such report shall be filed with the committee not later than one week after the close of business of the last day of the period covered by the report.

It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date hereof until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) in that (1) shipment of the current crop of avocados is now in progress, and varieties of avocados are currently subject to maturity regulation under Avocado Order 12, as amended (21 F. R. 3307; 5469; 6329); (2) such maturity regulation is established by varieties and is subject to review and revision as the crop develops, and the data concerning varieties required by this amendment to be filed with the committee is necessary to provide a basis for recommendations by the committee; (3) handlers have been notified of the proposed adoption and recommendation to the Secretary of the said amendment; and (4) the procedures established by such amendment of the rules and regulations will not require any preparation which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 31st day of August 1956, to be effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Deputy Administrator.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

Subchapter A—Civil Air Regulations

PART 34—FLIGHT NAVIGATOR CERTIFICATES

REVISION OF PART

This revision of Part 34 is issued for the purpose of bringing the format and language of the part into conformity with more recently revised airman parts and incorporating into one document the recent amendments made to Part 34.

Attention is called to the fact that this revision adds definitions of the terms "Administrator," "Approved," and "Authorized representative of the Administrator." These definitions are identical with those contained in the other airman parts. Two provisions contained in the other airman parts are also added to clarify the procedure for taking examinations and tests and substantiating experience qualifications.

The identification card requirement contained in present Part 34 was intended to facilitate the identification of the holder in the event that future security restrictions might so require. However, after 5 years experience with the issuance of identification cards, it is now evident that they have served no useful purpose in the past, and it appears unlikely that the carriage of such a card by airmen would have any future beneficial effect upon the exercise of security controls. In view of this experience and in view of the fact that the requirement has created a burden for the applicant as well as the Government, for which no safety or security justification exists, it has been deleted from this revision.

Since the changes made herein are minor in nature and impose no additional burden on any person, notice and public procedure hereon are unnecessary and the revised part may be made effective on less than 30 days' notice.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby revises Part 34 of the Civil Air Regulations (14 CFR Part 34, as amended) as set forth below, effective on September 1, 1956.

By the Civil Aeronautics Board.

[SEAL] JOHN B. RUSSELL,
Acting Secretary.

TITLE 15—COMMERCE AND FOREIGN TRADE

Chapter III—Bureau of Foreign Commerce, Department of Commerce

Subchapter B—Export Regulations

[Eighth Gen. Rev. of Export Regs., Amdt. 7 [1]]

PART 368—MUTUAL ASSISTANCE ON U. S. IMPORTS AND EXPORTS

PART 371—GENERAL LICENSES

PART 372—PROVISIONS FOR INDIVIDUAL AND OTHER VALIDATED LICENSES

PART 373—LICENSING POLICIES AND RELATED SPECIAL PROVISIONS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. Section 368.1 Import certificate and delivery verification on selected imports into the United States, paragraph (b) United States Import Certificate is amended in the following particulars:

Subdivision (ii) of subparagraph (2) Where to file is amended to read as follows:

(ii) (a) The Import Certificate may be presented for validation either in person or by mail. The duly validated form will be returned to the United States importer and shall be dispatched by him to the foreign exporter or otherwise disposed of in accordance with the regulations of the exporting country.

(b) In accordance with international practice, the issuing office upon request will stamp the Import Certificate with a triangular symbol to indicate to the government of the exporting country that the importer is uncertain whether the commodities will be imported into the United States, or knows that the commodities will not be imported into the United States, but they will not be delivered to any destination except in accordance with the United States Export Regulations. The placing of a triangular symbol on a United States Import Certificate is not, in and of itself, an approval by the Bureau of Foreign Commerce to transfer or sell commodities to a foreign consignee. (See § 368.1 (b) (7) for method of obtaining such approval.)

Subparagraph (7) Approval of shipments to destinations other than the United States is amended to read as follows:

(7) Approval of shipment, transfer, or sale of commodities to a foreign consignee. (i) The written approval of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce is required before commodities covered by a United States Import Certificate whether or not bearing a triangle, may be shipped to a destination other than the United States or Canada or sold to a foreign purchaser, and before title to or possession of such commodities may be transferred to a foreign transferee.[2] [3]

(ii) In such cases, a letter requesting approval of the release of the shipment shall be submitted to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce. The letter shall show the United States Import Certificate number, the date issued, the location of the issuing office, and the names, addresses, and identity of all parties to the complete transaction, as well as the quantity, the dollar value, and the description of the commodity. The letter shall be accompanied by an Import Certificate, an ultimate consignee statement, or other documentation as required by the Export Regulations for the country of ultimate destination, as provided for license applications in §§ 373.2, 373.65, 373.66, 373.67, 373.69, and 373.70. Where none of these numbered sections of the Export Regulations apply to the transaction, the letter shall include the intended end-use of the commodities.

(iii) Where the Bureau of Foreign Commerce approves a request supported by a foreign import certificate (other than a Swiss Blue Import Certificate), further approval is not required in order for the purchaser or transferee to resell or again transfer the commodities. However, where the Bureau of Foreign Commerce approves a request which was not supported by a foreign import certificate, the person to whom approval is granted is required to inform the purchaser or transferee in writing that the commodities are to be shipped to the approved destination only and that no other disposition of the commodities is permitted

[1] This amendment was published in Current Export Bulletin No. 768, dated August 30, 1956.

[2] The provisions of this subparagraph do not apply after the commodities have been delivered in accordance with the undertaking set forth in the United States Import Certificate.

[3] The attention of United States purchasers is directed to the Transaction Control Regulations of the U. S. Treasury Department (Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations, §§ 505.01 to 505.60). These regulations prohibit persons within the United States from purchasing or selling, or arranging the purchase or sale, without a Treasury Department license, of any merchandise in any foreign country when the transaction involves a shipment from any foreign country to any Iron Curtain destination, of merchandise included in the Positive List (Part 399) followed by the letter "A", or of a type prohibited by any of the several regulations referred to in § 370.4.

The attention of purchasers is also directed to the Foreign Assets Control Regulations of the U. S. Treasury Department (Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations, §§ 500.101 to 500.808). These regulations prohibit persons subject to the jurisdiction of the United States from engaging in any unlicensed transactions with Communist China, North Korea, or nationals thereof, or in any unlicensed transactions involving property in which Communist China, North Korea, or nationals thereof have, or have had, any interest, direct or indirect, since December 17, 1950. The Foreign Assets Control Regulations also prohibit persons subject to the jurisdiction of the United States from engaging in any unlicensed transaction with respect to merchandise outside the United States if such merchandise is of Communist Chinese or North Korean origin, or is Chinese type merchandise specified in the regulations.

without the approval of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce.

(iv) If approval of the transaction is granted by the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, a validated letter of approval will be sent to the United States purchaser for retention in his records. Where a Delivery Verification or other official governmental confirmation of delivery is required, the validated letter from the Bureau of Foreign Commerce will so indicate.

(v) If the commodities covered by a United States Import Certificate have been imported into Canada or into any other ultimate destination other than the United States, and the foreign exporter of the commodities requests a Delivery Verification from the person who obtained the United States Import Certificate, the Import Certificate holder shall obtain a Delivery Verification from the person to whom the goods were delivered in the importing country (or if a Delivery Verification is unobtainable, other official governmental confirmation of delivery), and submit it to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, together with an explanatory letter showing the United States Import Certificate Number, the date issued and the location of the issuing office. The Bureau of Foreign Commerce will then notify the governmental authorities of the exporting country that the requirements of the government of the United States have been satisfied with respect to the delivery of the commodities.

Subparagraph (8) is added to read as follows:

(8) Delivery, sale, or transfer of commodities covered by a United States Import Certificate to another United States purchaser.

(i) Commodities covered by a United States Import Certificate may not be sold, and title to or possession of such commodities may not be transferred to another United States purchaser or transferee, before the commodities are delivered to the United States (or to an approved foreign destination, as provided by § 368.1 (b) (7)) except in accordance with the following provisions.[2]

Resale or transfer to another United States purchaser or transferee requires the prior approval of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce only in cases where the buyer or transferee is listed in § 382.51 Supplement 1; Table of compliance orders currently in effect denying export privileges, as amended. However, the person who obtained the Import Certificate is required under the terms of the Certificate to notify the Bureau of Foreign Commerce of any changes in facts or intentions relating to the transaction, and in all cases he is held responsible for the delivery of the commodities in accordance with the Export Regulations. In order to carry out this responsibility, the seller or transferor in all cases is required to secure, prior to sale or transfer, and to retain in his files for three years written acceptance by the purchaser or transferee of: (a) all obligations undertaken by and imposed under the Export Regulations of the United States upon the holder of the United States Import Certificate; and (b) an undertaking that all subsequent sales or transfers will be made subject to the same conditions.

(ii) The responsibility of the United States person or firm executing an Import Certificate for providing the foreign exporter with confirmation of the delivery of the commodities covered includes instances where the commodities resold are transferred to another United States person or firm prior to actual delivery to the United States or to an approved foreign destination. Where such resale or transfer occurs, the person who executed the Import Certificate shall secure in writing from the United States purchaser or transferee, and retain in his files for three years: (a) acceptance of the obligation to provide him with either the delivery verification (or other official governmental confirmation of delivery if a Delivery Verification is unobtainable) or assurance that this documentation was submitted to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, and (b) an undertaking that each succeeding United States transferee or purchaser will assume the obligations set forth (a) of this subdivision. In each case the seller or transferor shall transmit to the purchaser or transferee the identification number of the United States Import Certificate covering the exportation from the foreign country, and request that they pass it on to any other United States purchasers or transferees.

This part of the amendment shall become effective as of October 1, 1956.

2. Section 368.1 Import certificate and delivery verification on selected imports into the United States, paragraph (d) Delivery verification on imports into the United States, subparagraph (1) General, subdivision (iii) is amended to read as follows:

(iii) Where a United States person or firm is required to provide a delivery verification and does not wish to disclose to his seller or transferor the name of his customer he may obtain the Delivery Verification and send it to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, Operations Division, Washington 25, D. C. The Bureau of Foreign Commerce will then undertake to notify the governmental authorities in the country of the seller or transferor of the satisfactory delivery of the commodities. In notifying the country requesting the Delivery Verification the Bureau of Foreign Commerce will forward an appropriately modified Form FC–956 "Delivery Compliance Notice" signifying the receipt of satisfactory assurances that the commodities were imported into the United States.

This part of the amendment shall become effective as of October 1, 1956.

3. Section 371.13 General Licenses SHIP STORES, PLANE STORES, CREW, and REGISTERED CARRIER STORES, paragraph (b) General License PLANE STORES, subparagraphs (1) Scope and (2) Restrictions on the exportation of petroleum and petroleum products for use on aircraft are amended to read as follows:

(1) Scope. A general license designated PLANE STORES is hereby established authorizing exportation to any destination except North Korea, subject to the conditions set forth in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, on aircraft of foreign registry departing from the United States, of usual and reasonable kinds and quantities of (i) fuel; (ii) deck, engine, and steward department stores, provisions, and supplies; (iii) medicinal and surgical supplies; (iv) food stores; and (v) saloon stores or supplies, for use or consumption during the outgoing trip of such aircraft and any immediate return trip scheduled, and not intended for unlading in a foreign country and not exported under a Bill of Lading as cargo; and of usual and reasonable kinds and quantities of equipment and spare parts when necessary for the proper operation of such aircraft, and not intended for unlading in a foreign country and not exported under a Bill of Lading as cargo.

(2) Restrictions on the exportation of petroleum and petroleum products for use on aircraft. No exportation of petroleum or petroleum products (including those used as fuel) listed in paragraph (a) (3) of this section may be made under this general license on a foreign aircraft of 12,000 pounds or more gross load departing from the United States, for use on board such aircraft if the aircraft (i) has called at Macao or any point under Far Eastern Communist control during the 30 days immediately preceding the date on which such commodities are to be laden aboard the aircraft; (ii) will call at Macao or any point under Far Eastern Communist control within 30 days after the date such commodities are laden aboard the aircraft; (iii) will carry within this 30-day period commodities, of any origin, known by the owner, aircraft commander, or agent to be destined directly or indirectly to Macao or any point under Far Eastern Communist control, unless the commodities so carried are covered by an export license issued by the Bureau of Foreign Commerce or any other agency of the United States Government; or (iv) is registered or documented in any Subgroup A country or is controlled by, or under charter to, any Subgroup A country or a national of any Subgroup A country.

This part of the amendment shall become effective as of October 1, 1956.

(i) The carrier's call at Macao, or any point under Far Eastern Communist control, and dates of each call, within 180 days prior to date of application (or 30 days in the case of aircraft).

(ii) Submit for each point of call mentioned in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, a copy of the manifest of cargo loaded or discharged. Also give the destination and anticipated dates of discharge of any cargo still on board the carrier which was laden at such point. The contents of the manifest submitted will be treated as confidential and will not be disclosed to any person other than a party in interest.

(iii) The carrier's proposed calls at Macao or any point under Far Eastern Communist control for the next 120 days in the case of vessels (30 days in the case of aircraft) from the anticipated date of departure from the last port in the United States.[1]

(iv) If the carrier will call at Macao or a point under Far Eastern Communist control within the period of time shown in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph or if the carrier is registered in, or under charter to, a Subgroup A country, or if the carrier is under charter to a national of a Subgroup A country, state whether any commodities included on the Positive List of Commodities (§ 399.1 of this subchapter), the United States Munitions List (§ 370.4 (a) of this subchapter), or the United States Atomic Energy List (§ 370.4 (d) of this subchapter), are carried on board the vessel or aircraft and destined directly or indirectly to any of these destinations. If the answer is in the affirmative, indicate where such commodities will be discharged, unless this information has already been supplied in accordance with subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph.

(2) In the case of vessels, state (in the space provided for "end use") the gross registered tonnage (GRT), type of main engines and rated horsepower, with daily fuel consumption rate, total fuel capacity, and fuel supply on board, indicating specifically the number of days' running supply from the port where additional supplies are requested. In the case of aircraft, state make and model.

This part of the amendment shall become effective as of October 1, 1956.

6. Section 373.7 Commodities exported for exhibition is amended to read as follows:

§ 373.7 Commodities exported for exhibition. (a) When a person in the United States applies for a license to ex-

[1] If the carrier's itinerary for all of the next 120 days in the case of vessels (or 30 days in the case of aircraft) is not known and cannot be ascertained, the itinerary shall be stated so far as it may be known or ascertainable. In addition, all other available information as to the future destinations and areas of operation shall be submitted.

port a commodity for display at a trade fair or other exhibition, with the intention of returning it to the United States, forwarding it for display at another trade fair or exhibition, or selling it abroad to a yet undetermined purchaser during or after exhibition (as distinguished from instances where it is intended to sell the commodities prior to exhibition or where they will be sold during or after exhibition to a known purchaser abroad), the application for an export license does not require the support of an ultimate consignee statement or import certificate, or other documentation issued by the country of ultimate destination. However, such application shall include the following certification:

These commodities are to be exported for exhibition from _____ (Date)
to _____ (Date)
at _____ (Official name of fair or exhibition) to be held at _____ (Location) and if they are not returned to the United States at the end of the exhibition they will not be otherwise disposed of without prior authorization of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce.

(b) In addition, since the applicant retains title to the commodities, he shall be shown as the ultimate consignee, in care of the person who will have custody of the commodities abroad.

(c) When it is decided that the exhibited commodities are not to be returned to the United States, the request made to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for authorization to display the commodities at another fair or exhibition or to otherwise dispose of the commodities shall be made by means of a letter setting forth the proposed disposition, the license number, the BFC case number, the ultimate destination, the commodity description, the quantity, and the Schedule B number of the commodity, as well as the name, address, and identity of each party to the transaction. In addition, except where the request is for permission to exhibit at another fair or other exhibition, the letter shall be accompanied by all documents required in support of an application for an export license to the proposed destination. The Bureau of Foreign Commerce will validate and issue Form FC–L–58 "Authorization to Dispose of Commodities Shipped to Trade Fairs" for approved requests. If it is subsequently desired to forward the commodities for display at another fair or other exhibition or to make any other use or disposition of the commodities not authorized by the validated Form FC–L–58, an amendment of the form shall be requested by means of a letter to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce containing the same information and documentation as that described above.

This part of the amendment shall become effective as of August 30, 1956.

TITLE 32—NATIONAL DEFENSE

Chapter I—Office of the Secretary of Defense

[Amdt. 15]

Subchapter A—Armed Services Procurement Regulations

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS TO SUBCHAPTER

The following miscellaneous amendments are made to this subchapter:

PART 1—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SUBPART C—GENERAL POLICIES

1. Section 1.300 has been revised as follows:

§ 1.300 Scope of subpart. This subpart sets forth general policies with respect to (a) methods of procurement, (b) sources of supply (including governmental and foreign sources), (c) types of contracts, (d) specifications, (e) transportation costs, and (f) responsible prospective contractors.

2. Section 1.306 has been revised to provide expanded coverage with respect to transportation aspects of procurement. In addition to policy in choosing place of delivery, the revised paragraph now covers the effect of such factors as quantity analysis, commodity description, delivery terms, consignment and marking instructions, scheduling of deliveries to permit consolidation of shipments, transit arrangements, rate information, volume shipments, unusually large or heavy shipments, and mode of transportation.

§ 1.306–1 General. Proper consideration of transportation costs is necessary to insure that procurement is on the basis most advantageous to the Government. Contracting officers shall give consideration to the transportation factors set forth below which may affect such costs.

§ 1.306–2 Place of delivery—(a) Shipments originating within the continental United States for ultimate delivery within the continental United States. Unless there are valid reasons to the contrary, the procurement of supplies from sources and for delivery within the continental limits of the United States shall be in accordance with the following policy:

(1) when it is estimated that a contract will require no shipment to a single destination which will equal a minimum carload or truckload lot, delivery shall be made on the basis of all transportation charges paid to destination.

(2) when it is estimated that a contract will require a shipment of a minimum carload or truckload lot, delivery shall be either on the basis of:

(i) At the Government's option f. o. b. carrier's equipment, wharf, or freight station at a specified city or shipping point at or near contractor's plant; or

(ii) All transportation charges paid to destination, whichever is the more advantageous to the Government. In formally advertised procurements the Invitation for Bids shall provide that bidders may bid on either or both of the above bases, and bids shall be evaluated on the basis of overall cost to the Government.

In the absence of specific information to the contrary, a minimum carload or truckload lot shall be deemed to be approximately 20,000 pounds.

(b) Shipments originating within the continental United States for ultimate delivery outside the continental United States. Unless there are valid reasons to the contrary, purchases of supplies within the continental United States for ultimate delivery to destinations outside of the continental United States, regardless of the quantity of the shipment, shall be made on the basis of delivery at the Government's option, f. o. b. carrier's equipment, wharf, or freight station at a specified city or shipping point at or near contractor's plant. This policy applies to supplies shipped directly to a port area for export or to storage areas for subsequent reshipment to a port area for export.

(c) Shipments originating outside the continental United States. Selection of place of delivery for shipments originating outside continental limits of the United States shall be in accordance with procedures prescribed by each respective Department.

§ 1.306–3 Quantity analysis. When additional quantities of the item being purchased can be transported at no increase in transportation cost or when purchase of carload or truckload quantities will result in lower unit transportation costs, consideration shall be given to the purchase of such additional quantities or of carload or truckload quantities.

§ 1.306–4 Commodity description. A complete description of the commodity being purchased, including packing and packaging instructions, is necessary not only to enable the supplier to bid or quote properly on the requirement, but also for subsequent freight classification purposes.

§ 1.306–5 Delivery terms. To preclude any misunderstanding by suppliers, delivery terms shall be stated clearly in Invitations for Bids or Requests for Proposals. Contracts for supplies purchased f. o. b. destination shall generally provide that supplies shall be delivered, all transportation charges paid, to the specified destination by the contractor. Contracts for supplies purchased f. o. b. origin shall generally provide for delivery, at the Government's option, f. o. b. carrier's equipment, wharf, or freight station at a specified city or shipping point at or near the contractor's plant, in order that military traffic management offices may, in issuing routing instructions, select the mode of transportation which will provide the required service at the lowest cost.

§ 1.306–6 Consignment and marking instructions. Complete consignment and marking instructions shall be included in contracts to assist in insuring that supplies will be delivered to proper destinations without delay. Attention shall be given to the fact that receiving activities may have different consignment points for the various transportation media.

§ 1.306–7 Scheduling of Deliveries to permit consolidation of shipments. The accumulation of small shipments into carload or truckload lots will result in lower transportation costs. Also, the accumulation of small shipments into less than load shipments may also result in lower transportation costs. Upon review of the purchase requisition, and in conjunction with the requiring or requisitioning activity, consideration shall be given to revising delivery schedules to provide for deliveries in larger quantities. In some cases, delivery schedules for supplies to be delivered to multiple destinations can be consolidated and the stop-off in transit privilege used for partial unloading at one or more points directly en route between the point of origin and the last destination.

§ 1.306–8 Transit arrangements. Transit arrangements afford an opportunity to store or process carload or truckload shipments at specific intermediate points en route to the final destination. A single through rate from origin to final destination, plus a transit or other related charge if applicable, is charged in lieu of a combination of rates to and from the transit point which would result in higher costs.

§ 1.306–9 Rates. Generally, carriers are required by both Federal and State laws to charge all shippers equally for like services rendered. However, when Government traffic possesses more favorable transportation characteristics (greater volume, heavier loading, less likelihood of damage, etc.) than commercial traffic between the same origins and destinations, freight rates are often lower for the Government traffic. Rate information shall be obtained from the appropriate military traffic management office.

§ 1.306–10 Volume shipments. Procurements involving volume shipments (as defined in Departmental instructions) shall be referred at the earliest practicable time to the appropriate military traffic management office for a determination of the reasonableness of applicable current rates and, when appropriate, for negotiation of adjusted or modified rates.

§ 1.306–11 Unusually large or heavy shipments. Prior to purchasing unusually large, heavy, high, wide, or long items, the appropriate military traffic management office shall be consulted in order that any transportation difficulties may be considered. Additional costs, such as the use or special equipment, excess blocking and bracing material, circuitous routing, etc., incident to these shipments shall also be considered, in conjunction with the freight rate, in determining total transportation costs.

§ 1.306–12 Mode of transportation. Generally, the military traffic management office is the proper authority to specify the mode and routing of shipments. If urgency in delivery is a factor, the appropriate military traffic management office shall be so informed in order that routing authorities may select the means of transportation consistent with the stated urgency.

PART 2—PROCUREMENT BY FORMAL ADVERTISING

SUBPART E—QUALIFIED PRODUCTS

The provision to be inserted in invitations for bids involving qualified products has been revised by an amendment of § 2.505–2 to authorize consideration of bids where the products involved have been tested and approved up to the "time set for opening of bids". Previously the cut-off time was the "bid opening date."

§ 2.505–2 Solicitation of bids. In formally advertised procurements involving qualified products, the following provision shall be inserted in invitations for bids:

With respect to products requiring qualification, awards will be made only for such products as have, prior to the time set for opening of bids, been tested and approved for inclusion in the Qualified Products List (insert here the title of the applicable Federal or Military Qualified Products List or Lists), whether or not such products have actually been so listed by that date. Manufacturers are urged to communicate with the (insert here the name and address of the applicable office) and arrange to have the products that they propose to offer tested for qualification.

PART 3—PROCUREMENT BY NEGOTIATION

SUBPART C—DETERMINATIONS AND FINDINGS

The responsibility for furnishing Determinations and Findings in negotiated coordinated procurements has been clarified by amendment of § 3.306. Generally, the Procuring Department makes the Determinations and Findings, based upon information furnished by the Requiring Department with the MIPR. The Requiring Department will make and furnish Determinations and Findings when the procurement is negotiated under section 2 (c) (13) of the Act; and under section 2 (c) (16) only when the coordinated procurement takes place pursuant to agreement between the Departments.

§ 3.306 Procedure with respect to determinations and findings. Each Determination and Findings shall be approved and processed in accordance with procedures prescribed by each respective Department, except that Determinations and Findings for procurement by negotiation with respect to coordinated procurement (§ 4.101–1 of this subchapter) shall be made in accordance with § 4.206–2 of this subchapter.

SUBPART D—TYPES OF CONTRACTS

Section 3.404 has been revised as follows:

§ 3.404 Cost-reimbursement type contract—(a) Description. The cost-reimbursement type of contract provides for payment to the contractor of allowable costs incurred in the performance of the contract, to the extent prescribed in the contract. This type of contract establishes an estimate of total cost for the purpose of (i) obligation of funds, and (ii) establishing a ceiling which the contractor may not exceed (except at his own risk) without prior approval or subsequent ratification of the contracting officer. A cost-reimbursement type contract may, to the extent authorized by Subpart G of this part, provide for negotiated fixed overhead rates.

(b) Applicability. The cost-reimbursement type contract is suitable for use when the nature and complexity of the procurement is such that costs of performance cannot be estimated with reasonable accuracy. In addition, it is essential that (1) the contractor's cost accounting system is adequate for the determination of costs applicable to the contract and (2) appropriate surveillance by Government personnel during performance will give reasonable assurance that inefficient or wasteful methods are not being used. While cost-reimbursement contracts are particularly useful for procurements involving substantial amounts, i. e., estimated cost of $25,000 or more, the Contracting Officer may determine in a given case to utilize this type of contract to cover transactions in which the estimated costs are less than $25,000.

(c) Limitations. The cost-reimbursement type contract may be used only after a determination, in accordance with the requirements of Subpart C of this part, that:

(1) Such method of contracting is likely to be less costly than other methods, or

(2) It is impractical to secure supplies or services of the kind or quality required without the use of such type of contract.

SUBPART G—NEGOTIATED OVERHEAD RATES

A new Subpart G to Part 3 prescribes DoD policy and procedure governing the negotiation of overhead rates for use in cost-reimbursement type contracts. Since the Comptroller General has held "predetermined" overhead rates to be illegal (Decision No. B–126794, dated January 27, 1956) use of them shall be discontinued according to the following schedule:

(1) Commercial contractors. Predetermined overhead rates are no longer acceptable in proposals, and shall not be incorporated in contracts executed after 30 June 1956.

(2) Research and development contracts with educational institutions. Predetermined overhead rates are not acceptable in proposals received after June 30, 1956, and shall not be incorporated in contracts executed after 30 September 1956.

In accordance with the new Subpart G, Part 3, overhead rates may be negotiated only on the basis of historical or after-the-fact costs and when incorporated in contracts will affect only the related historical period. Prospective rates may be used on a provisional basis only, subject to adjustment at the end of an appropriate historical period. It is contemplated that uniform clauses will be available shortly for insertion in applicable contracts.

SUBPART G—NEGOTIATED OVERHEAD RATES

§ 3.700 Scope of subpart. This subpart sets forth the policy and procedure governing the negotiation of overhead rates for use in cost-reimbursement type contracts.

§ 3.701 Definitions.

§ 3.701–1 Negotiated final overhead rates. The term negotiated final overhead rate, as used in this subpart, means a percentage or dollar factor which expresses the ratio(s) mutually agreed upon by the Government and the contractor, at the close of a period (see § 3.704 (i)), of indirect expenses incurred in the period to direct labor, manufacturing cost, cost of sales, or other appropriate base of the same period. Such rate is used as a means of determining the amount of reimbursement under a contract for the applicable indirect costs.

§ 3.701–2 Provisional overhead rates. The term provisional overhead rate, as used in this Part, means a tentative overhead rate established for interim billing purposes pending a negotiation of the final overhead rate.

§ 3.701–3 Overhead (indirect costs). The term overhead (indirect costs) as used in this part, includes, but is not limited to, the general groups of indirect expenses such as those generated in manufacturing departments, engineering departments, tooling departments, general and administrative departments and, if applicable, indirect costs accumulated by cost centers within these general groups. In the case of contractors using fund accounting systems, the term includes, but is not limited to, the general groups of expenses such as general administration and general expense, maintenance and operation of physical plant, library expenses, and use charges for building and equipment.

§ 3.702 Purpose. The major purposes of negotiated final overhead rates are: (a) to effect uniformity of approach in cases where more than one contract or more than one Military Department is involved; (b) to effect economy in administrative effort; and (c) to promote timely settlement of reimbursement claims.

§ 3.703 Applicability. Negotiated final overhead rates are authorized for use primarily in cost-reimbursement type contracts for research and development with commercial organizations and nonprofit or educational institutions. They may also be used in other cost-reimbursement type contracts, after a determination is made by the contracting officer that their use is advantageous to the Government and provided general requirements for use of overhead rates set forth in § 3.704 are met. Where it is not apparent that any one of the major purposes enumerated in § 3.702 results or will result by the use of negotiated final overhead rates, the contracting officer will provide for settlement of overhead by audit determination.

§ 3.704 Contract requirements. Cost-reimbursement type contracts providing for the use of negotiated final overhead rates shall, among other things, require that—

(a) Overhead rates be established for regularly stated periods (preferably the contractor's fiscal year);

(b) The contractor submit a proposal to the contracting officer or his authorized representative setting forth its claimed overhead rates, together with schedules of historical costs to support such proposal. The proposal shall be submitted as soon as practicable but not later than 90 days (6 months for educational institutions) after the expiration of the stated period specified in the contract;

(c) Overhead rate proposals be subject to accounting review and audit of the records of the contractor by any authorized departmental representative;

(d) Part 15 of this subchapter be used as the basis for determining allowability of indirect expenses and acceptability of the methods of allocation used in negotiating final overhead rates;

(e) Provisional payment on account of overhead may be made either on the basis of billing rates not incorporated in the contract or on the basis of negotiated provisional overhead rates incorporated in the contract. In the event that provisional payments are to be made on the basis of billing rates, they shall be subject to the approval of the contracting officer or his authorized representative. Where negotiated provisional overhead rates are incorporated in the contract, to prevent substantial over or under provisional reimbursement, the contract shall provide that, at the request of either of the contracting parties, the provisional rate may be revised by mutual agreement and appropriate amendment to the contract; and,

(f) Overhead rates be negotiated promptly after receipt of the contractor's proposal.

§ 3.705 Procedure. The procedure for use of negotiated final overhead rates generally consists of submission by the contractor of an overhead rate proposal, submission of an advisory audit report, review of the contractor's proposal and the advisory audit report, conduct of negotiation, preparation of a negotiation report or summary, and execution of contract amendments or supplemental agreements.

(a) Where only one procurement activity is concerned the proposal shall be submitted to the contracting officer or his authorized representative, with a copy to the cognizant audit activity. Where coordinated negotiations as described under § 3.706 are involved, contractors' overhead rate proposals may be submitted to the cognizant negotiating activity of the Department sponsoring the negotiation, with a copy to the cognizant audit activity.

(b) The determination as to the necessity of an advisory audit report for overhead rate negotiation purposes and the extent of the use of such report is the sole responsibility of the contracting officer. Unless advised to the contrary by the contracting officer, the cognizant audit activity shall submit an audit advisory report to the contracting officer or his authorized representative. Such report shall set forth the findings of the audit activity including the results of discussion of such findings with the contractor. The audit or accounting review will be governed by the provisions of Part 15 of this subchapter.

(c) Where there is a significant difference of opinion between the auditor and the contractor concerning the allowability of indirect costs or the acceptability of the bases used in developing the overhead rates, representatives of the audit activity and the negotiating activity will discuss the areas of disagreement prior to the negotiation conference with the contractor. As a further aid to the negotiating activity, a representative of the audit activity will, upon request, attend the negotiation conference.

(d) The negotiation conference will be conducted by the contracting officer or his authorized representative. Where coordinated negotiation is involved (§ 3.706), the sponsoring negotiating activity will be the authorized representative of those procuring activities not represented. The negotiation shall be governed by Part 15 of this subchapter and shall encompass an agreement on final overhead rates, the specific items to be treated as direct charges, and the provisional overhead rates if such rates are to be specified in the contract.

(e) At the completion of the negotiation, the contracting officer or his authorized representative shall prepare a negotiation report or summary, setting forth the rates negotiated, the reasons for variation from the audit report, if any, the period of rate applicability, the basis for the determination of such rates and, where applicable, the provisional rates agreed upon for application in the succeeding period. Such report or summary shall be the basis for amending the affected contracts; it shall become a part of the contract file; and copies shall be distributed to any interested procurement activities and the audit activity.

(f) Supplemental agreements or contract amendments will incorporate the negotiated final overhead rates, the bases to which they apply, the period of rate applicability, and the agreement with respect to the specific items of direct charges referred to in paragraph (d) of this section.

§ 3.706 Coordination. When more than one Military Department contemplates the use of negotiated final overhead rates with the same contractor, the service having the preponderance of cost-reimbursement type work will, generally, sponsor and conduct the negotiation. Each Department having an interest will be notified of the pending negotiation and will be invited to participate in the negotiation. If a Department does not have a representative at the negotiation, the sponsoring Department will represent the absentee Department. The results of the negotiation will be binding upon all Departments. At the completion of the negotiation, the sponsoring Department will prepare and distribute to the other Departments a Negotiation Report or Summary as provided for in § 3.705 (e). Each Military Department shall thereupon amend or supplement the affected contracts in accordance with the rates and other data set forth in the negotiation report or summary.

§ 3.707 Cost-sharing rates. Cost-sharing arrangements are frequently made wherein the cost participation by the contractor is evidenced by an agreement to accept overhead rates which are lower than the anticipated actual overhead rates. In such cases, a negotiated fixed-ceiling overhead rate may be used for application prospectively, provided that in the event overhead rates developed by the cognizant audit activity on the basis of actual allowable costs are less than the negotiated rates, the negotiated rates will be reduced. Where reductions are necessary, they will be accomplished in accordance with § 3.705. The Government will not be obligated to pay any additional amounts on account of overhead above the negotiated fixed-ceiling rates.

PART 4—COORDINATED PROCUREMENT

A new § 4.206–2 has been added to § 4.206 clarifying the responsibility for furnishing Determinations and Findings in negotiated coordinated procurements. Generally the Procuring Department makes the Determinations and Findings, based upon information furnished by the Requiring Department with the MIPR. The Requiring Department will make and furnish Determinations and Findings when the procurement is negotiated under section 2 (c) (13) of the act; and under section 2 (c) (16) only when the coordinated procurement takes place pursuant to agreement between the Departments. Section 4.206–2 reads as follows:

§ 4.206 Purchase authorization.

§ 4.206–2 Determinations and findings. (a) When procurement is by negotiation, the Procuring Department except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, shall make the Determinations and Findings in accordance with Part 3, Subpart C, of this subchapter with respect to coordinated procurement. The Requiring Department shall furnish with the procurement request the information required by the Procuring Department to develop the Determinations and Findings.

(b) With respect to section 2 (c) (13) of the act, the Requiring Department shall make the Determinations and Findings in accordance with Part 3, Subpart C, of this subchapter. Two copies of the Determinations and Findings shall be attached to the procurement request and shall be utilized by the Procuring Department as authority for negotiation under the act, and the Procuring Department need not make further Determinations and Findings.

(c) With respect to section 2 (c) (16) of the act and when the procurement agreements under § 4.002 (as distinguished from single procurement) do not include mobilization planning responsibility, the Requiring Department shall make the Determinations and Findings in accordance with Part 3, Subpart C, of this subchapter. Two copies of the Determinations and Findings shall be attached to the procurement request and shall be utilized by the Procuring Department as authority for negotiation under the act, and the Procuring Department need not make further Determinations and Findings. With respect to single procurement (§ 4.101–2), the Procuring Department shall make the Determinations and Findings.

PART 5—INTERDEPARTMENTAL PROCUREMENT

SUBPART E—PROCUREMENT OF BLIND-MADE SUPPLIES

Revision of § 5.504–2 requires that a purchase order be issued when making purchases from institutions for the blind. Previously, it was permissible to issue delivery orders.

§ 5.504–2 Through national industries for the blind. When procurement of blind-made supplies is to be effected through the National Industries for the Blind, such procurement shall be made by submitting directly to the National Industries for the Blind, 15 West 16th Street, New York 11, New York, a request, in letter form, for an allocation. Upon receipt of the request, requirements will be allocated by the National Industries for the Blind and the procuring activity will be notified of the name and location of the agency designated to manufacture the requirements. Upon receipt of such notification, a purchase order shall be issued to the designated agency for the blind.

PART 15—CONTRACT COST PRINCIPLES

TITLE 42—PUBLIC HEALTH

Chapter I—Public Health Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Subchapter G—Water Pollution Control; Hearing Procedures

PART 81—PUBLIC HEARINGS UNDER THE WATER POLLUTION CONTROL ACT OF 1948

On July 10, 1956 a notice of proposed rule making regarding an amendment of Subchapter F of this chapter was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5119) which stated in full the details of the proposed regulations. The enactment of the Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1956 (70 Stat. 498) on July 9, 1956 necessitates the addition of a provision making clear that these regulations will apply only to proceedings under the Water Pollution Control Act of 1948, as in effect prior to the enactment of such amendments, which continues to be applicable to certain enforcement proceedings. The regulations previously published in the FEDERAL REGISTER under the notice of proposed rule making have been renumbered and redesignated Part 81 of a new Subchapter G.

The amendments set forth below are hereby adopted and shall become effective 30 days after their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

§ 81.1 Applicability. The provisions of this part apply only to proceedings arising out of any discharge or discharges causing or contributing to water pollution with respect to which the actions by the Surgeon General prescribed under paragraph (2) of section 2 (d) of the Water Pollution Control Act as in effect prior to the enactment of the Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1956 (70 Stat. 498) on July 9, 1956, have already been completed prior to such enactment. This does not, however, prevent action with respect to any such pollution under and in accordance with the provisions of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (70 Stat. 498).

§ 81.2 Definitions. As used in this part:

(a) "Act" means the Water Pollution Control Act (62 Stat. 1155 et seq., 33 U. S. C. 466–466j) as in effect prior to the enactment of the Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1956 (70 Stat. 498).

If it then appears to the Secretary that a public hearing would contribute to the abatement of the pollution, he will call such a hearing, and may either fix the time and place thereof, or authorize the Surgeon General to do so.

(b) Prior to the hearing, the Secretary will appoint a hearing board of five or more persons, as provided in the act, and may designate one of the members as chairman. The Secretary may thereafter revoke appointments to the Board, or the designation of one of its members as chairman and may fill any vacancy in the membership of the Board, or in the office of chairman.

(e) The Board may authorize the chairman on its behalf to execute, issue or serve such notices, reports, communications, and other documents relating to the functions of the Board as it may deem proper.

(f) The Surgeon General shall provide for the Board such clerical and technical assistance as may be necessary.

(g) The Board shall designate a secretary, from personnel provided by the Surgeon General, who shall maintain and have custody of all official records and other documents pertaining to the functions of the Board, and shall perform such other duties as the Board may prescribe.

§ 81.5 Notice of hearing. (a) The Surgeon General shall issue and serve notice of hearing as herein provided and, if the time and place of the hearing have not been fixed by the Secretary, shall fix such time and place.

(b) The notice of hearing shall identify the person or persons discharging any matter causing or contributing to the pollution, and briefly describe the nature of the discharge or discharges and the interstate waters affected thereby. The notice shall include the names of the persons constituting the Board before whom the hearing will be held upon a day and at a time and place specified not earlier than thirty (30) days after the service of the notice.

(b) The Surgeon General shall have all the rights of a party to the hearing.

(c) Upon application and good cause shown, the Board may permit any interested person or agency to appear before it and be admitted as a party to such extent and upon such terms as the Board shall determine proper.

(d) Any party may appear in person or by counsel.

(e) The failure of any party to file an appearance or appear at the hearing in response to the notice of hearing shall not delay the hearing and the Board may proceed, hear and receive evidence and take other appropriate action affecting such party.

§ 81.9 Prehearing procedures. (a) Upon request made to the Board within fifteen (15) days after the service of the notice of hearing, any party shall be afforded an opportunity for the submission of facts, arguments, or proposals to secure abatement of the pollution where time, the nature of the proceeding, and the public interest permit, and due consideration shall be given the same by the Board. Such submission shall be in writing. The filing of such request shall not operate to delay the hearing.

(b) The Board may, at any time, prior to the conclusion of the hearing, on its own initiative or at the request of any party, call a conference with any or all parties to consider:

(d) Every party shall have the right to cross-examination, presentation of evidence, objection, argument and other fundamental rights.

(e) Rulings of the chairman on the receipt of evidence and other questions relating to the procedure of the hearing may be appealed to the Board.

(b) All written statements, charts, tabulations and similar data offered in evidence at the hearing shall be marked for identification and upon a showing satisfactory to the Board of their authenticity, relevancy and materiality shall be received in evidence and shall constitute a part of the record.

(c) Where the testimony of a witness refers to a statute, or a report or document, the Board shall, after satisfying itself of identification of such statute, report or document, determine whether the same shall be produced at the hearing and physically be made a part of the record or shall be incorporated in the record by reference.

(d) The Board may take official notice of statutes of the United States or of any State and of duly promulgated regulations of any Federal agency.

(e) The Board may take official notice of a material fact not appearing in the evidence in the record, but any party, prior to the conclusion of the hearing, shall be afforded an opportunity to show the contrary.

Such material shall be submitted in such number of copies as the Board may direct and shall be based solely upon the evidence presented at the hearing, citing the pages of the transcript of the testimony or of properly identified exhibits where such evidence occurs.

§ 81.14 Final findings and recommendations. (a) After consideration of the whole record, and all proposed findings, conclusions and recommendations, the Board shall make its final findings, conclusions and recommendations, if any, based on the evidence presented at the hearing, and submit the same to the Secretary.

(b) Upon submission of such findings, conclusions and recommendations, the Board shall be terminated and all records pertaining to its functions transferred to the custody of the Surgeon General.

(c) A copy of the findings, conclusions, and recommendations, if any, of the Board shall be served on all parties to the hearing by the Secretary.

§ 99.201 Basis and purpose. It is the purpose of this program to provide temporary assistance to tungsten producers for an interim period to enable them to adjust production, largely related to defense programs, to normal competitive market conditions. Sections 99.201 to 99.208 interpret and implement the authority of the Administrator of General Services to purchase tungsten concentrates of domestic origin for the period beginning July 19, 1956, to December 31, 1958, pursuant to authority delegated by the Secretary of the Interior on July 31, 1956 (21 F. R. 5872), and outlines the attendant responsibilities and functions of the Administrator of General Services in purchasing such tungsten concentrates for the Government. In accordance with the program set forth in §§ 99.201 to 99.208, the Administrator will buy domestically produced tungsten concentrates, at a base price of $55.00 per short ton unit of contained tungsten trioxide (WO_3), less penalties.

§ 99.202 Definitions. As used in §§ 99.201 to 99.208:

(a) "Administrator" means the Administrator of General Services.

(b) "Program" means the terms and conditions set forth in §§ 99.201 to 99.208 pursuant to which the Government will purchase tungsten concentrates.

(c) "Milling point" means plant where ores are processed into specification grade tungsten concentrates.

(d) "Tungsten concentrates" means tungsten concentrates produced in the United States, its Territories and possessions from ores mined in the United States, its Territories and possessions.

(e) "Short ton unit" means one percent of 2,000 pounds avoirdupois dry weight.

(f) "Ferberite" means concentrates containing tungsten primarily as $FeWO_4$ with not more than 20 percent of the tungsten as $MnWO_4$.

(g) "Hubnerite" means concentrates containing tungsten primarily as $MnWO_4$ with not more than 20 percent of the tungsten as $FeWO_4$.

(h) "Wolframite" means concentrates containing tungsten as both $FeWO_4$ and $MnWO_4$ in any proportions from 80 percent $FeWO_4$ and 20 percent $MnWO_4$ to 20 percent $FeWO_4$ and 80 percent $MnWO_4$.

(i) "Scheelite" means concentrates containing, in nature, tungsten as $CaWO_4$.

(j) "Synthetic Scheelite" means chemically precipitated scheelite produced from any natural type of ore, and shall be chemically precipitated scheelite produced from any original type of ore and shall contain not in excess of 0.50 percent free moisture by weight.

(k) "Lot" means the quantity of tungsten concentrates tendered to the Government at one time by a participant.

(l) "Government" means the United States of America.

(m) "Producer of ores" means any person who mines tungsten ores.

(n) "Person" means a natural person or a company.

(o) "Company" means a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint-stock company, a trust, a fund, or any group of persons whether organized or not and whether incorporated or not.

§ 99.203 Participation in the program. (a) Any producer of ores or operator of a concentrating plant desiring to participate in the program shall apply in writing to the nearest General Services Administration regional office for a certificate of participation. If the applicant is a producer of ores, such application shall provide full information concerning the nature and extent of the applicant's interest in or control over any tungsten mining properties in the mining district or districts for which a certificate is sought by him, and shall be signed and a return address given. Each eligible applicant will promptly be sent a certificate of participation authorizing him to deliver, f. o. b. carrier's conveyance, milling point, tungsten concentrates meeting minimum specifications.

(b) Producers of ores who do not operate concentrating plants may, if they are issued certificates of participation, participate in the program to the extent of the ore produced by them, as follows:

(1) By selling such ore to operators of concentrating plants, in which event the resulting tungsten concentrates meeting specifications may be sold by such operators to the Government under the program; or

(2) By having such ore treated on a toll basis and selling the resulting tungsten concentrates meeting specifications to the Government under the program.

(c) Any operator of a concentrating plant, by applying for a certificate of participation, agrees to purchase or process suitable tungsten contained ores offered to him by participating producers of ores to the limit of the capacity of his plant in excess of that required for his own production and on fair and equitable terms and conditions (including prices). Each operator of a concentrating plant participating in the program shall promptly establish a schedule setting forth his terms and conditions (including prices) for the purchase or processing of tungsten contained ores. Each such operator shall promptly submit a copy of such schedule to the General Services Administration regional office which issued a certificate of participation to him, and shall also submit promptly any changes made in such schedule thereafter. No such operator shall purchase or process for sale to the Government hereunder tungsten contained ores from nonparticipating producers of ores.

§ 99.204 Tenders and deliveries. (a) Notice of any tender of tungsten concentrates under the program shall be given by the participant to the General Services Administration regional office which issued the certificate of participation. Such notice shall provide information concerning the approximate quantity proposed to be delivered, the approximate date of delivery and the milling point. Shipping instructions will be issued by the Government. Deliveries shall be made by the participant f. o. b. carrier's conveyance, milling point. Any lot of less than one short ton of tungsten concentrates will not be accepted. Each lot will be weighed, sampled and analyzed by the Government, or its designee. From the representative sample three pulp samples will be prepared and sealed, one each for the Government and the seller and one for umpire purposes, the umpire sample to be retained by the Government. If there is a difference between the Government's analysis and the participant's analysis of their respective samples resulting in a dispute, the umpire sample shall, at the request of the participant, be analyzed by an analyst satisfactory to both the Government and the participant, and the umpire analysis shall be final and conclusive. The cost of the umpire analysis shall be borne by the party whose analysis is further from that of the umpire. Payment will be made in accordance with the Government's analysis unless there is a dispute, in which case payment will be made in accordance with the umpire analysis.

(b) The Government will not accept offers for delivery in any one calendar month from any one producer of ores in excess of five thousand (5,000) short ton units originating in any one mining district from properties controlled by such producer of ores. Questions concerning the mining district in which any particular property is located will be decided by the Secretary of the Interior. Tungsten concentrates already actually produced which were ready for delivery and offered in the calendar month of July 1956, will be accepted and applied against the July quotas of the producers of ores used in making such tungsten concentrates. Similarly, tungsten concentrates already actually produced which were ready for delivery and offered in the calendar month of August 1956, will be accepted and applied against the August quotas of such producers of ores. In each such case, however, the offeror shall certify that such tungsten concentrates had been already actually produced and that they were ready for delivery in July or August 1956, as the case may be. Tungsten concentrates produced from ores sold a concentrating plant in accordance with this regulation shall not be considered as the production of the owner or operator of the concentrating plant but shall be considered as the production of the producer of such ores.

(c) The properties controlled by a producer of ores shall be considered to include all properties owned or otherwise controlled by such producer of ores. All such properties within a single mining district shall be considered as a single source of production hereunder, regardless of any disposition thereof by sale, lease, or otherwise. Any properties within a single mining district will be considered as a single source of production hereunder if, through relationship, affiliation, common control, or otherwise, the persons owning or otherwise controlling such properties are not in the judgment of the Administrator bona-fide separate and independent producers of ores. Without in any way affecting any other rights which the Government may have, the Administrator may refuse to accept offers hereunder, may refuse to issue certificates of participation hereunder, or may revoke certificates of participation previously issued if he determines such action is necessary to enforce the 5,000 short ton unit limitation specified in paragraph (b) of this section.

(d) Tungsten concentrates not conforming to the specifications, requirements, terms and conditions set forth in §§ 99.201 to 99.208 shall be rejected, and all expenses incurred by the Government in connection with such rejection shall be for the account of the participant tendering such tungsten concentrates.

§ 99.205 Packaging. All tungsten concentrates except Synthetic Scheelite shall be packaged in: (a) Steel drums of 20 gauge minimum thickness for 15 gallons or less capacity and 18 gauge or heavier steel drums for larger capacity, or (b) bags of 110 pound capacity made from heavy burlap cloth which has been made waterproof and sift proof by a craped bag liner inserted and laminated with a waterproof adhesive such as asphaltum. Synthetic Scheelite shall be packaged in steel drums of 18 gauge minimum thickness.

TITLE 46—SHIPPING

Chapter I—Coast Guard, Department of the Treasury

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS TO CHAPTER

Notices regarding proposed changes in the navigation and vessel inspection regulations were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER dated March 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 1350–1356), and March 28, 1956 (21 F. R. 1901, 1902), as Items I through XVIII of the Agenda to be considered by the Merchant Marine Council at a public hearing, which was to be held on April 24, 1956, at Washington, D. C. This document is the third of a series of documents covering the regulations considered at this public hearing. The first two documents contain dangerous cargo regulations.

All the comments, views, and data submitted in connection with the items considered by the Merchant Marine Council at this public hearing have been very helpful to the Coast Guard and are very much appreciated. On the basis of the information received certain proposed regulations were revised and others rejected. The following items considered at the public hearing held April 24, 1956, as revised, are adopted and included in this document:

Item IV—Watchman for Tank Vessels.
Item V—Tool Kits for Motor-Propelled Lifeboats.
Item VI—Rails for Passenger, Cargo, and Tank Vessels.
Item VIII—Structural Fire Protection for Passenger Vessels.
Item IX—Rules and Regulations for Cargo Vessels; Miscellaneous Amendments.
Item X—Embarkation-Debarkation Ladders (Flexible) for Merchant Vessels.
Item XVII—Vents on Cargo Tanks of Tank Barges.

The proposals in Items IV, V, VIII, and XVII of the Agenda were not changed. The necessary amendments to the regulations are in this document.

The proposal regarding rails to be in three courses for decks and bridges on tank, cargo, and passenger vessels in Item VI of the Agenda was modified. The major change in the proposal revised this requirement regarding rails to be in three courses by making it applicable to passenger and cargo vessels and to those tank vessels operating on ocean waters. The effective date of these amendments shall be for all vessels contracted for on or after January 1, 1957.

The proposals in Item IX of the Agenda regarding the weight testing of lifeboat installations on cargo vessels and the establishment of minimum standards for the proper stowage of bulk ore and similar cargoes when carried on general cargo vessels are withdrawn for further study. The proposals regarding permits to proceed to another port for repairs for cargo vessels and ventilation for closed spaces in cargo vessels were not changed and the amendments to the regulations are in this document.

The proposals in Item X of the Agenda regarding flexible embarkation-debarkation ladders for merchant vessels were revised. The major changes permit the optional use of both chain and manila rope ladders as pilot's ladders, and after January 1, 1957, the use of wire rope ladders as pilot's ladders is prohibited. With respect to flexible embarkation-debarkation ladders at lifeboat stations, such ladders are to be only chain ladders, but existing approved ladders on board passenger and cargo vessels may be continued in use so long as they are maintained in good condition. In the specification for flexible embarkation-debarkation ladders, the requirements for aluminum spacer ears were removed.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Commandant, United States Coast Guard, by Treasury Department Order No. 120, dated July 31, 1950 (15 F. R. 6521), and Treasury Department Order 167-14, dated November 26, 1954 (19 F. R. 8026), to promulgate regulations in accordance with the statutes cited with the regulations below: It is ordered, That:

(a) All the amendments to regulations containing specific dates shall become effective on the dates set forth in the regulations; and,

(b) All the other amendments to regulations (which are not covered by paragraph (a), above) are prescribed and shall become effective 90 days after the date of publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Sheet 2—Type II Embarkation-Debarkation Ladder.

(c) Copies on file. Copies of the specifications and reference plans referred to in this section shall be kept on file by the manufacturer, together with a copy of this specification, the approved plans, and the certificate of approval. The Federal specifications may be purchased from the Business Service Center, General Services Administration, Washington 25, D. C. The Military Specification may be obtained upon application to the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Department of the Navy, Washington 25, D. C.

§ 160.017–2 Types. (a) Ladders specified by this subpart shall be of two types as follows with materials and construction details in substantial agreements with those specified herein, but alternate arrangements will be given special consideration:

Type I—Rope Suspension Ladders.
Type II—Chain Suspension Ladders.

§ 160.017–3 Materials for Type I ladders.—(a) Suspension members. Suspension members for Type I ladders shall be not less than 2-inch circumference (approx $\frac{5}{8}$" diameter) mildew-resistant manila rope in accordance with the requirements of specifications MIL–R–16060, and shall have a breaking strength of not less than 4,400 pounds.

(b) Spacer ears and rungs. Spacer ears and rungs for Type I ladders shall be made from hickory, oak, ash, maple, beech, or other approved hardwood, which is straight-grained and free from knots, checks, honeycomb, warp or other detrimental defects.

(c) Thimbles and other hardware. The rope thimbles, bolts for ears, and any other metal hardware used in the construction of Type I ladders shall be of corrosion-resistant materials or steel protected against corrosion by galvanizing applied by the hot dip process.

§ 160.017–4 Materials for Type II ladders.—(a) Suspension members. Suspension members for Type II ladders shall be 7–0, single-loop, weldless, lock-link pattern galvanized steel chain in accordance with the requirements of Federal Specification RR–C–271 for Type II, Class I, chain, and shall have a minimum breaking strength of 3,560 pounds.

(b) Spacer ears. Spacer ears for Type II ladders may be either steel or wood. Steel ears shall be made from sheet steel not lighter than No. 14 U. S. Standard Gage (0.0747 inch nominal thickness). Wooden ears shall be made of hardwood as specified in § 160.017–3 (b) for Type I ladders.

(c) Rungs. Rungs for Type II ladders shall be made of hardwood as specified in § 160.017–3 (b) for Type I ladders.

(d) Lashing rings. Lashing rings shall be $\frac{3}{8}$" x 3" galvanized steel rings.

(e) Miscellaneous metal parts. Chain clips, rung clips, bolts, rivets, and other miscellaneous metal parts for Type II ladders shall be of adequate size and strength and of materials suitable for the purpose.

§ 160.017–5 Construction of Type I ladders.—(a) General. Type I ladders shall be constructed in general agreement with the details shown on Drawing No. 160.017–1 (b), Sheet 1, with double rope suspension members, double wooden rungs, and suitably shaped wooden spacer ears. The spacing between steps shall be uniform. The steps shall be 13 to 15 inches apart, and the distance between the thimbles at the top and the first step shall be approximately 24 inches. The suspension members shall be served with a good grade of common tarred marline for a distance of at least 1 inch above and below the spacer ears and for a distance of at least 2 inches below the thimbles. The clear passage width shall be from 15 to 18 inches.

(b) Spacer ears. The spacer ears shall be oval-shaped with a major diameter of approximately 8½ inches and a minor diameter of not less than 5 inches. The ears shall be not less than 1¼ inches in thickness and shall be uniform in size and shape. The edges of the ears shall be grooved to take the rope suspension members, and suitable slots shall be milled out to take the rungs as indicated on the drawing. All surfaces of the ears shall be worked down to a smooth finish. Four ⅜-inch diameter holes shall be drilled in each ear at the approximate locations shown on the drawing, and the rope suspension members secured to the ears with two turns of tarred marline as shown. The ears shall also be drilled as indicated on the drawing to take the bolt attaching the rungs to the ears.

(c) Rungs. Each step shall consist of two wooden rungs. The rungs shall be rectangular in shape, approximately 2⅛ inches in width and not less than 1 inch in thickness, and all longitudinal edges of the rungs shall be slightly rounded or chamfered. The rungs of each step shall be spaced a uniform distance apart, not less than 1½ inches and not more than 2½ inches, and when the ladder is assembled, the edges of the rungs shall project slightly beyond the edges of the suspension members so that the rope will not rub on the side of the vessel when the ladder is in use. The rungs shall be attached to the ears with ¼-inch carriage bolts, and shall be counterbored so that the bolt heads and nuts do not project into the rope groove. The bolt ends shall be securely peened over.

(d) Thimbles. Standard rope thimbles shall be fitted at the top of each suspension member as shown on the drawing.

(e) Wood preservative. After forming, finishing, and drilling of all necessary holes, etc., the completed rungs and ears shall be treated with two brush coats, with 24 hours drying time between coats, or with one dip coat of water repellent wood preservative complying with the requirements of Federal Specification TT–W–572 for Type A or B preservative.

§ 160.017–6 Construction of Type II ladders—(a) General. Type II ladders shall be constructed in general agreement with the details shown on Drawing No. 160.017–1 (b), Sheet 2, with chain suspension members, double wooden rungs, and suitably shaped spacer ears. The spacing between the steps shall be uniform. The steps shall be approximately 15¼ inches apart, and the distance between the top lashing rings and the first step and the bottom lashing rings and the last step shall be approximately 24 inches. The clear passage width shall be from 15 to 18 inches.

(b) Spacer ears. The ears shall be uniform in size, and either elliptical or rectangular in shape. Wooden ears shall be not less than 1¼ inches in thickness. Rectangular ears shall be not less than 8½ inches nor more than 10 inches in length and not less than 5 inches in width, with the corners rounded to a 1-inch radius. Elliptical ears shall have a major diameter of approximately 10 inches and a minor diameter of not less than 5 inches. All surfaces of wooden ears shall be worked down to a smooth finish and all edges suitably rounded. Metal ears shall have one or more stamped or formed ribs and the edges of the ears shall be turned or rolled similarly to that indicated on Drawing No. 160.017–1 (b), Sheet 2, with the flange thus formed not less than ⅝ inch in width. Ears shall be attached to chain suspension members by use of bolts or rivets and a clip arrangement as indicated on the drawing, or by other suitable means.

(c) Rungs. Each step shall consist of two wooden rungs secured in such a manner that the rungs will not turn within the attachment or on the attached suspension member. The rungs shall be rectangular in shape, not less than 1½ inches in width and not less than 1 inch in thickness, and all longitudinal edges of the rungs shall be slightly rounded or chamfered. The rungs of each step shall be spaced a uniform distance apart, not less than 1½ inches and not more than 2½ inches. The attachment of the rung steps to the ears shall be by one of the following methods:

(1) By channel shaped clips approximately 1⅛ inches in depth by 1¼ inches flange width by not less than 4½ inches in length attached to the rungs, ears, and suspension members by bolts or rivets.

(2) By a section of the ears (steel ears only) stamped out to form a suitable channel clip to hold the rungs and attached to the rungs with bolts or rivets. In ears with stamped out clips, not less than 3/16-inch diameter holes shall be drilled out prior to stamping at the points where the corners of the clips will fall so that the ends of the cuts will terminate in these holes.

(d) Lashing rings. A lashing ring shall be attached to the top of each suspension member by a reverse lock-link shackle made from chain of a size and strength not less than the suspension member, which is locked by a button head rivet not less than 3/32 inch in diameter, and with suitable countersunk clinch ring so formed that when the rivet is peened over, the rivet and clinch ring form a rounded surface. A lashing ring shall be attached to the bottom of each chain suspension member by a ¼-inch diameter screw pin anchor shackle with the screw pin securely peened over. A suitable thimble or wear plate shall be fitted between the top chain links and the lashing rings and between the bottom chain links and the anchor shackles.

(e) Galvanizing of steel parts. All steel parts shall be treated to resist corrosion by galvanizing applied by the hot dip process after the parts have been formed.

(f) Wood preservative. After forming, finishing, and drilling of all necessary holes, etc., all wooden parts shall be treated with two brush coats, with 24 hours drying time between coats, or with one dip coat of water repellent wood preservative complying with the requirements of Federal Specification TT–W–572 for Type A or B preservative.

§ 160.017–7 Performance and workmanship requirements—(a) Strength (steps). With the assembled ladder supported in such a manner that the test load shall act on both the step and its attachments a total static load of 700 pounds shall be applied separately to each of six steps for a duration of approximately one minute per step. The load shall be uniformly distributed over approximately 4 inches of contact surface at the center of the step. The step shall not fail nor shall there be any cracking, permanent set, or any other sign of weakness in the step or its attachments.

(b) Strength (ladder). The assembled, rolled up ladder, of the full length as supplied to the purchaser, shall be dropped freely so that it will fetch up on the secured end. With the ladder suspended full length vertically, a total static load of 2,000 pounds shall be applied to the lower end of the ladder in such manner as to be distributed equally between the two suspension members. There shall be no flaking or peeling of the finish on the component parts, the flexibility of the suspension members shall not be impaired, nor shall there be any other sign of weakness or injury to the ladder.

(c) Workmanship. Finished ladders shall be free from splinters, burrs, sharp corners or projections which might be injurious to the hands or feet and other defects materially affecting their appearance or serviceability and workmanship shall be first-class throughout.

§ 160.017–8 Inspections and tests. (a) A marine inspector shall examine all ladders at the place of manufacture for compliance with this specification. Samples of materials entering into construction may be taken at random by the inspector and tests made for compliance with the applicable requirements. After satisfying himself that the ladders have been manufactured according to this specification and the manufacturer's drawings and specifications as approved by the Commandant, he shall select indiscriminately from each lot offered for inspection at least one ladder to be tested in accordance with § 160.017–7 (a) and (b). If the specimen ladder passes the tests, the lot shall be acceptable. If the specimen ladder fails any of the tests, the lot shall be rejected. Rejected lots may, when permitted by the inspector, be reworked by the manufacturer to correct the defect causing rejection and be re-submitted for official inspection. A copy of the inspector's report of the tests, including the lot number and serial numbers of ladders passed and rejected, shall be forwarded to the Commandant (MMT).

§ 160.017–9 Marking. (a) Each ladder shall be branded or otherwise permanently and legibly marked on the rungs or ears, at intervals of not more than 5 feet, with the name of the manufacturer, the manufacturer's brand or model designation, the serial number of the ladder, the lot number, the Coast Guard Type number, and the Coast Guard approval number. Lots shall be numbered serially by the manufacturer and shall consist of all ladders of the same type and model offered for inspection at one time.

§ 160.017–10 Procedure for approval. (a) Embarkation-debarkation ladders for use on merchant vessels are approved only by the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C. Before any action is taken on any design of embarkation-debarkation ladder, detailed plans covering fully the arrangement and construction of the ladder, material specifications, and a description of the construction methods shall be submitted to the Commandant through the Commander of the Coast Guard District in which the ladder is to be manufactured.

(b) If the drawings and specifications are found satisfactory, the Commander of the Coast Guard District shall be notified in writing when fabrication is to commence. A marine inspector will be assigned to observe the construction in accordance with the plans and specifications and upon completion of a sample ladder at least 40 feet in length, he will conduct the tests described by § 160.017–7 (a) and (b).

(c) After the tests are successfully completed, the manufacturer shall present to the inspector four copies of the plans and specifications, including any changes or additions which may have been found necessary during construction or testing. If the manufacturer desires more than one set of approved plans, additional copies shall be submitted at that time.

(d) The inspector will file a report of the examinations and tests, together with the four copies of the plans and specifications, with the Commander of the Coast Guard District, who will transmit them to the Commandant to determine compliance with the requirements of this subpart and suitability of the ladder for type or brand approval for use on merchant vessels.

[CGFR 56–36]

PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED REGULATIONS

1. The Merchant Marine Council will hold a Public Hearing on Tuesday, October 16, 1956, commencing at 9:30 a. m. in the Department of Commerce Auditorium, Fourteenth Street NW., between E Street and Constitution Avenue, Washington, D. C., for the purpose of receiving comments, views, and data on the proposed regulations for small passenger vessels carrying more than six passengers, as set forth in the Merchant Marine Council Public Hearing Agenda, CG–249, dated October 16, 1956. The proposed regulations will consist of a new Subchapter T, entitled "Small Passenger Vessels (Not More Than 65 Feet in Length)," in 46 CFR Chapter I (Shipping). These proposed regulations will give force and effect to the Act of May 10, 1956 (Public Law 519, 84th Congress, 2d Session; 70 Stat. 151–154), which requires the inspection and certification of certain vessels carrying more than six passengers. The proposed effective date for the new requirements will be July 1, 1957.

2. Public Law 519 (84th Congress, 2d Session) will require the inspection and certification of many motorboats, sail vessels, and barges which have not been subject to special Federal rules and regulations before. This Public Hearing is the opportunity for all persons and organizations affected by the proposed regulations for small passenger vessels to express their views to the Coast Guard regarding the feasibility, necessity, or practicality of the proposed regulations and to submit alternate suggestions and views, with reasons therefor, which will carry out the intended purposes of these proposals and the intent of Public Law 519.

3. The proposed regulations for small passenger vessels, together with the statutory authority for such proposals, are generally described in paragraphs 6 to 31, inclusive. The proposed regulations are in the Merchant Marine Council Public Hearing Agenda (CG–249), dated October 16, 1956. Copies of this Agenda have been mailed to persons and organizations who have expressed an interest in this subject and requested that copies be furnished them. Copies will be furnished to those interested so long as they are available and requests should be addressed to the Commandant (CMC), United States Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C. After the extra copies for distribution are exhausted, copies will be available for reading purposes only in Room 4104, Coast Guard Headquarters, or at the offices of the various Coast Guard District Commanders.

4. Written and oral comments on the proposed regulations for small passenger vessels described generally in paragraphs 6 to 31 below are invited. Written comments containing constructive criticisms, suggestions, or views are welcomed. Each oral and written comment received is considered and evaluated. If it is believed the comment, view, or suggestion clarifies or improves the proposed regulations, it is accepted and after adoption by the Commandant the revised regulations are published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Acknowledgment of the comments received and reasons why the suggested changes were or were not adopted are not normally furnished because personnel is not available to perform this work. Comments submitted in writing before or at a Merchant Marine Council Public Hearing will not normally be read at the Public Hearing but such comments will be made a part of the record.

5. Comments, data, or views, regarding the inspection and certification of small passenger vessels carrying more than six passengers may be presented orally or in writing at the Public Hearing before the Merchant Marine Council on October 16, 1956. Any person or organization who desires to submit written comments, data, or views is urged to submit them so that they will be received prior to October 10, 1956, by the Commandant (CMC), United States Coast Guard, Washington 25, D. C. In order to insure consideration of comments and to facilitate checking and recording, it is essential that each comment regarding a section or paragraph of the proposed regulation shall be submitted on Form CG–3287, showing the section number, the proposed change, the reason or basis (if any), and the name, business firm or organization (if any), and the address of the submitter. A small quantity of Form CG–3287 is attached to each Agenda and additional copies may be obtained upon request from the Commandant (CMC), or from any Coast Guard District Commander, or the form may be reproduced by a typewriter or otherwise.

6. The Public Law 519 requires that regulations be issued to give it force and effect. By Treasury Department Order No. 167–20, dated June 18, 1956 (21 F. R. 4894), the Secretary of the Treasury delegated his functions under this law to the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard. In order to minimize the changes necessary in the regulations in 46 CFR Chapter I, as well as to have all the requirements for small passenger vessels in one group, it was decided to have the length of the vessel as a determining factor, regardless of manner of propulsion. Therefore, it is proposed to add a new Subchapter T to 46 CFR Chapter I, to read as follows: "Subchapter T—Small Passenger Vessels (Not More Than 65 Feet in Length)."

7. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 175 and entitled "General Provisions." This part describes in general terms the basis and purpose of the regulations and their application to vessels carrying more than six passengers. This part contains the definitions of terms used throughout these regulations. The proposed regulations also include when equivalents may be used under certain conditions, and policies concerning the application of marine engineering and electrical engineering requirements described in 46 CFR Parts 50 to 61 (Subchapter F) and 46 CFR Parts 110 to 113 (Subchapter J), and appeals from decisions or actions of Officers in Charge, Marine Inspection, and District Commanders to the Commandant, whose decision shall be final.

8. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 176 and entitled "Inspection and Certification." This part provides that no small passenger vessel subject to inspection and certification shall be operated without having a valid certificate of inspection, Form CG–841.

9. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 176 include the procedures and general requirements to obtain certification of inspection, permits to proceed to another port for repairs, the standards followed in performing inspections, reinspections, etc. As provided in the law, the existing small passenger vessels will be subject to an initial inspection and every three years thereafter to a triennial inspection. While the proposed standards are for all new vessels contracted for on or after July 1, 1957, the standards for existing small passenger vessels will be the same as for new vessels insofar as it is determined by the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, of the Coast Guard to be feasible and practicable for such existing vessel. The purpose for the inspection is to insure that the vessel and its equipment is in all respects satisfactory and considered seaworthy for the type of operation in which such vessel is engaged, and in compliance with the applicable requirements governing such vessel. In addition to the initial inspection and the triennial inspections, it is proposed that each vessel be reinspected at least once during each year between regular inspections. This reinspection is to determine that the vessel is seaworthy, in compliance with the requirements governing its operation, and no major change has occurred since the last inspection affecting its seaworthiness. The proposed regulations provide that no repairs or alterations affecting the safety of the vessel, that is the vessel's hull, or its machinery or equipment, shall be made without first notifying the nearest Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection. If alterations in a vessel are contemplated, it will be necessary for the owner or builder of the vessel to submit plans and/or specifications covering such alterations for approval to the nearest Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, before the construction is started.

10. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFD Part 177 and entitled "Construction and Arrangement." This part will provide general requirements affecting the construction of all small passenger vessels which are contracted for on or after July 1, 1957. The proposed requirements in this part will also provide a standard for all such vessels contracted for before July 1, 1957, insofar as it is deemed reasonable and practicable by the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, having jurisdiction.

11. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 177 include such requirements as standards for hull structure and fire protection, means of escape, ventilation for closed spaces (other than machinery spaces), ventilation for passenger and crew quarters, accommodations for passengers and crews, hatches, rails and guards, restrictions on cooking and heating facilities, and a prohibition of the use of liquefied petroleum gas and gasoline. With respect to the number of passengers allowed to be carried, restrictions may be determined according to deck area, fixed seating capacity, length of rail, or stability of the vessel.

12. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 178 and entitled "Watertight Subdivision." This part will provide general requirements for bulkheads for all small passenger vessels contracted for on or after July 1, 1957. For those vessels contracted for before July 1, 1957, it will be necessary for such vessels to meet these requirements insofar as it is deemed reasonable and practicable by the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, having jurisdiction.

13. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 178 include general requirements for bulkheads for all vessels. Ferry vessels and all other vessels of more than 75 gross tons or which carry more than 49 passengers are required to have subdivision bulkheads so that the vessel will remain afloat with any one compartment flooded. Damage stability calculations will be required for all such vessels. Proposed requirements for cockpits are also provided.

14. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 179 and entitled "Stability." This part provides general requirements for determining the stability of vessels carrying passengers. This part applies to all ferry vessels, all vessels carrying more than 49 passengers, all vessels of more than 75 gross tons, all vessels where the number of passengers carried is greater than the number obtained by multiplying the length and breadth of the vessel in feet and dividing the product by 15, and all other vessels whose stability may be questioned by the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, having jurisdiction.

15. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 179 describe the stability test required, the stability test procedure, stability standards, and when it is determined that a vessel does not have sufficient stability to meet these requirements ballast shall be installed in the vessel under the supervision of the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection. There is also provided that a stability letter will be issued to each vessel meeting the requirements in this part and this letter must be posted in the pilothouse or shall be carried on board to be shown on demand.

16. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 180 and entitled "Lifesaving Equipment." This part contains general requirements regarding the lifesaving equipment required to be carried on small passenger vessels.

17. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 180 include general provisions pertaining to lifesaving equipment, primary lifesaving equipment required, equipment for life floats and buoyant apparatus, requirements for stowage and marking of lifesaving appliances, life preservers, ring buoys and water lights, distress signals, signaling mirror, and distress flags.

18. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 181, entitled "Fire Protection Equipment." This part will provide general requirements regarding fire protection equipment for all small passenger vessels.

19. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 181 include provisions regarding fire extinguishing equipment required, details of fire main systems, fixed carbon dioxide extinguishing systems, and portable fire extinguishers.

20. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 182 and entitled "Machinery Installation." This part will provide general requirements for small passenger vessels which are propelled by machinery.

21. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 182 include such requirements as separation of machinery and fuel tank spaces from accommodation spaces, machinery installations using fuels having a flash point of 110 degrees F. or lower (gasoline), machinery installations using fuels having a flash point of over 110 degrees F. (diesel), bilge systems, overboard discharges and shell connections, and steering apparatus. The proposed provisions of this part will be applicable to the machinery installations on vessels contracted for on or after July 1, 1957. Vessels contracted for prior to that date will be required to meet these proposed requirements insofar as it is deemed reasonable and practicable by the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, having jurisdiction.

22. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 183 and entitled "Electrical Installations." This part will provide general requirements regarding electrical installations on all small passenger vessels. Those vessels having electrical installations operating at potentials of 50 volts or over shall comply with the applicable regulations in 46 CFR Parts 110–113 (Subchapter J—Electrical Engineering) in 46 CFR Chapter I. Vessels having electrical installations operating at potentials of less than 50 volts will be subject to the proposed regulations in this part. These proposed regulations will apply to all those vessels contracted for on or after July 1, 1957. For those vessels contracted for before July 1, 1957, the requirements proposed will apply insofar as it is deemed reasonable and practicable by the Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, having jurisdiction.

23. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 183 include requirements for starting the main auxiliary engines, electrical equipment which may be on board (such as generators, motors, switchboards, batteries, etc.), and wiring.

24. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 184 and entitled "Vessel Control and Miscellaneous Systems and Equipment." This part will apply to all small passenger vessels.

25. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 184 include a statement regarding the application of regulations in other subchapters in 46 CFR Chapter I to these vessels, and requirements for mooring equipment, navigation lights and shapes, whistles, fog horns, fog bells, compass, radio, and position finding apparatus.

26. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 185 and entitled "Operations." This part will apply to all small passenger vessels.

27. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 185 include description of penalties for various types of violations, and requirements regarding exhibition of licenses, notice to nearest Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, of a casualty or accident, compliance with provisions in certificates of inspection, use of searchlights, steering gear tests, closing of hatches while underway, ferries carrying automobiles or other vehicles, preparations for emergencies, reports of accidents to machinery or proposed repairs or alterations to Officer in Charge, Marine Inspection, having jurisdiction, and markings regarding equipment, etc., carried.

28. It is proposed to add a new part designated 46 CFR Part 186 and entitled "Manning and Licensing." This part provides for the complement of personnel required in the operation of small passenger vessels carrying passengers.

29. The proposed regulations in 46 CFR Part 186 include requirements regarding the complement of vessels described by number of passengers carried and method of propulsion used, qualifications for and issuance of various types of operators' licenses, physical examinations of prospective operators, renewal of operators' licenses, issuance of duplicate licenses, suspension and revocation of operators' licenses, and qualifications to obtain master's license for services on vessel operating ocean and/or coastwise waters.

30. For vessels over 65 feet in length and carrying more than six passengers, it is proposed to apply to such vessels the applicable regulations in 46 CFR Parts 70 to 78, inclusive (Subchapter H—Passenger Vessels). To show the proper application of all the regulations in 46 CFR Chapter I to the various types of vessels inspected, the tables and text in 46 CFR 24.05–1, 30.01–5, 70.05–1, 90.05–1, and 110.05–1 will be revised.

31. The authority for the proposed regulation in 46 CFR Parts 175 to 186, inclusive, is the act of May 10, 1956 (70 Stat. 151–154; 46 U. S. C. 390). The authority for the necessary amendments to 46 CFR Parts 24, 30, 70, 90, and 110 is R. S. 4405, as amended, 4417a, as amended, and 4462, as amended (46 U. S. C. 375, 391a, 416).

Dated: August 30, 1956.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND TO THE ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and in accordance with the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held in the U. S. Post Office and Courthouse, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, beginning at 10:00 a. m., c. s. t., September 25, 1956, for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to economic and marketing conditions which relate to the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids-Iowa City marketing area and to the proposed amendments hereinafter set forth, or appropriate modifications thereof, to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Cedar Rapids-Iowa City marketing area. These proposed amendments have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Proposed by Eastern Iowa Co-operative Dairy Producers, Dows Maniti Dairy, Cedar Valley Dairy, Davis Dairy, Blinder Dairy, Krebs Dutch Girl, Searles Dairy, Home Town Dairies, and Sanitary Farms Dairies:

1. Delete § 931.7 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 931.7 Cedar Rapids-Iowa City marketing area. "Cedar Rapids-Iowa City marketing area", called the "marketing area" in this subpart, means all the territory within the counties of Johnson and Linn, also the Springdale Township in Cedar County and Wapsinonoc Township in Muscatine County, all in the State of Iowa.

2. Delete § 931.8 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 931.8 Approved plant. "Approved plant" means a milk processing plant approved by, and under regular inspection of, the proper health authority of either Cedar Rapids, Iowa City or the State Health Department of the State of Iowa and (a) from which milk is disposed of on wholesale or retail routes (including plant stores) within the marketing area, or (b) which furnishes milk to a plant described in paragraph (a) of this section.

3. Amend § 931.10 to include producers who meet the requirements of the State Health Department of the State of Iowa for the production of milk for consumption as milk.

4. Delete § 931.11 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 931.11 Producer-handler. "Producer-handler" means any person who produces milk and operates an approved plant but who receives no milk directly from the farms of other producers and who disposes during a delivery period of less than a daily average of 1,000 pounds of Class I milk as defined pursuant to § 931.41 (a) (1).

5. Add a new § 931.14 as follows:

§ 931.14 Pool plant. "Pool plant" means any approved plant, other than that of a producer-handler, which during any delivery period disposes of as Class I milk an amount equal to 40 percent or more of such plant's total receipts of milk from producers: Provided, That milk diverted from an approved plant for the account of the handler operating such approved plant shall be considered a receipt at the approved plant from which it was diverted: Provided further, That milk diverted from an approved plant to an unapproved plant for the account of a cooperative association which does not operate a plant shall be deemed to have been received by such cooperative association at a pool plant.

6. Amend § 931.50 (a) by adding the following: "Provided, That for any delivery period, the Class I price shall not be less than the price established per hundredweight for Class I milk under Order No. 44, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Quad Cities marketing area, minus 10 cents."

7. Add a new § 931.57 as follows:

§ 931.57 Handler operating an approved plant which is not a pool plant. Each handler who operates an approved plant which is not a pool plant during a delivery period shall, in lieu of the payments required pursuant to §§ 931.60 through 931.69, pay to the market administrator, for the producer-settlement fund, on or before the 12th day after the end of such delivery period, the amount resulting from the quantity of milk disposed of as Class I milk multiplied by the Class I price, adjusted by the butterfat differential for Class I, and the quantity of such milk multiplied by the Class II price, adjusted by the butterfat differential for Class II milk.

8. Make such other changes as may be required to make the entire marketing agreement and order conform with any amendments thereto that may result from this hearing.

Copies of this notice of hearing may be procured from the Market Administrator, 409 O. R. C. Building, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, or from the Hearing Clerk, Room 112, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or may be there inspected.

RINDERPEST AND FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE AND CERTAIN OTHER DISEASES

NOTICE OF PROPOSED DETERMINATION OF NONEXISTENCE IN SWEDEN AND OF PROPOSED AMENDMENT OF REGULATIONS IMPOSING PROHIBITIONS AND RESTRICTIONS ON IMPORTATION OF SPECIFIED ANIMALS AND ANIMAL PRODUCTS

Notice is hereby given in accordance with section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) that, pursuant to the provisions of section 306 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U. S. C. 1306) and section 2 of the act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U. S. C. 111), it is proposed to determine, and to give notice of such determination, that neither rinderpest nor foot-and-mouth disease now exists in Sweden, and to amend the regulations in 9 CFR Part 94, as amended, imposing prohibitions and restrictions on the importation of specified animals and animal products on account of rinderpest and foot-and-mouth disease and certain other diseases, by removing the word "and" before the words "the Republic of Ireland" and adding ", and Sweden" following the words "the Republic of Ireland", in paragraph (a) (4) of § 94.1.

The proposed determination, notification, and amendment would remove the present prohibition under section 306 of the Tariff Act upon importation into the United States of cattle, sheep, other domestic ruminants, and swine, and of fresh, chilled, or frozen beef, veal, mutton, lamb, and pork from Sweden and render the commodities specified in §§ 94.2 to 94.5 of 9 CFR Part 94, as amended, and originating in said country, no longer subject to the provisions of that part.

Any person who wishes to submit written data, views, or arguments concerning the proposed determination and amendment may do so by filing them with the Chief, Animal Inspection and Quarantine Branch, Agricultural Research Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days after publication hereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Done at Washington, D. C. this 30th day of August 1956.

1957 CROP OF EXTRA LONG STAPLE COTTON

NOTICE OF DETERMINATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NATIONAL MARKETING QUOTA, NATIONAL, STATE, AND COUNTY ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS, AND FORMULATION OF REGULATIONS PERTAINING TO FARM ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS

Pursuant to the authority contained in applicable provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1301–1388), the Secretary of Agriculture is preparing to determine, as soon as possible after October 8, 1956, whether a national marketing quota is required to be proclaimed for the 1957 crop of extra long staple cotton, to provide for conversion of such quota into a national acreage allotment in accordance with section 344 (a) of the act, and to formulate regulations for apportioning the national acreage allotment to States and the State acreage allotments to counties, and for establishing farm acreage allotments. Pertinent parts of the provisions of the act which are applicable to these determinations and formulations are as follows:

SEC. 347. (a) Except as otherwise provided by this section, the provisions of this part shall not apply to extra long staple cotton which is produced from pure strain varities of the Barbadense species, or any hybrid thereof, or other similar types of extra long staple cotton designated by the Secretary having characteristics needed for various end uses for which American upland cotton is not suitable, and grown in irrigated cotton-growing regions of the United States designated by the Secretary or other areas designated by the Secretary as suitable for the production of such varieties or types.

(b) Whenever during any calendar year, not later than October 15, the Secretary determines that the total supply of cotton described in subsection (a) for the marketing year beginning in such calendar year will exceed the normal supply thereof for such marketing year by more than 8 per centum, the Secretary shall proclaim such fact and a national marketing quota shall be in effect for the crop of such cotton produced in the next calendar year. The Secretary shall also determine and specify in such proclamation the amount of the national marketing quota in terms of the quantity of cotton described in subsection (a) adequate to make available a normal supply of such cotton, taking into account (1) the estimated carry-over at the beginning of the marketing year which begins in the next calendar year, and (2) the estimated imports during such marketing year. The national marketing quota for cotton described in subsection (a) for any year shall not be less than the larger of 30,000 bales or a number of bales equal to 30 per centum of the estimated domestic consumption plus exports of such cotton for the marketing year beginning in the calendar year in which such quota is proclaimed.

(c) All provisions of this act, except section 342, subsections (h), (k), and (l) of section 344, the parenthetical provisions relating to acreages regarded as having been planted to cotton, and the provisions relating to minimum small farm allotments, shall, insofar as applicable, apply to marketing quotas and acreage allotments authorized by this section • • •

SEC. 301 (b) (16) (C) "Total supply" of cotton for any marketing year shall be the carry-over at the beginning of such marketing year, plus the estimated production of cotton in the United States during the calendar year in which such marketing year begins and the estimated imports of cotton into the United States during such marketing year.

SEC. 301 (b) (3) (B) "Carry-over" of cotton for any marketing year shall be the quantity of cotton on hand in the United States at the beginning of such marketing year, not including any part of the crop which was produced in the United States during the calendar year then current.

SEC. 301 (b) (10) (C) The "normal supply" of cotton for any marketing year shall be the estimated domestic consumption of cotton for the marketing year for which such normal supply is being determined, plus the estimated exports of cotton for such marketing year, plus 30 per centum of the sum of such consumption and exports as an allowance for carry-over.

For purposes of the supply determinations required to be made under section 347 (b) of the act, (1) the term "extra long staple cotton" refers to all American-Egyptian, Sea Island (in both the continental United States and Puerto Rico), and Sealand cotton, and to all similar type cotton imported from Egypt, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and Peru, and (2) the term "carry-over" does not include the stocks of extra long staple cotton acquired pursuant to, or under the authority of, the Strategic and Critical Materials Stockpiling Act.

In the event the Secretary determines that a national marketing quota for the 1957 crop of extra long staple cotton is required to be proclaimed pursuant to section 347 (b) of the act, such quota will be converted into a national acreage allotment in accordance with section 344 (a) of the act, which reads in pertinent part as follows:

Whenever a national marketing quota is proclaimed • • • the Secretary shall determine and proclaim a national acreage allotment for the crop of cotton to be produced in the next calendar year. The national acreage allotment for cotton shall be that acreage, based upon the national average yield per acre of cotton for the 5 years immediately preceding the calendar year in which the national marketing quota is proclaimed, required to make available from such crop an amount of cotton equal to the national marketing quota.

It is expected that the regulations pertaining to the apportionment of the State acreage allotment among counties and farms will be substantially the same as the regulations issued with respect to the 1956 crop of extra long staple cotton, including amendments (20 F. R. 8621 and 8843). The 1957 regulations will prescribe no minimum limitations on the size of the acreages reserved by the State and county committees. The 1957 regulations will contain provisions implementing section 377 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, which provides that a farm owner or operator may preserve the allotment for his farm by complying with certain provisions regarding notice to the county committee. In addition, the regulations for 1957 will implement section 106 (a) of the Agricultural Act of 1956, which provides, in effect, that in the establishment of 1957 farm acreage allotments, any acreage placed in the acreage reserve and conservation reserve programs for 1956 shall be credited to the farm as though such acreage had actually been devoted to the production of cotton in 1956, except that no such acreage credit shall be given to a farm for acreage allotments reapportioned to it under the provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, that have been placed in the acreage reserve program.

Section 343 of the act provides that not later than December 15 following the issuance of the proclamation of the national marketing quota provided for in section 347 of the act, the Secretary shall conduct a referendum, by secret ballot, of farmers engaged in the production of cotton in the calendar year in which the referendum is held, to determine whether such farmers are in favor of or opposed to the quota so proclaimed. If a quota is proclaimed for the 1957 crop of cotton, it is expected that the Secretary will fix the date of the referendum reasonably close to the final date of December 15, 1956, for holding it, in order to allow maximum time for establishing 1957 farm acreage allotments and issuing notices thereof to farmers. Section 362 of the act provides that notice of the farm acreage allotment established for each farm shown by the record of the county committee to be entitled to such allotment shall, insofar as practicable, be mailed to the farm operator in sufficient time to be received prior to the date of the referendum.

Prior to making any of the foregoing determinations with respect to the national marketing quota, the national acreage allotment, the apportionment of the national acreage allotment to States and the State acreage allotments to counties, and the formulation of regulations for the measurement of farms and for the establishment of farm acreage allotments for the 1957 crop of extra long staple cotton, consideration will be given to any data, views, and recommendations pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Cotton Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days following the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The date of the postmark will be considered as the date of any submission.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 30th day of August 1956.

[SEAL] WALTER C. BERGER,
Acting Administrator.

[Docket No. G–9821]

TEXAS EASTERN TRANSMISSION CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

AUGUST 29, 1956.

Take notice that Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation (Applicant), having its principal place of business at Shreveport, Louisiana, filed an application on December 27, 1955, and amended on April 20, 1956, for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing Applicant to construct and operate certain facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in its application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Applicant proposes to construct and operate in its original application two 2-inch main line taps and appurtenances to receive gas produced by Egypt Gas and Gasoline Corporation (Egypt) and Jade Oil and Gas Company (Jade) from the El Dorado Field, Saline County, Illinois.

On April 20, 1956, Applicant filed an amendment to its original certificate application at Docket No. G–9821. Said amendment requests that authorizations for the construction and operation of such proposed facilities necessary to receive gas from Egypt be deleted from the original application.

In support of the above request, Applicant states that the precedent agreement dated July 26, 1955, between Applicant and Egypt covering the purchase of gas from the El Dorado Field was terminated by written agreement between the parties on March 19, 1956, because certain conditions stipulated therein had not been accomplished and consequently no contract or agreement exists between Applicant and Egypt.

Applicant estimates such facilities will cost approximately $550.00 which will be financed from its corporate funds and said gas will be used to supplement its existing supplies.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on October 2, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before September 17, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

Texas Eastern states that the estimated total cost of the proposed facilities is $675 which is to be financed from corporate funds.

On November 10, 1955, Freedom filed at Docket No. G–9645, an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity covering the sale of gas to Texas Eastern from the Walla-Boyt Field, Chambers County, Texas, and said certificate was issued February 28, 1956.

[Docket No. G–10627]

WILCOX TREND GATHERING SYSTEM, INC.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

AUGUST 29, 1956.

Take notice that on June 21, 1956, Wilcox Trend Gathering System, Inc. (Applicant), filed at Docket No. G–10627 an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the construction and operation of certain facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in its application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Applicant seeks authorization to construct and operate approximately 6.82 miles of 3½-inch O. D. supply lateral pipeline to extend southeasterly from a point in the Warmsley Area, DeWitt County, Texas, to a point of connection with Applicant's existing 14-inch main transmission line in Goliad County, Texas; together with a meter station, a 2-inch main line tap and appurtenant equipment.

Applicant states that these proposed facilities will receive gas produced in the Warmsley Area by Tidewater Oil Company (Tidewater). The estimated total capital cost of the proposed facilities is approximately $84,599. The cost is to be financed from company funds.

Applicant further states that Tidewater was authorized at Docket No. G–3721 to sell gas from the Warmsley Area to Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation (Texas Eastern) assignee of Applicant.

Applicant alleges that it will transport the gas received from Tidewater for redelivery to Texas Eastern at Provident City, Texas, and that Texas Eastern will transport such gas in interstate commerce for resale. It was authorized to build facilities to enable it to take gas from Applicant in Docket No. G–1947.

Estimated salable gas reserves as of January 1, 1956 dedicated to Applicant by Tidewater in the Warmsley Area are estimated by Applicant as totaling 7,041 Mcf at 14.73 psia.

Applicant further alleges that the gas reserves involved herein were investigated and found adequate in the proceedings in Docket No. G–1959.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on October 1, 1956, at 9:35 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before September 17, 1956. [Docket No. G–10075]

WILCOX TREND GATHERING SYSTEM, INC.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND DATE OF HEARING

AUGUST 29, 1956.

Take notice that the Wilcox Trend Gathering System, Inc. (Wilcox Trend), filed an application on March 9, 1956, for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to construct and operate certain facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, and as more fully represented in its application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Wilcox Trend seeks authorization to construct and operate approximately 1.69 miles of 6⅝ inch O. D. natural gas transmission line paralleling a portion of its main pipe-line system in Goliad County, Texas.

Wilcox Trend states that it transports gas for and delivers gas to its parent, Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation. Its only other service is the transportation of so-called "wet" gas for and to the Goliad Corporation, a gasoline plant operator.

Wilcox Trend also states that, at present, it maintains a connection between its main 14-inch transmission line and its 6-inch Dial lateral line about 1.69 miles east of its existing Charco Compressor Station in Goliad County, Texas. At this connection, the Dial lateral would normally deliver about 25,000 Mcf per day into Wilcox Trend's main line to be commingled with the main stream. The gas from the Dial lateral is at 1050 psig at the connection with the main line. Under maximum operating conditions, however, gas in the main line flows at about 1190 psig at the Dial lateral connection, thus preventing entrance of the Dial line gas. To remedy this situation, Wilcox Trend alleges that it proposes to construct and operate 1.69 miles of 6-inch loop line from a point on the Dial line near the main-line connection westward to the Charco Compressor Station. Under maximum operating conditions, gas from the Dial line will flow westward through the proposed 6-inch loop to the suction line of the Charco Station, where the suction pressure is about 900 psig and the discharge pressure is about 1200 psig. In this way the gas in the Dial line will be compressed to 1200 psig along with other gas entering the Charco Station.

Wilcox Trend further alleges that the existing Dial connection with the main line will be maintained so that gas from the Dial line could flow directly into the main line without compression at other than maximum operating conditions when pressures allowed.

Wilcox Trend further states that the estimated capital cost of constructing and operating the proposed facilities is approximately $29,544 to be obtained from its funds on hand and that it anticipates constructing and operating the facilities immediately upon certification from the Commission.

Wilcox Trend further alleges that no new or additional sales or services are involved in Applicant's proposal, nor will there be any change in Applicant's gas supply, system operations or rates as a result of the proposed construction.

This matter is one that should be disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on October 1, 1956, at 9:45 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such application: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of §§ 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before September 17, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

Secretary.

WILCOX TREND GATHERING SYSTEM, INC., ET AL.

[Docket No. G–10780 etc.]

NOTICE OF APPLICATIONS AND DATE OF HEARING

AUGUST 29, 1956.

In the matters of Wilcox Trend Gathering System, Inc., Docket No. G–10780; W. H. Appell, et al., Docket No. G–10371; and W. Earl Rowe, et al., Docket No. G–10280.

Take notice that on July 20, 1956, Wilcox Trend Gathering System, Inc. (Wilcox), filed at Docket No. G–10780 an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the construction and operation of certain facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, and as more fully described in its application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection. Wilcox seeks authorization to construct and operate approximately 5 miles of 4-inch supply lateral pipeline to extend northerly from a point in the Dallas Husky Field, Goliad County, Texas to a point of connection with Wilcox's existing 4-inch lateral line in Goliad County, Texas; together with a meter station and appurtenant equipment. Wilcox states that these proposed facilities will receive gas produced in the Dallas Husky Field by Mark Edwin Andrews (Andrews), W. H. Appell, et al., (Appell) and W. Earl Rowe, et al. (Rowe), and the estimated total cost of the proposed facilities is approximately $61,500, which is to be financed from company funds.

Andrews was authorized at Docket No. G–9847 to sell gas from the Dallas Husky Field to Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation (Texas Eastern), assignee of Wilcox.

On April 19, Rowe, and on May 9, 1956, Appell filed applications at Docket Nos. G–10280 and G–10371, respectively, for certificates of public convenience and necessity covering their sales of gas from the Dallas Husky Field to Texas Eastern, assignee of Wilcox for transportation in interstate commerce for resale.

Wilcox states that it will transport the gas received from the above independent producers for redelivery to Texas Eastern at Provident City, Texas.

Wilcox further states that Texas Eastern will transport such gas in interstate commerce for resale. It was authorized to build facilities to take gas from Wilcox in Docket No. G–1947.

These related matters should be heard on a consolidated record and disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end:

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on October 1, 1956, at 9:30 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. [Docket No. G–10270 etc.]

WILCOX TREND GATHERING SYSTEM, INC., ET AL.

NOTICE OF APPLICATIONS AND DATE OF HEARING

AUGUST 29, 1956.

In the matters of Wilcox Trend Gathering System, Inc., Docket No. G–10270; Durbin Bond & Company, Inc., Docket No. G–10018, and Kirkwood and Company, et al., Docket No. G–10181.

Take notice that on April 16, 1956, Wilcox Trend Gathering System, Inc. (Wilcox), filed at Docket No. G–10270 an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the construction and operation of certain facilities as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission all as more fully represented in its application which is on file with the Commission and open for public inspection.

Wilcox seeks authorization to construct and operate approximately 17 miles of 6-inch supply lateral pipeline to extend northerly from a point in the Salem Field, Victoria County, Texas to a point of connection with its existing 16-inch main transmission line in Lavaca County, Texas; together with five meter stations and appurtenant equipment.

Wilcox states that these proposed facilities will receive gas produced in the Salem Field by Kirkwood & Company, et al. (Kirkwood), and Durbin Bond & Co., Inc., (Durbin).

Wilcox further states that the estimated total cost of all proposed facilities is $357,000 and the cost is to be financed from company funds except that possibly $100,000 of the cost may be obtained from bank loans or advances from Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation (Texas Eastern).

On February 29, 1956, Durbin, and on March 30, 1956, Kirkwood filed applications at Docket Nos. G–10018 and G–10181, respectively, for certificates of public convenience and necessity covering their sales of gas from the Salem Field, Victoria County, Texas, to Texas Eastern, assignee of Wilcox, for transportation in interstate commerce for resale.

Wilcox alleges that it will transport the gas received from Durbin and Kirkwood for redelivery to Texas Eastern at Provident City, Texas and that Texas Eastern will transport such gas in interstate commerce for resale.

Remaining recoverable dry gas reserves as of August 1, 1955, dedicated by Durbin and Kirkwood in the Salem Field to Texas Eastern are estimated by Texas Eastern in Docket No. G–9784 as totaling 11,328 MMcf @ 14.73 psia. The initial investment cost to Wilcox of $357,000 for the proposed facilities calculates to a unit investment cost of 3.15¢ per Mcf of reserves, which unit cost is on the high side, however, Wilcox cites in its subject application that the proposed lateral will enable it to acquire additional gas supplies produced from other fields and producing horizons in this area. Because of the potential gas reserves that may become available to Wilcox by virtue of the proposed lateral which otherwise would not, the proposed project appears to be justified.

These related matters should be heard on a consolidated record and disposed of as promptly as possible under the applicable rules and regulations and to that end;

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a hearing will be held on October 1, 1956, at 9:40 a. m., e. d. s. t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street NW., Washington, D. C., concerning the matters involved in and the issues presented by such applications: Provided, however, That the Commission may, after a non-contested hearing, dispose of the proceedings pursuant to the provisions of § 1.30 (c) (1) or (2) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure. Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicants to appear or be represented at the hearing.

Protests or petitions to intervene may be filed with the Federal Power Commission, Washington 25, D. C., in accordance with the rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) on or before September 17, 1956. Failure of any party to appear at and participate in the hearing shall be construed as waiver of and concurrence in omission herein of the intermediate decision procedure in cases where a request therefor is made.

HOME GAS CO. AND KEYSTONE GAS CO., INC.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER AUTHORIZING ACQUISITION OF GAS PROPERTIES BY NON-UTILITY COMPANY AND DISMISSING APPLICATION OF PUBLIC-UTILITY COMPANY

AUGUST 30, 1956.

Home Gas Company ("Home") and The Keystone Gas Company, Inc. ("Keystone"), wholly-owned subsidiaries of The Columbia Gas System, Inc. ("Columbia"), a registered holding company, have filed a joint application and an amendment thereto pursuant to sections 9 and 10 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") requesting such authorizations or exemptions as may be appropriate under the act with respect to the following proposed transactions:

Pursuant to an option dated March 14, 1955, from Harley E. Crandall, Roy S. Crandell, and Lillian A. Wilkinson (doing business as Wayne Gas Company), all non-affiliates of Columbia, to Keystone and a partial assignment of said option from Keystone to Home, the applicants propose to acquire, subject to the necessary regulatory approvals, certain gas properties in the Wayne natural gas field, located in portions of Schuyler, Yates, and Steuben counties, New York, as follows:

Home will acquire, for a cash consideration of $131,500 (with minor adjustment for property additions), the gas production facilities included within the optioned properties and also certain gas rights, leaseholds, and producing wells.

Keystone will acquire, for a cash consideration of $16,500 (with minor adjustment for property additions), the natural gas distribution plant included within the optioned properties.

Home is engaged in the purchase, storage, and transportation of natural gas and the sale thereof at wholesale to various utility companies in the State of New York. Home states that its proposed property acquisitions will assist it in further developing its underground storage field and in meeting its market requirements.

Keystone is engaged in the purchase, distribution, and sale at retail of natural gas in the City of Olean and various other communities in the State of New York, and the additional distribution facilities which it proposes to acquire will merely expand its present service area.

Since the property which Keystone proposes to acquire has heretofore been used and will continue to be used in the transmission and distribution at retail of natural gas, and since the acquisition of such property by Keystone has been expressly authorized by the New York Public Service Commission, the acquisition thereof by Keystone is exempt from the jurisdiction of this Commission pursuant to section 9 (b) (1) of the act. Therefore as to Keystone the instant application must be dismissed.

Since the properties which Home proposes to acquire will not be used in the distribution at retail of natural gas and therefore are not utility assets, the exemption afforded by section 9 (b) (1) is not available to Home; and since such properties constitute an interest in a business within the meaning of section 9 (a) (1) of the act, Home's proposed acquisitions are subject to the jurisdiction of this Commission. It is immaterial that part of the properties was heretofore included within a public utility distribution system under the jurisdiction of the New York commission, and that such commission has approved the transfer thereof to Home.

The fees and expenses of Home in connection herewith are estimated at $9,850, including legal fees of $5,850.

Due notice was given of the filing of said application, and no hearing was requested of or ordered by the Commission.

It appearing to the Commission, with respect to the application of Home, that the applicable provisions of the act and the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied and that no adverse findings are necessary, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said application be granted, effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that the application of Home be, and hereby is, granted, effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

It is further ordered, That the application of Keystone be, and hereby is, dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM, INC., ET AL.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED TRANSFER BY PUBLIC-UTILITY SUBSIDIARY OF ITS TRANSMISSION FACILITIES TO ASSOCIATE COMPANY AS STEP IN SEPARATION OF SYSTEM'S DISTRIBUTION FACILITIES FROM ITS TRANSMISSION FACILITIES

AUGUST 30, 1956.

In the matter of The Columbia Gas System, Inc., Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company, Kentucky Gas Transmission Corporation, File No. 70-3505.

Notice is hereby given that The Columbia Gas System, Inc. ("Columbia"), a registered holding company, Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company ("Central Kentucky"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Columbia, and Kentucky Gas Transmission Corporation ("Transmission"), a newly formed Delaware corporation, which upon consummation of the proposed transactions will also be a wholly-owned subsidiary of Columbia, have filed an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), designating sections 6 (b), 9, 10, and 12 thereof and Rules U-42 and U-43 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions, which are summarized as follows:

Columbia and its subsidiaries have evolved a program of corporate simplification designed, among other things, to minimize the problems of rate regulation, the objective being to realign the System properties in such manner that all production, storage and transmission properties used in wholesale operations and subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission will eventually be owned by a single operating company, and the retail distribution facilities in each State will be owned by a single company subject to the appropriate State commission. The instant filing covers one step in this program.

Central Kentucky is engaged in the purchase, storage, transmission and sale of natural gas within the State of Kentucky. The company will retain only those assets and properties used for the retail distribution of natural gas within said State; and it will transfer to Transmission its assets and properties used in wholesale operations for the transmission and storage of natural gas, together with the reserves, liabilities and obligations applicable thereto, and a sufficient amount of cash (presently estimated at $300,000) for Transmission's working capital requirements. The properties will be transferred at original cost less applicable reserves.

In payment for the assets and properties transferred, Transmission will issue and deliver to Central Kentucky 4,000 shares of its $25 par value Common Stock, having a book value of $8,269,021, and Installment Promissory Notes in the aggregate amount of $8,270,000, as of December 31, 1955.

Central Kentucky will deliver to Columbia the Installment Promissory Notes received from Transmission in prepayment of an equal principal amount of Central Kentucky's notes now held by Columbia. The notes to be issued by Transmission will have, to the extent practicable, the same terms as the notes of Central Kentucky which are to be repaid. Central Kentucky will also deliver to Columbia the common stock received from Transmission, and in consideration therefor Columbia will surrender for retirement common shares of Central Kentucky having an equal aggregate book value.

Upon consummation of the transfer by Central Kentucky of the facilities used in its wholesale operations, Transmission will become the principal supplier of natural gas to Central Kentucky, receiving the bulk of its supply from United Fuel Gas Company ("United Fuel"), a wholly-owned subsidiary of Columbia which at present is supplying Central Kentucky directly.

The Federal Power Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed acquisition and operation of certificated facilities by Transmission, the proposed abandonment of service through such facilities by Central Kentucky, the proposed abandonment by United Fuel of service to Central Kentucky, the proposed sale and delivery of natural gas by United Fuel to Transmission in lieu of its existing service to Central Kentucky, and the proposed sale of natural gas by Transmission to Central Kentucky after consummation of the transactions. The companies have filed a joint application with the Federal Power Commission seeking its approval of said proposals.

The Public Service Commission of Kentucky has authorized the consummation of the proposed transactions in so far as they affect Central Kentucky.

The fees and expenses to be incurred by the several companies in connection with the proposed transactions will be supplied by amendment.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than September 17, 1956, at 5:30 p. m., request in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said application-declaration which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C. At any time after said date said application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may grant exemption from its rules as provided in Rules U-20 (a) and U-100, or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

Secretary,

UNITED STATES TARIFF COMMISSION

DRIED FIGS

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

AUGUST 30, 1956.

The Tariff Commission today submitted a report to the President on the developments in the trade in dried figs during the marketing year beginning July 1, 1955. This report was made pursuant to paragraph 1 of Executive Order 10401 of October 14, 1952 (17 F. R. 9125), which prescribes procedures for periodic review of "escape clause" modifications or withdrawals of trade-agreement concessions. The tariff concession granted on dried figs in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade was modified under the "escape clause" procedure and the import duty increased from 2½ cents per pound to 4½ cents per pound, effective August 30, 1952 (Proc. No. 2986; 17 F. R. 7567). The present report is the fourth report with respect to this matter under Executive Order 10401.

The Commission advised the President that the conditions of competition with respect to the trade in imported and domestically produced dried figs do not appear to have so changed during the 1955 marketing year as to warrant the institution of a formal investigation under the provisions of paragraph 2 of Executive Order 10401. Such a formal investigation is a prerequisite to any action to restore in whole or in part a trade-agreement concession which had been modified or withdrawn under the "escape clause" procedure.

Copies of the Commission's report are available upon request as long as the limited supply lasts. Address requests to the United States Tariff Commission, Eighth and E Streets NW., Washington 25, D. C.

Secretary.

Chapter IV—Commodity Stabilization Service and Commodity Credit Corporation, Department of Agriculture

Subchapter B—Loans, Purchases and Other Operations

[1956 C. C. C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, Supp. 1, Amdt. 1, Wheat]

PART 421—GRAINS AND RELATED COMMODITIES

SUBPART—1956-CROP WHEAT LOAN AND PURCHASE AGREEMENT PROGRAM

SETTLEMENT VALUE

The regulations issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Commodity Stabilization Service, published in 21 F. R. 4000 and 5560, and containing the specific requirements of the 1956-crop wheat price support program are amended to prescribe additional purchase agreement provisions under the program.

Section 421.1645 (a) is amended by deleting subparagraph (2) and inserting a new subparagraph (2) which reads as follows:

§ 421.1645 Settlement—(a) Settlement value. * * *

(2) The provisions of this subparagraph, together with applicable provisions of the 1956 C. C. C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, and Supplements 1 and 2, Wheat, constitute the regulations applicable to purchase agreement operations under the 1956-crop wheat price support program.

(i) The producer who signs a purchase agreement (Commodity Purchase Form 1) will not be obligated to sell any quantity of the wheat to CCC. However, he may sell to CCC any quantity of the eligible wheat not in excess of the quantity stated in the purchase agreement. If the producer who signs a purchase agreement wishes to sell the wheat to CCC, he will have a 30-day period during which he must notify the county committee in writing of his intentions to sell. Such period shall end on the applicable loan maturity date or such earlier date as may be prescribed by the Executive Vice President, CCC.

(ii) In the case of eligible wheat stored commingled in an approved warehouse, the producer must, not later than the day following the final date of such 30-day period, or during such period of time thereafter as may be specified by the county committee, submit to the office of the county committee warehouse receipts under which the warehouseman guarantees quality and quantity, for the quantity of wheat he elects to sell to CCC. Such wheat will be purchased, on the basis of the weight, grade, and other quality factors shown on the warehouse receipts and/or accompanying documents at the applicable support rate determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d).

(iii) Where the producer has given written notice within the 30-day period prior to the applicable loan maturity date of his intent to sell his wheat stored in other than an approved warehouse under purchase agreement to CCC, an inspection of the wheat shall be made and a sample taken and submitted for grade analysis within the 30-day period and, in any event, prior to delivery of the wheat. If the wheat, on the basis of the pre-delivery inspection, is of a quality which meets the requirements for a farm-storage loan, the county committee will issue delivery instructions on or after the final date of the 30-day period or the date of inspection, whichever is later. The producer must then complete delivery within the 15-day period immediately following the date the county committee issues delivery instructions, unless the county committee determines that more time is needed for delivery. Upon delivery of eligible wheat to CCC the wheat shall be reinspected, and settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate for the grade and quality of the quantity of wheat eligible for delivery on the basis of such reinspection. Such support rate shall be determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d). If wheat which was eligible at the time of the pre-delivery inspection is, upon delivery, of a grade or quality for which no support rate has been established, the settlement value shall be computed at the support rate established for the grade and quality of the eligible wheat as determined at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, less the difference, if any, at the time of delivery, between the market price for the grade and quality of the wheat determined by the pre-delivery inspection and the market price of the wheat delivered, as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such wheat is sold by CCC in order to determine its market price, the settlement value shall not be less than such sales price and: Provided further, That if upon delivery, the wheat is of a quality which does not meet sanitation requirements of § 421.1638 (d) (1), the wheat shall be sold for feed, or for industrial uses other than food and beverages, and in the event it does not meet the requirements of § 421.1638 (d) (2), shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and regulations), fuel, or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by man or animals, and in each instance covered by this proviso, the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price: Provided further, That if CCC is unable to sell such commodity for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, if any, as determined by CCC, as of the date of delivery.

(iv) The producer, whose wheat stored in other than an approved warehouse is not of a quality eligible for a loan at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, shall be notified in writing by the county committee that his wheat is not eligible for purchase by CCC. If, nevertheless, the producer informs the county office that he will condition the wheat or otherwise take action to make the wheat eligible, and insists upon delivery of the wheat, the county committee will issue delivery instructions and will determine upon delivery of the wheat and before purchase, on the basis of a sample taken at that time, whether or not the wheat is actually of an eligible grade and quality. If the wheat is inadvertently accepted by CCC and is of a grade and quality below the eligibility requirements for obtaining a loan, the settlement value for such wheat shall be the market price as determined by CCC for the quality of the wheat delivered. If, however, the wheat is of an eligible grade and quality as determined at the time of delivery, settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate, determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d), for the grade and quality of the quantity eligible for delivery.

(v) The settlement value on any quantity of wheat in excess of that stated in the purchase agreement which is delivered to, and inadvertently accepted by CCC, shall be the market price for the grade and quality of the quantity delivered, as determined by CCC.

(vi) When delivery of the wheat is completed, payment will be made by sight draft drawn on CCC by the county office. The producer shall direct on Commodity Purchase Form 4 to whom payment of the proceeds shall be made.

(vii) The producer may be required to retain the wheat stored in other than approved warehouse storage for a period of 60 days after the applicable loan maturity date without any cost to CCC. CCC will not assume any loss in quantity or quality of the wheat covered by a purchase agreement occurring prior to delivery to CCC, except for quality deterioration under the following circumstances. If a producer has properly requested delivery instructions for wheat which was of an eligible grade and quality at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, and CCC cannot accept delivery within the 60-day period following the applicable loan maturity date, the producer may notify the county committee at any time after such 60-day period that the wheat is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition. Such notice must be confirmed in writing. If the county committee determines that the wheat is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition and that the wheat cannot be satisfactorily conditioned by the producer, and delivery cannot be accepted within a reasonable length of time, the county committee shall obtain an inspection and grade and quality determination. When delivery is completed, settlement shall be made on the basis of such grade and quality determination or on the basis of the grade and quality determination made at the time of delivery, whichever is higher, and on the basis of the quantity actually delivered.

(viii) The provisions of § 421.1618 (f) shall be applicable in cases where a producer is ordered by the county committee to deliver his wheat to a shipping point of greater distance than his customary shipping point.

PART 421—GRAINS AND RELATED COMMODITIES

SUBPART—1956-CROP BARLEY LOAN AND PURCHASE AGREEMENT PROGRAM

SETTLEMENT VALUE

The regulations issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Commodity Stabilization Service, published in 21 F. R. 4004, 4785, and 5982, and containing the specific requirements of the 1956-crop barley price support program are amended to prescribe additional purchase agreement provisions under the program.

Section 421.1685 (a) is amended by deleting subparagraph (2) and inserting a new subparagraph (2) which reads as follows:

§ 421.1685 Settlement—(a) Settlement value. • • •

(2) The provisions of this subparagraph, together with applicable provisions of the 1956 C. C. C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, and Supplements 1 and 2, Barley, constitute the regulations applicable to purchase agreement operations under the 1956-crop barley price support program.

(i) The producer who signs a purchase agreement (Commodity Purchase Form 1) will not be obligated to sell any quantity of the barley to CCC. However, he may sell to CCC any quantity of the eligible barley not in excess of the quantity stated in the purchase agreement. If the producer who signs a purchase agreement wishes to sell the barley to CCC, he will have a 30-day period during which he must notify the county committee in writing of his intentions to sell. Such period shall end on the applicable loan maturity date or such earlier date as may be prescribed by the Executive Vice President, CCC.

(ii) In the case of eligible barley stored commingled in an approved warehouse, the producer must, not later than the day following the final date of such 30-day period, or during such period of time thereafter as may be specified by the county committee, submit to the office of county committee warehouse receipts under which the warehouseman guarantees quality and quantity, for the quantity of barley he elects to sell to CCC. Such barley will be purchased, on the basis of the weight, grade, and other quality factors shown on the warehouse receipts and/or accompanying documents at the applicable support rate determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d).

(iii) Where the producer has given written notice within the 30-day period prior to the applicable loan maturity date of his intent to sell his barley stored in other than an approved warehouse under purchase agreement to CCC an inspection of the barley shall be made and a sample taken and submitted for grade analysis within the 30-day period and, in any event, prior to delivery of the barley. If the barley, on the basis of the pre-delivery inspection, is of a quality which meets the requirements for a farm-storage loan, the county committee will issue delivery instructions on or after the final date of the 30-day period or the date of inspection, whichever is later. The producer must then complete delivery within the 15-day period immediately following the date the county committee issues delivery instructions, unless the county committee determines that more time is needed for delivery. Upon delivery of eligible barley to CCC, the barley shall be reinspected, and settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate for the grade and quality of the quantity of barley eligible for delivery on the basis of such reinspection. Such support rate shall be determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d). If barley which was eligible at the time of the pre-delivery inspection is, upon delivery, of a grade or quality for which no support rate has been established, the settlement value shall be computed at the support rate established for the grade and quality of the eligible barley as determined at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, less the difference, if any, at the time of delivery, between the market price for the grade and quality of the barley determined by the pre-delivery inspection and the market price of the barley delivered, as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such barley is sold by CCC in order to determine its market price, the settlement value shall not be less than such sales price: Provided further, That if, upon delivery, the barley contains mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals, such barley shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and regulations), fuel, or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by men or animals, and the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price, except that if CCC is unable to sell such commodity for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, if any, as determined by CCC, as of the date of delivery.

(iv) The producer, whose barley stored in other than an approved warehouse is not of a quality eligible for a loan at the time of the pre-delivery inspection shall be notified in writing by the county committee that his barley is not eligible for purchase by CCC. If, nevertheless, the producer informs the county office that he will condition the barley, or otherwise take action to make the barley eligible and insists upon delivery of the barley, the county committee will issue delivery instructions and will determine upon delivery of the barley and before purchase, on the basis of a sample taken at that time, whether or not the barley is actually of an eligible grade and quality. If the barley is inadvertently accepted by CCC and is of a grade and quality below the eligibility requirements for obtaining a loan, the settlement value for such barley shall be the market price as determined by CCC for the quality of the barley delivered. If, however, the barley is of an eligible grade and quality as determined at the time of delivery, settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate, determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d), for the grade and quality of the quantity eligible for delivery.

(v) The settlement value on any quantity of barley in excess of that stated in the purchase agreement which is delivered to, and inadvertently accepted by CCC, shall be the market price for the grade and quality of the quantity delivered, as determined by CCC.

(vi) When delivery of the barley is completed, payment will be made by sight draft drawn on CCC by the county office. The producer shall direct on Commodity Purchase Form 4 to whom payment of the proceeds shall be made.

(vii) The producer may be required to retain the barley stored in other than approved warehouse storage for a period of 60 days after the applicable loan maturity date without any cost to CCC. CCC will not assume any loss in quantity or quality of the barley covered by a purchase agreement occurring prior to delivery to CCC, except for quality deterioration under the following circumstances. If a producer has properly requested delivery instructions for barley which was of an eligible grade and quality at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, and CCC cannot accept delivery within the 60-day period following the applicable loan maturity date, the producer may notify the county committee at any time after such 60-day period that the barley is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition. Such notice must be confirmed in writing. If the county committee determines that the barley is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition and that the barley cannot be satisfactorily conditioned by the producer, and delivery cannot be accepted within a reasonable length of time, the county committee shall obtain an inspection and grade and quality determination. When delivery is completed, settlement shall be made on the basis of such grade and quality determination or on the basis of the grade and quality determination made at the time of delivery, whichever is higher, and on the basis of the quantity actually delivered.

(viii) The provisions of § 421.1618 (f) shall be applicable in cases where a producer is ordered by the county committee to deliver his barley to a shipping point of greater distance than his customary shipping point.

(Sec. 4, 62 Stat. 1070, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 714b. Interpret or apply sec. 5, 62 Stat. 1072, secs. 301, 401, 63 Stat. 1053, 1054, as amended, sec. 308, 70 Stat. 206; 15 U. S. C. 714c, 1447, 1421)

PART 421—GRAINS AND RELATED COMMODITIES

SUBPART—1956-CROP OATS LOAN AND PURCHASE AGREEMENT PROGRAM

SETTLEMENT VALUE

The regulations issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Commodity Stabilization Service published in 21 F. R. 4007, 4792, 5031 and 5566, and containing the specific requirements of the 1956-crop oats price support program are amended to prescribe additional purchase agreement provisions under the program.

Section 421.1885 (a) is amended by deleting subparagraph (2) and inserting a new subparagraph (2) which reads as follows:

§ 421.1885 Settlement—(a) Settlement value. * * *

(2) The provisions of this subparagraph, together with applicable provisions of the 1956 CCC Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, and Supplements 1 and 2, Oats, constitute the regulations applicable to purchase agreement operations under the 1956-crop oats price support program.

(i) The producer who signs a purchase agreement (Commodity Purchase Form 1) will not be obligated to sell any quantity of the oats to CCC. However, he may sell to CCC any quantity of the eligible oats not in excess of the quantity stated in the purchase agreement. If the producer who signs a purchase agreement wishes to sell the oats to CCC, he will have a 30-day period during which he must notify the county committee in writing of his intentions to sell. Such period shall end on the applicable loan maturity date or such earlier date as may be prescribed by the Executive Vice President, CCC.

(ii) In the case of eligible oats stored commingled in an approved warehouse, the producer must, not later than the day following the final date of such 30-day period, or during such period of time thereafter as may be specified by the county committee, submit to the office of the county committee warehouse receipts under which the warehouseman guarantees quality and quantity, for the quantity of oats he elects to sell to CCC. Such oats will be purchased, on the basis of the weight, grade, and other quality factors shown on the warehouse receipts and/or accompanying documents at the applicable support rate for the county in which the oats were produced.

(iii) Where the producer has given written notice within the 30-day period prior to the applicable loan maturity date of his intent to sell his oats stored in other than an approved warehouse under purchase agreement to CCC, an inspection of the oats shall be made and a sample taken and submitted for grade analysis within the 30-day period and, in any event, prior to delivery of the oats. If the oats, on the basis of the pre-delivery inspection, are of a quality which meets the requirements for a farm-storage loan, the county committee will issue delivery instructions on or after the final date of the 30-day period or the date of inspection, whichever is later. The producer must then complete delivery within a 15-day period immediately following the date the county committee issues delivery instructions, unless the county committee determines that more time is needed for delivery. Upon delivery of eligible oats to CCC the oats shall be reinstated, and settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate for the grade and quality of the quantity of oats eligible for delivery on the basis of such reinspection. Such support rate shall be the rate established for the county in which the oats were produced. If oats, which were eligible at the time of the pre-delivery inspection are upon delivery of a grade or quality for which no support rate has been established, the settlement value shall be computed at the support rate established for the grade and quality of the eligible oats as determined at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, less the difference, if any, at the time of delivery, between the market price for the grade and quality of the oats determined by the pre-delivery inspection and the market price of the oats delivered, as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such oats are sold by CCC in order to determine their market price the settlement value shall not be less than such sales price: Provided further, That if, upon delivery, the oats contain mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals, such oats shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and regulations), fuel, or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by man or animals, and the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price, except that if CCC is unable to sell such oats for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, if any, as determined by CCC, as of the date of delivery.

(iv) The producer, whose oats stored in other than an approved warehouse are not of a quality eligible for a loan at the time of predelivery inspection, shall be notified in writing by the county committee that his oats are not eligible for purchase by CCC. If, nevertheless, the producer informs the county office that he will condition the oats, or otherwise take action to make the oats eligible and insists upon delivery of the oats, the county committee will issue delivery instructions and will determine upon delivery of the oats and before purchase, on the basis of a sample taken at that time, whether or not the oats are actually of an eligible grade and quality. If the oats are inadvertently accepted by CCC and are of a grade and quality below the eligibility requirements for obtaining a loan the settlement value for such oats shall be the market price as determined by CCC for the quality of the oats delivered. If, however, the oats are of an eligible grade and quality as determined at the time of delivery, settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate for the county in which the oats were produced and for the grade and quality of the quantity eligible for delivery.

(v) The settlement value on any quantity of oats in excess of that stated in the purchase agreement which is delivered to, and inadvertently accepted by CCC, shall be the market price for the grade and quality of the quantity delivered, as determined by CCC.

(vi) When delivery of the oats is completed, payment will be made by sight draft drawn on CCC by the county office. The producer shall direct on Commodity Purchase Form 4 to whom payment of the proceeds shall be made.

(vii) The producer may be required to retain the oats stored in other than approved warehouse storage for a period of 60 days after the applicable loan maturity date without any cost to CCC. CCC will not assume any loss in quantity or quality of the oats covered by a purchase agreement occurring prior to delivery to CCC, except for quality deterioration under the following circumstances. If a producer has properly requested delivery instructions for oats which were of an eligible grade and quality at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, and CCC cannot accept delivery within the 60-day period following the applicable loan maturity date, the producer may notify the county committee at any time after such 60-day period that the oats are going out of condition or are in danger of going out of condition. Such notice must be confirmed in writing. If the county committee determines that the oats are going out of condition or are in danger of going out of condition and that the oats cannot be satisfactorily conditioned by the producer, and delivery cannot be accepted within a reasonable length of time, the county committee shall obtain an inspection and grade and quality determination. When delivery is completed, settlement shall be made on the basis of such grade and quality determination or on the basis of the grade and quality determination made at the time of delivery, whichever is higher, and on the basis of the quantity actually delivered.

(viii) If the producer is directed by the county committee to deliver his oats to a point other than his customary shipping point, the producer shall be allowed compensation (as determined by CCC, at not to exceed the common carrier truck rate or the rate available from local truckers) for the additional cost of hauling the oats any distance greater than the distance from the point where the oats are stored by the producer to the customary shipping point.

PART 421—GRAINS AND RELATED COMMODITIES

SUBPART—1956-CROP FLAXSEED LOAN AND PURCHASE AGREEMENT PROGRAM

SETTLEMENT VALUE

The regulations issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Commodity Stabilization Service, published in 21 F. R. 4265 and 4545, and containing the specific requirements of the 1956-crop flaxseed price support program are amended to prescribe additional purchase agreement provisions under the program.

Section 421.2085 (a) is amended by deleting the second subparagraph (2) and inserting a subparagraph (3) which reads as follows:

§ 421.2085 Settlement—(a) Settlement value. * * *

(3) The provisions of this subparagraph, together with applicable provisions of the 1956 C. C. C. Grain Price Support Bulletin 1, and Supplement 1, Flaxseed, constitute the regulations applicable to purchase agreement operations under the 1956-crop flaxseed price support program.

(i) The producer who signs a purchase agreement (Commodity Purchase Form 1) will not be obligated to sell any quantity of the flaxseed to CCC. However, he may sell to CCC any quantity of the eligible flaxseed not in excess of the quantity stated in the purchase agreement. If the producer who signs a purchase agreement wishes to sell the flaxseed to CCC, he will have a 30-day period during which he must notify the county committee in writing of his intentions to sell. Such period shall end on the applicable loan maturity date or such earlier date as may be prescribed by the Executive Vice President, CCC.

(ii) In the case of eligible flaxseed stored commingled in an approved warehouse, the producer must, not later than the day following the final date of such 30-day period, or during such period of time thereafter as may be specified by the county committee, submit to the office of county committee warehouse receipts under which the warehouseman guarantees quality and quantity, for the quantity of flaxseed he elects to sell to CCC. Such flaxseed will be purchased, on the basis of the weight, grade, and other quality factors shown on the warehouse receipts and/or accompanying documents at the applicable support rate determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d).

(iii) Where the producer has given written notice within the 30-day period prior to the applicable loan maturity date of his intent to sell his flaxseed stored in other than an approved warehouse under purchase agreement to CCC, an inspection of the flaxseed shall be made and a sample taken and submitted for grade analysis within the 30-day period and, in any event, prior to delivery of the flaxseed. If the flaxseed on the basis of the pre-delivery inspection, is of a quality which meets the requirements for a farm-storage loan, the county committee will issue delivery instructions on or after the final date of the 30-day period or the date of inspection, whichever is later. The producer must then complete delivery within the 15-day period immediately following the date the county committee issues delivery instructions, unless the county committee determines that more time is needed for delivery. Upon delivery of eligible flaxseed to CCC the flaxseed shall be reinspected, and settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate for the grade and quality of the quantity of flaxseed eligible for delivery on the basis of such reinspection. Such support rate shall be determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d). If flaxseed which was eligible at the time of the pre-delivery inspection is, upon delivery, of a grade or quality for which no support rate has been established, the settlement value shall be computed at the support rate established for the grade and quality of the eligible flaxseed as determined at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, less the difference, if any, at the time of delivery, between the market price for the grade and quality of the flaxseed determined by the pre-delivery inspection and the market price of the flaxseed delivered, as determined by CCC: Provided, however, That if such flaxseed is sold by CCC in order to determine its market price, the settlement value shall not be less than such sales price; Provided further, That if upon delivery the flaxseed contains mercurial compounds or other substances poisonous to man or animals, such flaxseed shall be sold for seed (in accordance with applicable State seed laws and regulations), fuel, or industrial uses where the end product will not be consumed by man or animals, and the settlement value shall be the same as the sales price, except that if CCC is unable to sell such commodity for the use specified above, the settlement value shall be the market value, if any, as determined by CCC, as of the date of delivery.

(iv) The producer, whose flaxseed stored in other than an approved warehouse is not of a quality eligible for a loan at the time of the pre-delivery inspection, shall be notified in writing by the county committee that his flaxseed is not eligible for purchase by CCC. If, nevertheless, the producer informs the county office that he will condition the flaxseed, or otherwise take action to make the flaxseed eligible and insists upon delivery of the flaxseed, the county committee will issue delivery instructions and will determine upon delivery of the flaxseed and before purchase, on the basis of a sample taken at that time, whether or not the flaxseed is actually of an eligible grade and quality. If the flaxseed is inadvertently accepted by CCC and is of a grade and quality below the eligibility requirements for obtaining a loan, the settlement value for such flaxseed shall be the market price as determined by CCC for the quality of the flaxseed delivered. If, however, the flaxseed is of an eligible grade and quality as determined at the time of delivery, settlement shall be made at the applicable support rate, determined in accordance with § 421.1618 (d), for the grade and quality of the quantity eligible for delivery.

(v) The settlement value on any quantity of flaxseed in excess of that stated in the purchase agreement which is delivered to, and inadvertently accepted by CCC, shall be the market price for the grade and quality of the quantity delivered, as determined by CCC.

(vi) When delivery of the flaxseed is completed, payment will be made by sight draft drawn on CCC by the county office. The producer shall direct on Commodity Purchase Form 4 to whom payment of the proceeds shall be made.

(vii) The producer may be required to retain the flaxseed stored in other than approved warehouse storage for a period of 60 days after the applicable loan maturity date without any cost to CCC. CCC will not assume any lose in quantity or quality of the flaxseed covered by a purchase agreement occurring prior to delivery to CCC, except for quality deterioration under the following circumstances. If a producer has properly requested delivery instructions for flaxseed which was of an eligible grade and quality at the time of the predelivery inspection, and CCC cannot accept delivery within the 60-day period following the applicable loan maturity date, the producer may notify the county committee at any time after such 60-day period that the flaxseed is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition. Such notice must be confirmed in writing. If the county committee determines that the flaxseed is going out of condition or is in danger of going out of condition and that the flaxseed cannot be satisfactorily conditioned by the producer, and delivery cannot be accepted within a reasonable length of time, the county committee shall obtain an inspection and grade and quality determination. When delivery is completed, settlement shall be made on the basis of such grade and quality determination or on the basis of the grade and quality determination made at the time of delivery, whichever is higher, and on the basis of the quantity actually delivered.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 947—MILK IN FALL RIVER, MASS., MARKETING AREA

ORDER SUSPENDING CERTAIN PROVISIONS

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act", and of the order, as amended (7 CFR Part 947), regulating the handling of milk in the Fall River, Massachusetts, marketing area, hereinafter referred to as the "order", it is hereby found and determined that:

a. The provisos in §§ 947.50 and 947.51 and the entire § 947.53 will not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act for the period after August 31, 1956.

Provisos in §§ 947.50 and 947.51 and entire § 947.53 provide that when rail tariff on milk and cream is increased or decreased the Class I and Class II price for plants located not more than 100 miles from Fall River shall be increased or decreased to the extent of the increase or decrease in the rail tariff for transportation of milk or cream respectively. This provision was based on the concept that any change in the rail tariff on milk and cream would be made only in terms of the rate applying to shipments from specific 10-mile zones via rail mileage. However, New England Joint Tariff M No. 8 effective September 1, 1956, has substituted point-to-point rates in place of the traditional zone rates. The differences between the old and new rates vary considerably from any uniformity of change by 10-mile zones, and by their very nature their effect cannot be uniformly reflected in the order's zone table.

b. Notice of proposed rule making, public procedure thereon, and 30 days notice of the effective date hereof, are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest for reason stated under a above and in that:

1. The information upon which this action is based did not become available in time for such compliance.

2. This suspension order does not require persons affected substantial or extensive preparation prior to its effective date.

Therefore, good cause exists for making this order effective September 1, 1956.

It is therefore ordered, That the provisos of §§ 947.50, 947.51, and entire § 947.53 be and they are hereby suspended during the period from September 1, 1956 to the effective date of any amendment made to the order as a result of a public hearing.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 31st day of August 1956.

[SEAL] EARL L. BUTZ,
Assistant Secretary.

PART 76—HOG CHOLERA, SWINE PLAGUE, AND OTHER COMMUNICABLE SWINE DISEASES

SUBPART B—VESICULAR EXANTHEMA

CHANGES IN AREAS QUARANTINED

Pursuant to the provisions of sections 1 and 3 of the act of March 3, 1905, as amended (21 U. S. C. 123, 125), sections 1 and 2 of the act of February 2, 1903, as amended (21 U. S. R. 3, 417, 786, 1165, 1461, 1743, 2230, 2611, 3005, 3923, 4339, 5043, 5435, 5861), which quarantines certain areas because of vesicular exanthema, a contagious, infectious, and communicable disease of swine, is hereby further amended in the following respects:

1. Subdivision (vii) of subparagraph (8) of paragraph (c), relating to Worcester County in Massachusetts, is amended to read:

(vii) That part of the Town of Oxford lying north of Dand Road, south of Federal Hill Road, east of Brown Street, and west of Hudson Street; and that part of the Town of Oxford lying north of Federal Hill Road, south of Depot Road, east of State Route No. 12, and west of Millbury Street.

Effective date. The foregoing amendment shall become effective upon issuance.

The amendment excludes a certain area in Massachusetts from the areas heretofore quarantined because of vesicular exanthema. Hereafter, the restrictions pertaining to the interstate movement of swine, and carcasses, parts and offal of swine, from or through quarantined areas, contained in 9 CFR, 1955 Supp., Part 76, Subpart B, as amended, will not apply to such area. However, the restrictions pertaining to such movement from non-quarantined areas, contained in said Subpart B, as amended, will apply thereto.

The amendment relieves certain restrictions presently imposed, and must be made effective immediately to be of maximum benefit to persons subject to the restrictions which are relieved. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and the amendment may be made effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 7, 23 Stat. 32, as amended, secs. 1, 2, 32 Stat. 791–792, as amended, secs. 1, 3, 33 Stat. 1264, as amended, 1265, as amended; 21 U. S. C. 111–113, 117, 120, 123, 125)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 31st day of August 1956.

Chapter I—Veterans Administration

PART 3—VETERANS CLAIMS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. In § 3.1, paragraph (e) is amended to read as follows:

§ 3.1 Persons included in the acts in addition to commissioned officers and enlisted men. • • •

(e) Commissioned officers, Public Health Service. Officers of the Public Health Service who were detailed for duty with the Army or Navy are included as officers in the active service. On or after November 11, 1943, commissioned officers of the Public Health Service, regular and reserve, who (1) are detailed for duty with the Army, Navy, or Coast Guard; (2) are serving in time of war outside the continental limits of the United States or in Alaska, regardless of whether the disability or death was suffered prior or subsequent to November 11, 1943: Provided, however, That benefits may not be awarded for any period prior to November 11, 1943; or (3) perform active service in time of war or of emergency involving the national defense (Pub. Law 492, 84th Cong.) and following the issuance of an Executive order declaring the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service a part of the military forces of the United States are also included. In regard to subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, the Executive order was published on June 29, 1945, effective July 29, 1945. Hence, on and after the latter date and to and including July 3, 1952, the above-described commissioned officers of the Public Health Service, with respect to active service performed, shall be considered as in active military or naval service and included within the acts administered by the Veterans Administration: Provided, however, That if disability was incurred after July 25, 1947, and prior to May 11, 1951, the rates payable and criteria are those provided by Part II, Veterans Regulation 1 (a), as amended (38 U. S. C. ch. 12A). On and after May 11, 1951, the rates payable and criteria are those provided by Part I, Veterans Regulation 1 (a), as amended, including those who incurred disability after June 26, 1950. Commissioned officers of the Public Health Service retired for any cause during the period from July 29, 1945, to July 3, 1952, inclusive, are in the same category as retired officers of the Armed Forces with respect to benefits payable under the laws administered by the Veterans Administration and are therefore subject to the provisions of § 3.300.

2. In § 3.216, paragraph (c) is amended to read as follows:

§ 3.216 Application for increase based upon changed physical condition. • • •

(c) Physical examination reports, clinical records, and transcripts of records received from State, county, municipal, and recognized private institutions. Generally, physical examination reports, clinical records, and transcripts of records from State, county, municipal, and recognized private institutions relative to veterans will be accorded the same consideration for the purpose of rating claims for compensation or pension as though the records were received from a Veterans Administration field station. These records, however, must present the essentials upon which ratings are to be founded, that is, the disabling conditions must be adequately identified; sufficient findings must be reported to permit proper evaluation of the condition and records pertaining to veterans hospitalized at Veterans Administration expense must be certified by Chief Medical Officers or their physician designees. Section II of the annual supplement, "Administrators Guide Issue" of "Hospitals —The Journal of the American Hospital Association," contains the only current list of acceptable hospitals located in the United States, its territories and possessions. These hospitals are accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals or are recognized as having met eligibility standards for registration established previously by the American Medical Association. However, all acceptable hospitals are not listed inasmuch as this listing is a voluntary procedure and no hospital is required to apply for inclusion. If the hospital in which the veteran was examined or treated is not listed in the most recent issue of this publication, the Chief Medical Officer or his physician designee will be requested to advise whether the hospital is acceptable for the care and treatment of Veterans Administration beneficiaries. Depending upon the advice of the Chief Medical Officer or his physician designee, the report will be accepted or corroborative examination by the Veterans Administration requested. It is to be understood that such records, in those instances where maintenance is not at the expense of the Veterans Administration, should not be accepted as claims for increase if they are routinely submitted, but only where there is an indication that they are being submitted for the purpose of claiming increased benefits. Even when submitted for such purpose, where the hospitalization is not at Veterans Administration expense, the effective date of benefits will be the date of receipt by the Veterans Administration of the report of hospitalization constituting the claim for increase or to reopen.

3. In § 3.358, paragraph (a) is amended to read as follows:

§ 3.358 Public Law 212, 72d Congress, as amended. (a) Effective July 1, 1932, section 212 of Public Law 212, 72d Congress, as amended, which is permanent legislation, prohibits the concurrent payment of retirement pay (other than that payable under Title III, Public Law 810, 80th Congress (decision Court of Claims—Tanner vs. United States)) and salary from the United States Government or the Municipal Government of the District of Columbia, or any corporation, the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States, except under certain specified conditions. However, such prohibition is inapplicable if the disability for which retired was incurred in combat with an enemy of the United States. The above restriction is also inapplicable on and after July 15, 1940, if the disability for which retired resulted from an explosion of an instrumentality of war in line of duty and on and after January 1, 1951, if such disability was caused by an instrumentality of war in line of duty. A finding by the Board of Veterans Appeals that a disability is the direct result of the performance of duty, or that on all the evidence of record it is clearly shown that the disability for which retirement was granted was incurred in or aggravated by active service in fact in line of duty without benefit of any statutory or regulatory presumption of any kind, does not of itself meet the requirements of Public Law 212. There must be a specific finding of combat incurrence of a disability for which retirement was granted or a specific finding that the disability resulted from an explosion of an instrumentality of war or was caused by an instrumentality of war in line of duty during enlistment or employment as provided in Part I, paragraph I, Veterans Regulation 1 (a), (38 U. S. C. ch. 12A). If a retired officer is also an employee of the United States within the purview of section 212, Public Law 212, 72d Congress, as amended, and his retired pay is at a rate equal to or in excess of $10,000 per annum, he must elect which form of payment he desires during the period of such incumbency. If the rate of the retired pay and the rate of civilian compensation, when combined, are equal to or less than $10,000 per annum, he is entitled to both. On the other hand, if the civilian compensation is at a rate of less than $10,000 and the retired pay is also at a rate of less than $10,000, he is entitled to the full amount of his civilian pay and to such additional amount from the retired pay as will make a total payment annually of $10,000 (Comptroller General—June 25, 1942, B–24989—Public Law 239, 84th Cong.). If the retired pay is at a rate of less than $10,000 and the civilian pay is at a rate in excess of $10,000, there is no right of election, the civilian pay must be paid, and even though it is a part-time position and the salary actually paid is less than $10,000 per annum, there is no right to any portion of the retired pay (Comptroller General—Aug. 17, 1932, 12 Comp. Gen. 256). The claim of a part-time employee should be adjudicated on the "rate" of pay for the position rather than on the part-time pay received. It is, therefore, necessary to ascertain from the department or establishment where the veteran is employed, the annual rate of pay for the position held. Section 212, Public Law 212, 72d Congress, as amended, is applicable to persons receiving fees from the Federal Government only when such fees are paid in connection with employment in "a civilian office or position, appointive or elective, under the United States Government or Municipal Government of the District of Columbia, or under corporation, the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States." However, when the fees are based on services furnished under contract, i. e., when the person receiving same is not an "employee," section 212, Public Law 212, 72d Congress, as amended, is not for application. For example, employment by the Veterans Administration of former officers of the Armed Forces retired for disability as consultants upon a fee basis pursuant to section 14 (a) of Public Law 293, 79th Congress, is not in contravention of section 212 of Public Law 212, 72d Congress, inasmuch as such consultants do not occupy an "office or position" within the meaning of those terms as used in the cited statute, notwithstanding that the term "compensation" as used therein is sufficiently broad to include fees (Comp. Gen. B–62616, Jan. 17, 1947).

(Sec. 212, 47 Stat. 406, as amended, sec. 608, 59 Stat. 305, secs. 301–313, 62 Stat. 1087, sec. 2, 69 Stat. 498; 5 U. S. C. 59a, 948, 10 U. S. C. 1036–1036i, 1036 note, 34 U. S. C. 440h–440q, 440h note)

This regulation is effective September 7, 1956.

TITLE 41—PUBLIC CONTRACTS

Chapter II—Division of Public Contracts, Department of Labor

PART 202—MINIMUM WAGE DETERMINATIONS

DETERMINATION OF PREVAILING MINIMUM WAGES FOR VARIOUS INDUSTRIES

On February 29, 1956, a hearing was held to determine what is the prevailing minimum wage in each of several named industries and parts of industries for which there is a prevailing minimum wage determination of less than $1.00 per hour under section 1 (b) of the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act. Upon the basis of the record compiled at the hearing, the Secretary of Labor published a proposed determination of prevailing minimum wages (21 F. R. 5696—July 28, 1956), in which prevailing minimum wages for all of those industries and parts of industries are found to be $1.00 per hour. Interested parties were allowed 15 days in which to submit written exceptions to the proposed determination. No exceptions have been received. The findings and conclusions and the reasons and bases therefore are set out in the Notice of Proposed Determination of Prevailing Minimum Wages for Various Industries (21 F. R. 5696), are hereby adopted for the purpose of this determination.

Accordingly, pursuant to authority vested in me by sections 1 (b) and 6 of the Public Contracts Act (49 Stat. 2036; 41 U. S. C. 35), Part 202 of Title 41, Code of Federal Regulations (41 CFR Part 202) is amended as follows:

55.5 Amount of Federal grant funds payable.
55.6 Payments to states and interstate agencies.
55.7 Audit.
55.8 Change in status of State water pollution control agency or interstate agency; disposal of balances.

AUTHORITY: §§ 55.1 to 55.8 issued under sec. 10, 70 Stat. 506. Interpret or apply sec. 5 (f) 70 Stat. 500.

§ 55.1 Definitions. All terms used in this subpart which are defined in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and are not defined in this section shall have the meaning given to them in such act. As used in this subpart, the following terms shall have the meaning indicated herein below:

(a) "Federal Act" means the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (70 Stat. 498, et seq.).

(b) "Public Health Service" means the Public Health Service in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

(c) "Surgeon General" means the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service.

(d) "State water pollution control agency" means the State health authority, except that in the case of any State in which there is a single State agency, other than the State health authority, charged with the responsibility for enforcing State laws relating to the abatement of water pollution, it means such other State agency.

(e) "Interstate agency" means an agency of two or more States established by or pursuant to an agreement or compact approved by the Congress, or any other agency of two or more States, having substantial powers or duties pertaining to the control of pollution of waters.

(f) "State" means a State, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

(g) "Fiscal year" means a twelve-month period beginning on July 1.

(h) "Population" means, with respect to any State, the most recent official estimates of the Department of Commerce available on January 1 preceding the fiscal year for which funds are appropriated pursuant to section 5 of the Federal Act.

(i) "Population density" means the population of the State divided by the area of the State in square miles, except that each of the thirteen States having the greatest population density shall be deemed to have a population density equal to the State having the least population density of such thirteen States.

(j) "Per capita income" means, with respect to any State, the average of the per capita income of such State for the three most recent consecutive years for which satisfactory data are available from the Department of Commerce; except that, in the absence of such satisfactory data, the per capita income of Alaska shall be deemed to equal the average per capita income of all the States in the continental United States and the per capita incomes of (1) Puerto Rico and (2) the Virgin Islands shall be deemed to equal the per capita income of the State having the lowest per capita income of the continental United States.

§ 55.2 Basis of allotments to States and interstate water pollution control agencies. (a) The funds appropriated pursuant to section 5 of the Federal Act for any fiscal year for expenditures for grants to States to assist them in meeting the cost of establishing and maintaining adequate measures for the prevention and control of water pollution shall be allotted among the several States on the basis of $12,000 for each State, in recognition of the fact that a water pollution control problem exists in every State caused by the discharge of untreated or inadequately treated sewage or other wastes into the waters of such State, and the balance on the basis of the following factors:

(1) ⅔ in the ratio that the product of the population of each State and the reciprocal of its per capita income bears to the sum of the corresponding products for all States.

(2) ⅙ on the basis of the ratio of the population density of a State to the population density of all the States.

(3) ⅙ on the basis of the ratio of the number of industrial establishments discharging industrial wastes in each State to the number of such establishments in all the States. The number of such establishments shall be determined on the basis of the latest available data provided by the Department of Commerce.

(b) The funds appropriated pursuant to section 5 of the Federal Act for any fiscal year for expenditures for grants to interstate agencies to assist them in meeting the cost of establishing and maintaining adequate measures for the prevention and control of water pollution shall be allotted among the several interstate agencies on the basis of the following factors:

(1) ⅔ in the ratio that the product of the population of the area served by the interstate agency and the reciprocal of the average per capita income of the interstate agency for the three most recent consecutive years bears to the sum of the corresponding products for all the interstate agencies. For this purpose, per capita income of an interstate agency shall mean the total gross income of all the States comprising such interstate agency divided by the total population of all the States comprising such interstate agency.

(2) ⅙ on the basis of the ratio of the average of the population densities of the States comprising each interstate agency area to the sums of the average of the population densities of each interstate agency area.

(3) ⅙ on the basis of the ratio of the number of industrial establishments discharging industrial wastes in the States comprising the interstate agency to the number of such establishments in all the interstate agency areas. The number of such establishments shall be determined on the basis of the latest available data provided by the Department of Commerce.

§ 55.3 Allotments; estimates; time of making and duration. (a) Prior to the beginning of each fiscal year the Surgeon General shall prepare and make available to States and interstate agencies an estimated schedule of the amounts which it is expected will be allotted to each during the fiscal year from estimated appropriations.

(b) Allotments to States and interstate agencies for the first six months shall be made prior to the beginning of the fiscal year or as soon thereafter as practicable and shall equal not less than 60 per centum nor more than 70 per centum of the total sum determined to be available for allotment during the fiscal year.

(c) At the end of the second quarter, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the amounts of allotments for the first six-month period which have not been certified for payment to the respective States and interstate agencies pursuant to § 55.5 shall become available for reallotment among the States and interstate agencies in the same manner as monies which have not previously been allotted.

(d) Allotments to States and interstate agencies for the remaining six months shall be made prior to the beginning of the third quarter or as soon thereafter as practicable, and shall equal the total sum remaining unpaid and unallotted from the amount available for allotment during the fiscal year.

(e) The respective State water pollution control agencies and interstate agencies shall be notified of the amounts of allotments and reallotments and of the period for which they are made.

§ 55.4 Plans; content; mode of submittal; time of submittal. (a) For each fiscal year each State and interstate agency making application for grants under section 5 of the Federal Act shall submit a plan to the Surgeon General in accordance with procedures and on forms prescribed by the Surgeon General. Such plan shall:

(1) Designate the State water pollution control agency or interstate agency responsible for the administration or supervision of administration of the plan;

(2) Contain a statement that such agency will make such reports in such form and containing such information as the Surgeon General or his designee may from time to time reasonably require to carry out his functions under this Act;

(3) Set forth the policies and methods to be followed in carrying out the plan and its administration, describe the organization and proposals for conducting and extending or improving the State or interstate water pollution control and prevention program and any proposals for training personnel in water pollution control work. State plans shall contain criteria for determining whether the construction of proposed treatment works is in conformity with the plan.

(4) Provide such accounting, budgeting, and other fiscal methods and procedures as are necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the plan. Such methods will include a description of the procedures which the State will use in determining on the basis of objective criteria the expenditures attributable to water pollution control activities conducted in carrying out the approved plan.

(b) A plan shall be submitted by each State or interstate agency making application for grants under section 5 of the Federal Act prior to the period to which it relates: Provided, That exceptions to this provision may be made by the Surgeon General or his designee in the case of plans submitted for the fiscal year 1957 and when necessary to meet emergencies.

§ 55.5 Amount of Federal grant funds payable. (a) From the allotment available therefor for each fiscal year, each State and each interstate agency for which a plan has been approved by the Surgeon General, shall be entitled to receive an amount equal to its Federal share of the cost of carrying out its approved plan, including the cost of training personnel for State and local water pollution control work and administering the plan.

(b) For any State the Federal share shall be 100 per centum less that percentage which bears the same ratio to 50 per centum as the per capita income of such State bears to the per capita income of the continental United States (excluding Alaska), except that the Federal share shall in no case be more than 66⅔ per centum or less than 33⅓ per centum, and the Federal share for Hawaii and Alaska shall be 50 per centum, and for Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands shall be 66⅔ per centum.

(c) For any interstate agency the "Federal share" shall be 100 per centum less that percentage which bears the same ratio to 50 per centum as the average per capita income of the States comprising such interstate agencies bears to the per capita income of the continental United States (excluding Alaska), except that the Federal share in no case shall be more than 66⅔ per centum or less than 33⅓ per centum and shall be promulgated on the basis of the same data used for determining the "Federal share" for any State.

§ 55.6 Payments to States and interstate agencies. (a) Payments from allotments to States and interstate agencies shall be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury only after a plan has been approved. Payments from such allotments shall not exceed the allotment to a State or interstate agency or the total Federal share of the estimated expenditures necessary for carrying out the plan, whichever is less.

(b) Subject to the foregoing limitations, payments to States and interstate agencies shall be made as follows:

(1) Payment shall be made for each quarter based upon an application for funds showing the estimated requirements for such quarter. Such payment shall be decreased or increased by the amount that prior payments exceed or are less than the Federal share of the total expenditures for the program.

(2) Payments shall not be certified unless an application for payment and all plans, reports, and documents required by this part have been received.

(3) Supplemental payment in any quarter may be certified upon submission of an application therefor accompanied by satisfactory justification.

§ 55.7 Audit. Audit of the expenditures for the activities described in the plans may be made after prior consultation with the States or interstate agencies. Records, documents and information available to the State water pollution control agencies and interstate agencies pertinent to the audit shall be accessible for purposes of the audit.

§ 55.8 Change in status of State water pollution control agency or interstate agency; disposal of balances. In the event that a State water pollution control agency shall cease to qualify as such, the unobligated balance of any amounts paid to the State shall be transferred to such other agency of the State which qualifies and is designated in the approved State plan as the State water pollution control agency, and if an interstate agency ceases to qualify as such the unobligated balance of any amount paid to such interstate agency shall be transferred as determined by the Surgeon General to the successor, if any, of such interstate agency or shall be returned to the Treasury of the United States.

2. Subpart B is hereby revoked.

3. These amendments shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Dated: August 22, 1956.

Surgeon General.

Approved: August 31, 1956.

(j) Arrangements. "Arrangements" means the agreement entered into between the Commissioner and a local educational agency or a Federal department or agency for the provision of free public education under section 6 of the act.

SUBPART B—FILING APPLICATIONS AND REPORTS AND COMPUTING AND MAKING PAYMENTS TO APPLICANTS

§ 113.2 Scope. The regulations in this part govern the granting of financial assistance under the act to applicants within the continental United States, Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Wake Island, and Guam.

§ 113.3 Basis for assistance; administrative policy. Pursuant to the provisions of sections 2, 3, and 4 of the act, assistance will be provided to those applicants upon which the United States has placed financial burdens by reason of the fact that: The United States has acquired real property; or such applicants provide education for children residing on, or whose parents are employed on, Federal property; or Federal activities have caused a substantial increase in school attendance. The Commissioner will consult the State educational agencies in the administration of the law and will utilize the facilities and services of other Federal departments and agencies in carrying out his functions under the act.

§ 113.4 Applications. Any local educational agency believing itself to be entitled to assistance under sections 2, 3, or 4 of the act or any subsection thereof, shall, as a condition of entitlement, file with the Commissioner of Education, through the appropriate State educational agency, on Form RSF-1, "Application for Financial Assistance for Current Expenditures for Public Schools in Areas Affected by Federal Activities under Public Law 874, 81st Cong., as amended," an application for financial assistance, showing basis for entitlement under the terms and conditions of the act. Each applicant shall submit such reports as the Commissioner may reasonably require to determine the amount which the applicant may be paid under the act and make its records available to the Commissioner upon request for the purpose of examination or audit.

§ 113.5 Final date for filing applications for financial assistance from funds appropriated for the fiscal year 1957, and thereafter. (a) The final date for filing applications for financial assistance under sections 2, 3, or 4 of the act, or under any subsection thereof, and this part, out of funds appropriated for any fiscal year shall be March 31st of such fiscal year for all applicants; except that, whenever such date shall fall on a Saturday, Sunday, or other legal holiday, the final date for filing applications shall be the next succeeding week day. An application must be received by the Commissioner, or under cover postmarked, on or before the final filing date after transmittal through and certification by the State educational agency. The applicant is responsible for obtaining the certification of the State educational agency and for securing transmittal of the application to the Commissioner of Education by the final filing date. The applicant, in order to give the State educational agency time in which it may process the application, should file its application with the State educational agency by March 1 of the fiscal year. The final date for filing the application with the Commissioner is subject to the following exceptions:

(1) With respect to an applicant whose eligibility for financial assistance under this act is established by an activity of the United States initiated or reactivated, or by the acquisition of Federal property, during the fiscal year, the filing date shall be extended 60 days beyond the date of such occurrence establishing eligibility, but not beyond the last day of the fiscal year; or

(2) With respect to an applicant whose eligibility for financial assistance is established under or pursuant to an amendment to the act adopted during the fiscal year, the filing date shall be extended 60 days beyond the date of such amendment, but not beyond the last day of the fiscal year: Provided, That where an application is filed directly with the Commissioner within the applicable filing date, and a copy is filed within such time with the State educational agency, the application, for good cause shown, will be considered to be timely filed if within fifteen days after the applicable filing date and within the fiscal year the applicant obtains and files with the Commissioner approval, verification, and certification of the application by the State educational agency: And provided, further, That an application timely filed may be amended to obtain additional or alternative financial assistance based upon a Federal activity which has been initiated or reactivated, or upon property which has been acquired by the United States after the application was filed, or upon an amendment to the act enacted after the application was filed, or upon a determination of the Commissioner first communicated to the applicant that property is or is not "Federal property" under the act, if such amendment is made within the fiscal year and within 60 days of the occurrence or communication of the Commissioner's ruling to the applicant.

(b) After the applicable filing date an application cannot be amended or modified to assert a basis for financial assistance not clearly stated and supported by data in the application.

§ 113.6 Applications under sections 2, 3, and 4 received after deadline not considered for payment. Applications under sections 2, 3, and 4 of the act or any subsection thereof for fiscal year 1957, and for fiscal years thereafter, received by the Commissioner after the filing dates prescribed by this part will not be considered for payment.

§ 113.20 Approval of applications. An application will be approved only if it meets the conditions for entitlement under one or more of the sections or subsections of the act and this part. Each applicant will be notified of the initial approval or disapproval of its application and the estimated amount of payment, if any, to be made.

§ 113.21 Payments. Payment of the amount which an applicant may receive under the act and this part will be made by the Department of the Treasury upon certification of the amount due at such times as the Commissioner shall designate. The amount so certified for any period will be reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum by which the Commissioner finds that the amount paid to the applicant for any prior period, whether or not within the fiscal year, was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid for such prior period.

§ 113.22 Payments of financial assistance under sections 2, 3, and 4 from fiscal year appropriations. As prescribed by section 5 (c) of the act, if the funds appropriated for a fiscal year for such purposes are not sufficient to pay in full the total amounts which all applicants whose applications have been considered for payment pursuant to this part are entitled to receive under sections 2, 3, and 4 of the act or any subsection thereof for such fiscal year the Commissioner will reduce the amounts which he certifies under section 5 (b) of the act for such fiscal year for payment to each such applicant by the percentage by which the funds so appropriated are less than the total necessary to pay such applicants the full amount which they are entitled to receive under the act and this part.

§ 113.23 Interim reports. No payment after the initial payment shall be made to an applicant for a fiscal year until its final report has been filed, except that an applicant desiring an intermediate payment shall file with the Commissioner an interim report on Form RSF-3.

§ 113.24 Reports from other Federal agencies. Pursuant to the deduction requirements of section 3 (e) and other provisions of the act, the Commissioner requires information with respect to certain payments made by other Federal departments and agencies for the same general purposes. Pursuant to the provisions of section 8 (b) of the act other Federal departments and agencies which make expenditures (directly or otherwise) for, or in aid or supplementation of, elementary or secondary education, with respect to which an application has been filed with the Commissioner, are requested to file with the Commissioner on or before January 1 of each fiscal year a report of any commitments for such purposes and on or before July 31 succeeding each fiscal year a final report of such expenditures.

§ 113.25 Necessity and effect of final reports by applicants under sections 2, 3, or 4—(a) Submission of final reports. For each fiscal year, each applicant shall submit through the State educational agency on Form RSF-3 a final report to enable the Commissioner to determine the amount to which the applicant is entitled under the act. Such final reports shall be received by the Commissioner on or before the thirtieth day of September following the fiscal year for which payment is requested; except that, whenever such date shall fall on a Saturday, Sunday, or other legal holiday, the final date for filing applications shall be the next succeeding week day. No certification of payment shall be made after the applicable date for filing the final report for any fiscal year until the final report for such fiscal year has been received. Until all such reports for each year for which an applicant has received payment have been received in proper form, no further certification for payment to such applicant shall be made under the provisions of the act for any subsequent fiscal year.

(b) Failure to submit final report when appropriations insufficient. Unless the final report, for any year for which the Commissioner is required to reduce the amounts which he certifies for payment because the funds appropriated are insufficient to pay in full the total amounts to which all applicants are entitled, has been received by the Commissioner on or before the applicable date for filing the final report, an applicant, in addition to the provision in paragraph (a) of this section, shall not be entitled to any further certification for payment out of funds available for such fiscal year: Provided, That an applicant which has not received the regular initial payment for such year, shall have its application processed for such regular initial payment if a final report is received by the Commissioner within 30 days of the applicable date for filing the final report.

(c) Excessive entitlement. The Commissioner may disallow any portion of the entitlement estimated for a fiscal year for which no final report has been received which he may determine to be excessive on the basis of such information as is available. Whether or not a report has been submitted, if an applicant is found, after the applicable date for filing a final report following the close of the fiscal year, on the basis of all available information, to have received funds in excess of its entitlement or prorated portion of its entitlement for such fiscal year, such excess will be deducted in computing amounts subsequently certified for payment to the applicant for the current or subsequent fiscal year, or, where no payments are due, the applicant will be required to refund such excess to the United States through the Commissioner.

(d) Information submitted after deadline date. No effect shall be given to any report or information filed after the applicable date for filing final reports to increase the amount computable on the basis of information on file on such date, except that where data have been requested by the Commissioner for the purpose of processing applications such information may be given such effect if received by the Commissioner on or before the date stated in the Commissioner's request.

§ 113.50 Determination of most nearly comparable school districts. (a) The Commissioner may determine for a fiscal year the school districts most nearly comparable to that of an applicant (1) by classification of all school districts in a State into groups based upon a recommendation by the State educational agency made with the consent of all applicants in the State; or (2) by a selection of individual school districts. If the Commissioner has determined that group classifications shall be used in a State no departure therefrom will be permitted in that State for the fiscal year.

(b) The State educational agency for any fiscal year, with the consent of all applicants in the State, may recommend to the Commissioner classification of all school districts in the State into most nearly comparable groups. The State educational agency should initially establish groups based upon legal classifications or justify the use of another factor as the principal factor. Unless the State educational agency can establish to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the consideration of additional factors will not result in greater comparability, division into further groups will be required and for the purpose of such further division consideration shall be given to grade level, size as measured by total average daily attendance, geographical size, density of population, industrialization, current revenues, aggregate value of property, and any other relevant factors. In making its recommendations to the Commissioner, the State educational agency will furnish such information as he may require, including information justifying the factors used and financial and attendance data necessary for the computation of per pupil expenditure and local contribution rate. On the basis of the recommendation by the State educational agency, the data furnished and other information which he may obtain, and applying the above criteria, the Commissioner shall determine whether all school districts in the State shall be classified into most nearly comparable groups and, if so, shall determine such groups.

(c) In a State for which group classifications of the most nearly comparable school districts are not established pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section, an applicant must submit to the Commissioner in its application the names of districts, preferably five in number, which it deems most nearly comparable to the school district of the applicant with all data requested by the Commissioner. The selection by the applicant of such school districts shall be based upon the criteria set forth in paragraph (b) of this section and shall be submitted through the State educational agency for review and comment. The Commissioner's determination will be based upon such criteria and any other relevant factors. The financial, attendance, and other data of the selected districts must be sufficient to justify the selection of such districts as the most nearly comparable and to determine the per pupil expenditures and the local contribution rates in such districts. On the basis of information and data furnished by the applicant, or information otherwise obtained, and applying the above criteria, the Commissioner shall select those school districts, which in number and identity may be different from those submitted by the applicant, which he determines to be most nearly comparable to the school district of the applicant.

§ 113.51 Computation of local contribution rate in continental United States. The local contribution rate for an applicant in the continental United States for any fiscal year shall be computed by the Commissioner, after consultation with the State educational agency and the applicant, in the following manner: He shall divide (a) the aggregate current expenditures, during the second fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which he is making the computation, which the local educational agencies of the school districts, determined to be most nearly comparable to that of the applicant, made, from revenues derived from local sources, by (b) the aggregate number of children in average daily attendance to whom such agencies provided free public education during such second preceding fiscal year. The local contribution rate shall be an amount equal to the quotient so obtained.

§ 113.52 Increase in or special local contribution rate. (a) Notwithstanding the provision in § 113.51 and in accordance with the provision in section 3 (d) of the act, if, in the judgment of the Commissioner, the current expenditures in those school districts which he has determined to be the most nearly comparable to that of the applicant are not reasonably comparable because of unusual geographical factors which affect the current expenditures necessary to maintain in the school district of the applicant a level of education equivalent to that maintained in such other districts, the Commissioner may increase the local contribution rate for such applicant by the amount he determines will compensate the applicant for the increase in current expenditures necessitated by such unusual geographical factors.

(b) If the rate computed as provided in § 113.51, or such rate as increased in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section, is less than 50 percent of the average per pupil expenditure for providing free public education during the second preceding fiscal year in the applicable State, or is less than the "national average per pupil local contribution rate," the rate shall be increased to whichever is the greater of the following: (1) 50 percent of the State average per pupil expenditure or (2) the national average per pupil local contribution rate, but not to exceed the "average per pupil expenditure in such State." For the purposes of the preceding sentence, "average per pupil expenditure in such State" and national average per pupil local contribution rate" are defined in the act as follows: "average per pupil expenditure in such State" means "the aggregate current expenditures, during the second fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the computation is made, of all local educational agencies in such State (without regard to the sources of funds from which such expenditures are made), divided by the aggregate number of children in average daily attendance to whom such agencies provided free public education during such second preceding fiscal year"; and "national average per pupil local contribution rate" means "the aggregate amounts to which local educational agencies in the continental United States became entitled under section 3 (c) (1) for such second preceding fiscal year, divided by the aggregate number of children used under section 3 (c) (1) in computing such amounts (counting children under section 3 (b) as one-half those under sec. 3 (a))."

(c) The local contribution rate for any applicant in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Wake Island, or Guam shall be determined for any fiscal year by the Commissioner in accordance with policies and principles which will, in his judgment, best effectuate the purposes of the act and most nearly approximate the policies and principles provided in the act and this part for determining local contribution rates in States of the continental United States.

§ 113.53 Notice required of changes in boundaries, classification, and governing authority of applicants. The Commissioner shall be notified without undue delay by all applicants of the effective date for all purposes, the extent and character of, and the legal authority under which, any modifications in school districts that have occurred as a result of merger, consolidation, annexation, deconsolidation, or other similar action, which may affect the boundaries, identity, governing authority, classification, or control of any applicant. This shall include the original applicant and the successor district or districts.

§ 113.54 Provisions not exhaustive of jurisdiction of the Commissioner. No provision of this part now or hereafter promulgated shall be deemed exhaustive of the jurisdiction of the Commissioner under the act. The provisions of this part may be modified or further regulations may be issued hereafter as circumstances may warrant.

§ 113.75 Proposal for arrangements for certain children residing on Federal property. Any local educational agency or the Federal department or agency administering the Federal property on which part or all of such children reside, believing that the Commissioner should exercise his authority under section 6 (a) of the act to make arrangements to provide free public education for children who reside on Federal property, and being willing to enter into or assist in entering into such arrangements, should file with the Commissioner, on or before March 15 preceding the fiscal year for which such arrangements would be made, a proposal in the form prescribed by the Commissioner and bearing the endorsement of the State and local educational agencies and of the appropriate officials of the Federal department or agency administering the property or properties on which the children reside. Among the details to be included in the proposal are (a) the reasons why the Commissioner should make a determination to enter into such arrangements, (b) the estimated number of children to be educated, (c) financial and educational details necessary for the Commissioner to make the determinations and arrangements required under section 6, and (d) the name of the local educational agency or Federal department or agency which would provide such free public education.

§ 113.76 Determination by the Commissioner. If under section 6 (a) the Commissioner determines that he is required to make such arrangements to provide free public education for part or all of the children on whose behalf the request is made or if, acting upon information otherwise received, he makes a determination to provide free public education for children who reside on Federal property, such arrangements shall be made, in accordance with the proposal or such other information or recommendation as he may deem appropriate, with a local educational agency or with the Federal department or agency administering the Federal property on which part or all of the children reside who will be provided education pursuant to the arrangements.

§ 113.77 Arrangements under section 6 (b) and section 6 (c). When the Commissioner makes a determination under section 6 (a) that arrangements shall be made to provide free public education with respect to children who reside on Federal property, he will under appropriate circumstances also make arrangements in connection therewith for those children for whose education he is authorized to make provisions under section 6 (b) and section 6 (c).

§ 113.78 Arrangements. The arrangements between the local educational agency or the Federal department or agency and the Commissioner shall be as detailed as the circumstances of the individual situations may require.

§ 113.79 Expenditures. In making such arrangements the Commissioner shall not make payments (a) for expenditures made prior to his determination that he is required to make such arrangements; or (b) for expenditures made subsequent thereto unless such expenditures are within the definition of "current expenditures" in section 9 (5) of the act and are within the general terms of the arrangements; or (c) for expenditures in excess of the actual or reasonable per pupil expenditure of providing free public education in the applicable State.

§ 113.80 Reports. The local educational agency or the Federal department or agency with which such arrangements are made shall make such reports to the Commissioner from time to time as he may require to perform his functions under this act.

§ 113.81 Termination of arrangements. Arrangements under section 6 shall be limited to providing free public education for not more than one school year. If the Commissioner determines that the local educational agency or the Federal department or agency with which arrangements have been made has substantially deviated from the terms of the arrangements, he shall so notify the local educational agency or the Federal department or agency concerned. If the local educational agency or the Federal department or agency does not within a reasonable time comply with the terms of the arrangements, the Commissioner may terminate such arrangements without further notice.

A separate account shall be kept for each fund. The title of each such account shall designate the obligation in support of which the fund is created.

NOTE A: Funds specifically set aside for sinking fund purposes shall be included in account 715, "Sinking funds." If one purpose of a capital fund is to provide contributions to a sinking fund under specified conditions, the entire amount of the fund shall be included in this account until the contributions to the sinking fund are made, at which time the amounts thereof shall be transferred to account 715.

NOTE B: The ledger value of assets of the character indicated in paragraph (a) (2) of this section, shall be transferred to the appropriate current asset account when the assets are definitely assigned in advance of expenditure to the payment of interest or other current liabilities payable within one year.

NOTE C: Bank deposits subject to current withdrawal for specific purposes only, shall be included in account 703, "Special deposits." Deposits available for general company purposes shall be included in account 701, "Cash."

A complete record of securities pledged shall be maintained so that the ledger value of securities pledged and unpledged may be shown separately in the annual report to the Commission.

NOTE A: Accounts with affiliated companies which are subject to current settlement, if their collection is reasonably assured, shall be classed as current assets, but if settlement is deferred beyond one year such items shall be transferred to account 741 "Other assets."

NOTE B: The term affiliated companies includes:

1. Controlled companies, including companies solely controlled by the accounting company, and also companies jointly controlled by the accounting company and others under a joint arrangement.

2. Controlling companies, including both companies solely controlling the accounting company, and companies which jointly control the accounting company under a joint arrangement.

(d) Right to secure control in consequence of advances made for construction of the operating property of the controlled corporation.

(e) Right to control only in a specific respect the action of the controlled corporation.

A leasehold interest in the property of a corporation is not to be classed as a form of control over the lessor corporation.

"Joint control" is that which rests in two or more corporations and which is held under a joint arrangement.

NOTE C: The value of securities borrowed by the accounting company and pledged shall not be included in this account.

(a) Stocks.
(b) Bonds.
(c) Other secured obligations.
(d) Unsecured notes.
(e) Investment advances.

A complete record of securities pledged shall be maintained so that the ledger value of securities pledged and unpledged may be shown separately in the annual report of the Commission.

NOTE A: Accounts with nonaffiliated companies which are subject to current settlement, if their collection is reasonably assured, shall be classed as current assets, but if settlement is deferred beyond one year such items shall be transferred to account 741, "Other assets."

NOTE B: The term "nonaffiliated companies" includes all companies other than those defined as affiliated in Note B of account 721, "Investments in affiliated companies."

NOTE C: The value of securities borrowed by the accounting company and pledged shall not be included in this account.

§ 10.723 Reserve for adjustment of investment in securities-Cr. This account shall include the total of the balances in such reserves as are maintained by the accounting company for the purpose of providing for reductions in the value of securities owned and recorded in accounts 721, "Investments in affiliated companies," or 722, "Other investments." Corresponding charges shall be made to account 621, "Miscellaneous debits."

If reserves are maintained in provision for anticipated losses in specific securities, when the related assets are written down or written off, or are sold or otherwise disposed of at a loss, the reduction in the book value or the losses sustained shall be charged to this account to the extend of the credit balance in the account applicable to the particular securities involved, and the remainder, if any, shall be charged to account 621, "Miscellaneous debits." In case a general reserve for losses in unspecified security values is maintained, all such losses resulting from write-downs, write-offs, etc., shall be charged to this account to the extent of the total credit balance in the account, and the remainder, if any, shall be charged to account 621, "Miscellaneous debits."

§ 10.731 Road and equipment property. This account, except in connection with the acquisition of transportation property as provided for in accounts 733, "Acquisition adjustment," and 734, "Donations and grants—Cr.," shall include the cost of improvements made by the lessee to property which is held under lease from others or through control of the company owning the property, where such improvements are used by the lessee in transportation service, and the lessee is not to be reimbursed by the lessor for such improvements.

When property is retired from service this account shall be credited with the ledger value of the property retired.

NOTE A: This account shall not include any items representing titles to securities.

NOTE B: When any equipment is acquired under an agreement which provides that the cost shall be paid in installments, the cost (its money value at time of purchase) shall be charged to the appropriate road and equipment accounts at the time the equipment is delivered to the carrier, and included in this account in the same manner as the cost of equipment purchased outright. When the par value of notes or other securities issued in payment, or in part payment, for such equipment is more (or less) than in actual cash value of the equipment at the time of the purchase, or of the proportion to which the securities are applicable, the difference between the par value of the securities and the actual cash value of the equipment, or of the proportion paid for by the securities, shall be charged (or credited) to the proper discount and premium accounts.

NOTE C: Held for use, as referred to above, implies the ability of the carrier to substantiate by plans or policy its characterization of the probable future use which is to be made of the property within a reasonable period of time.

§ 10.732 Improvements on leased property. This account, except in connection with the acquisition of transportation property as provided for in the accounts 733, "Acquisition adjustment," and 734, "Donations and grants-Cr.," shall include the cost of improvements made by the lessee to property which is held under lease from others or through control of the company owning the property, where such improvements are used by the lessee in transportation service, and the lessee is not to be reimbursed by the lessor for such improvements.

When the cost of improvements made by the lessee is to be refunded by the lessor periodically during the term of the lease agreement or at the termination thereof, and provided further that in the meantime the lessor or company does not include the cost of such improvements in account 731, "Road and equipment property," the lessee shall include the cost thereof in this account.

When leased property is retired from service this account shall be credited with the ledger value of any improvements thereto the cost of which has been included in this account, and also with the amount representing the liability of the carrier to the lessor or owner for any property retired that has been used in transportation service and was held under lease or through control of the company owning the property.

The carrier's records shall be kept in such manner as to show the debits and credits to this account in accordance with the provisions for road and equipment.

NOTE A: This account shall not include any items representing titles to securities.

NOTE B: When the lessor company includes in account 731, "Road and equipment property," the cost of improvements made by the lessee to property leased by it from the lessor and settlement is not made at the time for the cost thereof, the lessee, pending settlement with the lessor, shall include the cost thereof in account 721, "Investments in affiliated companies," or 722, "Other investments," as may be appropriate.

§ 10.733 Acquisition adjustment. This account shall be charged with the cost of a railway or portion thereof acquired since January 1, 1938, as an operating entity or system by purchase, merger, consolidation, reorganization, receivership sale or transfer, or otherwise. If the consideration or a part thereof given for the property acquired consists of securities issued by the accounting carrier, the cash value thereof for the purpose of determining the cost to be charged to this account shall be the sum of the par value of securities having par values and the stated or assigned values of nopar securities as determined and approved by the Commission. Where the consideration given for the property acquired is other than cash or securities issued by the accounting carrier, such consideration shall be valued on a current cash basis.

The accounting for assets acquired and liabilities assumed shall then be as follows:

(a) Assets acquired, except property includible in accounts 731, "Road and equipment property," or 732, "Improvements on leased property," and liabilities assumed shall be recorded in their appropriate accounts in the manner provided for in classification of general balance sheet accounts.

(b) Property includible in primary road and equipment accounts 1, and 2½ to 58, inclusive, and 72 to 77, inclusive, shall be recorded in those accounts at original cost or estimated original cost as found by the Commission for valuation purposes.

(c) In the primary road and equipment account 2, there shall be recorded the original cost of lands owned by predecessor carrier or carriers at basic valuation date as reported under Valuation Order No. 7, dated November 21, 1914, and included in the Commission's basic valuation reports. Any lands so reported without cost except those donated shall be estimated by the accounting company, which will be subject to verification by the Commission. To this shall be added the cost at the time of dedication to public use of any lands acquired since the basic valuation date.

(d) In the primary road and equipment account 71, there shall be recorded the expenditures incident to the organization or reorganization of the accounting company.

(e) The money outlay expended by a predecessor carrier or carriers for additions and betterments to property leased from other companies whose physical properties are not included in the reorganization, shall be transferred to account 732, "Improvements on leased property," in the amounts recorded in that account on the books of the predecessor carrier or carriers.

(f) The amounts thus recorded in primary accounts 1 to 77, inclusive, shall be concurrently charged to balance sheet account 731, "Road and equipment property;" or 732, "Improvements on leased property," as appropriate.

(g) Balances in accounts 735, "Accrued depreciation—Road and equipment," and 785, "Accrued depreciation—Leased property," carried on the books of the predecessor carrier or carriers at date of acquisition shall be recorded in those accounts on the books of the accounting company. To the extent that a credit balance is available in this account, the accounting company shall credit account 735, "Accrued depreciation—Road and equipment," and charge this account with the estimated amount by which the balance in account 735 appears to be deficient with respect to past accrued depreciation on depreciable road property included in account 731, "Road and equipment property."

(h) This account shall concurrently be debited or credited, as appropriate, to offset asset and liability items recorded in accordance with paragraphs (a) to (g) of this section.

(i) To the extent that a credit balance is available in this account, if so authorized upon application to the Commission, retirement of property in existence at the date of acquisition which is not replaced may be charged hereto if the loss is not assignable to operations subsequent to date of acquisition. Other charges to this account may be made upon specific approval by the Commission.

NOTE: The accounting company shall be prepared to furnish the Commission with a full report of the contract of organization and a statement showing in detail the consideration given for the property acquired. It shall procure in connection with the organization all existing records, memoranda, and accounts in possession or control of the grantor relating to construction and improvement of the property acquired and shall preserve such records, memoranda and accounts until authorized by law to destroy or otherwise dispose of them.

Where the records, memoranda, and accounts are so involved with other records, memoranda, and accounts of the grantor as to make this transfer impracticable, certified copies, shall be procured and retained by the accounting company; the verity of the copies should be certified by the custodian of the originals.

§ 10.734 Donations and grants—Cr. This account shall be credited with grants obtained from govermental agencies, and with donations from individuals and others in connection with the construction or acquisition of property the cost of which is chargeable to accounts 731, "Road and equipment property," and 732, "Improvements on leased property."

§ 10.735 Accrued depreciation; road and equipment. (a) This account shall be credited with amounts concurrently charged to operating expenses or other accounts to cover the loss in service value of depreciable road and equipment property. It shall also include amounts which the Commission may authorize the accounting company to credit to account 607, "Miscellaneous credits," or charge to account 621, "Miscellaneous debits," or to account 733, "Acquisition adjustment," in respect to past accruals of depreciation.

(b) At the time of the retirement of each unit of depreciable property, this account shall be charged with the entire service value of the unit retired or minor item retired and not replaced.

(c) For balance sheet purposes, this account shall be treated as a single composite reserve for property. However, for purposes of analysis, the accounting company shall maintain subsidiary records in which this reserve is broken down into components corresponding to the primary accounts for depreciable property. These subsidiary records shall show the current debits and credits to this reserve by primary accounts.

§ 10.736 Amortization of defense projects; road and equipment. This account shall include the amounts of accumulated past provisions for amortization of road and equipment defense projects, the cost of which is included in account 731, "Road and equipment property," or account 732, "Improvements on leased property." This account shall be charged with the credit balance herein applicable to specific property at the time the property is retired.

The accounting company shall maintain subaccounts separately for accrued amortization of (1) road property and (2) equipment.

§ 10.737 Miscellaneous physical property. This account shall include the accounting company's investment in physical property other than property assignable to accounts 731 and 732, including hotels, restaurants, power plants, etc., which are not operated by the accounting company or another carrier in connection with its transportation service.

ITEMS OF INVESTMENT

Coal and other mines.
Commercial power plants.
Hotels and restaurants.
Lands and buildings not used in transportation operations.
Lands and other property acquired and held in anticipation of future use.
Mineral and timber lands.
Rails and other track material leased to others.
Saw mills and other manufacturing plants not operated in connection with transportation service.

§ 10.738 Accrued depreciation; miscellaneous physical property. This account shall be credited with amounts charged to income or other accounts to cover the depreciation of property the cost of which is included in account 737, "Miscellaneous physical property."

When any miscellaneous physical property is destroyed, sold, or otherwise retired from service, the amount included in this account with respect to the property retired shall be charged hereto.

§ 10.741 Other assets. This account shall include the estimated value of salvage recoverable from property retired when the recovery of the salvage is deferred for any reason; items of a current character but of doubtful value; other deferred assets; and assets not otherwise provided for in general balance sheet accounts.

§ 10.742 Unamortized discount on long-term debt. This account shall include the total of the net debit balances in the discount, expense, and premium accounts for the several subclasses of funded debt.

§ 10.743 Other deferred charges. This account shall include the amount of debit balances in suspense accounts that cannot be cleared and disposed of until additional information is received, such as freight claims paid when found to be correct, but in advance of investigation with other carriers; debit balances in clearing accounts, such as "Shop expenses," "Store expenses," "Operations of gravel pits," and "Operation of quarries;" unextinguished discount on short-term notes; unadjusted debit items not otherwise provided for and similar items the proper disposition of which is uncertain.

This account also is intended as a suspense account in which may be included deferred amounts for property retired chargeable to operating expenses as follows:

(a) Amounts representing the service value of nondepreciable road property retired which are relatively so large that their inclusion in the accounts for a single year would distort those accounts.

(b) Amounts representing the service value of depreciable road property retired which are relatively so large that their inclusion in the depreciation reserve would result in unduly depleting the reserve.

(c) Amounts representing the service value of equipment retired which are relatively so large that their inclusion in the depreciation reserve would result in unduly depleting the reserve.

(d) This provision covering property retired is to be used only after permission of the Commission has been asked and given. The carrier in its application to the Commission shall give full particulars concerning the property retired, the amount which it is proposed to charge to operating expenses, and the period over which, in its judgment, the amount of such charge shall be distributed.

This account shall be kept in such form so as to show separately the amounts of notes payable within one year from date of issue that are secured by collateral.

NOTE A: When the net of the balances is a debit it shall be included in account 705, "Traffic and car-service balances-Dr."

NOTE B: The amount to be entered in this account in the carrier's annual report to the Commission shall be stated in accordance with the text of this account. For convenience in accounting the carrier may maintain currently separate subaccounts under the following captions:

705 and 752 (a) Interline freight, balance.
705 and 752 (b) Interline passenger, balance.
705 and 752 (c) Interline baggage, balance.
705 and 752 (d) Equipment interchanged, balance.

NOTE: The amount to be reported under this account is not the net balance between this account and account 707, "Miscellaneous accounts receivable."

§ 10.755 Interest matured unpaid. This account shall include the amount of matured and unpaid interest on funded debt, and other obligations of the accounting company for which provision has been made for current settlement.

Interest which matures on the first day following that for which the balance sheet is made shall be included in this account.

§ 10.756 Dividends matured unpaid. This account shall include the amount of dividends payable on capital stock but unpaid, uncalled for, or unclaimed at the date of the balance sheet.

Dividends which become payable on the first day following that for which the balance sheet is made shall be included in this account.

§ 10.757 Unmatured interest accrued. This account shall include the amount of interest subject to current settlement accrued to the date the balance sheet is made, but not payable until after the first day following that date, on funded securities or obligations, debt in default, receivers' and trustees' securities, amounts payable to affiliated companies, notes payable and other indebtedness issued or assumed by the accounting company.

NOTE A: Interest accrued which is not paid when it matures shall be included in account 781, "Interest in default", unless provision has been made for current settlement. Where interest is in default, subsequent accruals shall be credited direct to account 781, "Interest in default."

NOTE B: Interest accrued on amounts recorded in account 769, "Amounts payable to affiliated companies," and not subject to current settlement, shall be included in that account.

§ 10.758 Unmatured dividends declared. This account shall include dividends declared on capital stock, but not payable until after the first day following the date of the balance sheet.

§ 10.759 Accrued accounts payable. This account shall include estimates of all unaudited items payable by the carrier to the date of the balance sheet, including those which are chargeable to revenue, expense, or income accounts in accordance with the instruction relating to unaudited items.

Amounts payable to others for services for which bills have not been rendered.

NOTE: Do not include in this account the carrier's estimate of liability in respect of injuries to persons and loss and damage claims. Such estimated liability shall be credited to account 784, "Other deferred credits."

§ 10.760 Taxes accrued. This account shall be credited with the accruals of all taxes which have been concurrently charged to the appropriate income or other accounts for taxes. Such accruals may be based upon estimates, provided such estimates shall be adjusted so as to reflect in this account at all times the carrier's estimate of its unpaid liability for each of the several classes of taxes which have not been finally settled.

Vouchers for the current payment of taxes, including taxes for which accruals have not been made previously, shall be charged to this account. Taxes paid in advance shall also be charged to this account.

The records supporting the entries in this account shall be kept to show separately by classes of taxes the amount of the tax accruals for the current year and adjustments of accruals for prior years.

§ 10.761 Other current liabilities. There shall be included in this account the principal amount of unpresented bonds drawn for redemption through the operation of sinking and redemption fund agreements, also the principal amount of unpresented funded debt obligations, and receivers' and trustees' securities which have matured (for which provision has been made for current settlement), and other current liabilities not covered by accounts 751 to 760, inclusive.

§ 10.765 Funded debt unmatured. There shall be included in this account the total par value of unmatured debt (other than equipment obligations), maturing more than one year from date of issue, issued by the accounting company and not retired or canceled, and the total par value of similar unmatured debt of other companies, the payment of which has been assumed by the accounting company.

The amounts included in this account shall be divided so as to show the par value of (1) certificates or other evidences of funded debt (pledged and unpledged) held in the company's treasury, by its agents or trustees, or otherwise subject to its control, including both those reacquired after actual issue and those nominally but never actually issued; and (2) certificates or other evidences of funded debt issued and actually outstanding, being those not held by the company, its agents or trustees, or subject to its control.

The amounts included herein shall be further divided so as to show the amount of each class of funded debt, as follows:

(a) Mortgage bonds. Bonds secured by lien on physical property and not includible in the other subdivisions of this account.

(b) Collateral trust bonds. Bonds and notes secured by a lien on securities or other negotiable paper; and stock trust certificates that are similar in character to collateral trust bonds.

(c) Income bonds. Bonds which are a lien on a carrier's revenue alone, or bonds which, while being a lien on its property and franchises, can claim payment of interest only in case interest is earned.

(d) Miscellaneous obligations. All funded obligations not provided for by the other subdivisions of this account, also notes, unsecured certificates of indebtedness, debenture bonds, plain bonds, real estate mortgages executed or assumed and other similar obligations maturing more than one year from date of issue, but excluding liabilities for assessments for public improvements and those evidenced by conditional or deferred equipment purchase contracts for which provision is made in account 752, "Other liabilities," and account 766, "Equipment obligations," respectively.

(e) Receipts outstanding for funded debt. Receipts for payments on account of funded debt. When certificates are issued for amounts so paid, the par value shall be included in the account covering the class of funded debt for which the certificates are issued.

Each of the above classes shall also be divided into subclasses according to differences in mortgage or other lien or security therefor, rate of interest, interest dates, or date of maturity. Parts of any issue agreeing in other characteristics but maturing serially may be treated as of the same subclass.

Records shall be maintained in such manner as to show (1) securities the issuance or assumption of which has been authorized by the Commission under section 20a of the Interstate Commerce Act, and similar securities issued or assumed prior to the effective date of that provision of the act, and (2) other obligations of a kind which may legally be issued or assumed without such authorization.

NOTE A: Securities (other than equipment obligations) maturing one year or less from date of issue shall be included in accounts 769, "Amounts payable to affiliated companies," or 751, "Loans and notes payable," except that where an issue of securities maturing serially over a period of years contains short-term obligations such obligations may be included as funded debt. Matured funded debt shall be included in account 761, "Other current liabilities," if provision has been made for current settlement. If no provision has been made for current settlement, matured funded debt shall be included in account 768, "Debt in default," except that when the collection of matured funded debt of affiliated companies is not enforced by controlling companies, the principal amount (to the extent held by a controlling company) shall be included in account 769, "Amounts payable to affiliated companies."

NOTE B: For the purposes of the balance-sheet statement funded debt securities are considered to be nominally issued when certified by trustees and placed with the proper officer for sale and delivery, or pledged, or otherwise placed in some special fund of the accounting company. They are considered to be actually issued when they have been sold to a bona fide purchaser for a valuable consideration, and such purchaser holds them free from all control by the accounting company. All funded debt securities actually issued and not reacquired and held by or for the accounting company are considered to be actually outstanding. If reacquired by or for the accounting company under such circumstances as require them to be considered as held alive and not canceled or retired, they are considered to be nominally outstanding.

NOTE C: Nonnegotiable notes having a maturity of more than one year after date of issue, held by affiliated companies, shall be included in account 769, "Amounts payable to affiliated companies."

NOTE D: In the general balance-sheet statement the total unmatured funded debt included in the account shall be shown in the first short column. The amount nominally but not actually issued and the amount nominally outstanding shall be shown in the second short column, and in the long column shall be shown the amount actually outstanding.

§ 10.766 Equipment obligations. This account shall include the par value of equipment securities and the principal amount of contractual obligations including those maturing serially or payable in installments over a period of more than one year.

The amounts included herein shall be divided as follows:

(a) Principal amount of equipment securities including those maturing serially, issued or assumed by the accounting company or by receivers and trustees, which have been authorized by the Commission under section 20a of the Interstate Commerce Act and similar securities issued or assumed prior to the effective date of that provision of the Act.

(b) Principal sums of obligations for equipment purchased under conditional or deferred payment contracts, which may be legally entered into or assumed by the accounting company or by receivers and trustees, without authorization by the Commission.

NOTE: Amounts included in this account which are payable within one year from the date of the balance sheet shall be shown in a footnote thereto.

§ 10.767 Receivers' and trustees' securities. When receivers or trustees acting under the orders of a court are in possession of the property of the company, and under the order of such court issue or assume evidences of indebtedness (other than equipment securities or obligations) the par value of such evidences shall be credited to this account.

NOTE: The par value of equipment securities or the principal amount of obligations incurred for the purchase of equipment under conditional or deferred payment contracts shall be included in account 766, "Equipment obligations."

§ 10.768 Debt in default. This account shall include amounts transferred from other accounts representing matured funded securities or obligations, receivers' and trustees' securities, equipment obligations and short-term notes, when maturity dates of such obligations have not been extended.

NOTE A: The principal amount of matured funded debt of affiliated companies the collection of which is not enforced by the controlling company shall (to the extent of the principal amount held by the controlling company) be included in account 769, "Amounts payable to affiliated companies."

NOTE B: The principal amount of unpresented funded debt obligations which have matured, and for which provision has been made for payment shall be included in account 761, "Other current liabilities."

§ 10.769 Amounts payable to affiliated companies. This account shall include the par value of nonnegotiable notes issued to affiliated companies, matured funded debt of affiliated companies held by controlling companies where there is no agreement for an extension as to time of payment and collection of the principal is not enforced, credit balances in open accounts with such companies other than credit balances in current accounts classable as current liabilities, and interest accrued on notes, matured funded debt of affiliated companies and open accounts included in this account, when such interest is not subject to current settlements.

This account shall be divided:

(a) Notes, including herein not only nonnegotiable notes that run longer than a term of one year, but also such notes payable on demand or within one year from the date of issue when it is mutually agreed that the notes shall not be enforced as current assets by the holder.

(b) Par value of matured funded debt of affiliated companies held by controlling companies where there is no agreement for an extension of time and collection is not enforced.

(c) Open accounts not subject to current settlement.

(d) Interest accrued on amounts included in this account when not subject to current settlements.

NOTE A. Accounts with affiliated companies which are subject to current settlements, such as traffic and car-service balances, charges for material and supplies currently furnished, charges for repairs to equipment, etc., shall be classed as current assets or current liabilities, as may be appropriate.

NOTE B. No item shall be included in this account which is not known to be the property of an affiliated company.

NOTE C. The term affiliated companies includes:

1. Controlled companies, including companies solely controlled by the accounting company, and also companies jointly controlled by the accounting company and others under a joint arrangement.

2. Controlling companies, including both companies solely controlling the accounting company, and companies which jointly control the accounting company under a joint arrangement.

3. Companies controlled by controlled companies.

4. Companies controlled by controlling companies.

By "control" is meant the ability to determine the action of a corporation. For the purposes of this account, the following are to be considered forms of control:

(a) Right through title to securities issued or assumed to exercise the major part of the voting power in the controlled corporation.

(b) Right through agreement of some character or through some source other than title to securities, to name the majority of the board of directors, managers, or trustees of the controlled corporation.

(c) Right to foreclose a first lien upon all or a major part in value of the tangible property of the controlled corporation.

(d) Right to secure control in consequence of advances made for construction of the operating property of the controlled corporation.

(e) Right to control only in a specific respect the action of the controlled corporation.

A leasehold interest in the property of a corporation is not to be classed as a form of control over the lessor corporation.

"Sole control" is that which rests in one corporation.

"Joint control" is that which rests in two or more corporations and which is held under a joint arrangement.

§ 10.771 Pension and welfare reserves. This account shall include the credit balances representing the liability of the carrier for amounts provided by charges to operating expenses or by specific appropriations of income or surplus, including amounts contributed by employees, irrespective of whether carried in special funds or in the general funds of the carrier, for pensions, accident and death benefits, savings, relief, hospital, or other provident purposes.

Separate subaccounts shall be kept for each kind of reserve created, and the appropriate reserve shall be charged when payments are made to retired employees, or disbursements are made for the purposes for which the reserves were created.

§ 10.772 Insurance reserves. This account shall include the net credit balance in the accounts to which are credited insurance premiums concurrently charged to operating expenses to cover self-carried risks on fire, fidelity, boiler, casualty, burglar, and other insurance, and to which are charged losses sustained on items protected by such insurance.

§ 10.773 Equalization reserves. This account shall include ledger balances representing reserves created by charges to operating expenses for maintenance of road and equipment under a program designed to equalize such expenses by months within a calendar year. The debit or credit balances in this account shall be closed at the end of each calendar year to the accounts through which they were created.

§ 10.774 Casualty and other reserves. This account shall include reserves created by charges to operating expenses to provide for estimated liability for injuries to persons and loss and damage claims; estimated liability for revenue overcharges, such as those covered by reparation claims; and reserves not otherwise provided for in balance sheet accounts.

NOTE: With respect to injuries to persons and loss and damage claims, if the settlements when audited are charged to this account the balances for each year shall be kept separately until all items have been adjusted and cleared, but, if the settlements when audited are charged to the appropriate expense accounts the balance in this account shall be adjusted through the appropriate expense accounts so as to reflect the probable liability at the close of each year.

§ 10.781 Interest in default. This account shall include the amount of matured and unpaid interest (for which no provision has been made for current settlement) on all indebtedness issued or assumed by the accounting company except interest which is added to the principal of the debt on which incurred. Where interest is in default, subsequent accruals shall be credited direct to this account.

§ 10.782 Other liabilities. This account shall include assessments for public improvements payable over a period longer than one year; retained percentages due contractors to be paid upon completion of contracts; deposits for construction of side tracks to be refunded on basis of an agreed portion of the earnings from the traffic handled over the tracks; other deferred liabilities; and liabilities not otherwise provided for in general balance sheet accounts.

NOTE: The amount of assessments for public improvements, if payments are to be made within one year, shall be included in account 761, "Other current liabilities."

§ 10.783 Unamortized premium on long-term debt. This account shall include the total of the net credit balances in the discount, expense, and premium accounts for the several subclasses of funded debt.

§ 10.784 Other deferred credits. This account shall include the amount of credit balances in suspense accounts that cannot be entirely cleared and disposed of until additional information is received, such as amounts received from sale of mileage tickets, to be disposed of as mileage is honored; amounts received from sales of excess baggage script, to be disposed of as coupons are honored; interchangeable mileage credential ticket redemption funds; amounts collected from the sale of damaged, unclaimed and over freight held pending claim; credit balances in clearing accounts, such as "Shop expenses," "Store expenses," "Operating gravel pits," and "Operating quarries"; unadjusted credit items not otherwise provided for and similar items, the proper disposition of which is uncertain.

§ 10.785 Accrued depreciation; leased property. This account shall be credited with amounts concurrently charged to operating expenses or other accounts to cover the estimated accrued depreciation on leased road and equipment when settlements between the accounting company and the lessor are not made currently. It shall also be credited with depreciation accrued on property the cost of which is included in account 732, "Improvements on leased property." When leased property for which accruals have been included in this account is retired from service, the entire service value of property the cost of which has been charged to account 732 by the lessee and the service value of property, the ledger value of which is carried in account 731, "Road and equipment property," by the lessor for which the lessee is liable to the lessor shall be charged to this account.

§ 10.791 Capital stock issued. This account shall include the total par value of par value stock, and the total amount paid in or the amount approved by the Commission for stock without par value, for all shares of capital stock or other form of proprietary interest in the accounting company which have been issued to bona fide purchasers and have not been reacquired and canceled, also shares of stock nominally issued, and reacquired shares which have not been canceled.

Appropriations of surplus which have been transferred to no par stock account shall also be included. The amount of the consideration received from the sale of par value stock in excess of the amount credited to this account shall be credited to account 794, "Premiums and assessments on capital stock."

When capital stock is retired or canceled, this account shall be charged with the amount at which such stock is carried in this account. In the case of no par stock the amount to be charged hereto shall be the proportion, applicable to the reacquired shares immediately prior to reacquisition, of the total book liability included herein of actually outstanding shares of the particular class and series of stock of which the reacquired shares are a part.

The amounts included in this account shall be recorded so as to show:

(a) Par value of shares of par value stock and amount paid in or approved by the Commission of shares of no par stock (pledged or unpledged) held in the company's treasury, by its agents or trustees, or otherwise subject to its control, including shares nominally but never actually issued and

(b) Par value of shares of par value stock and amount paid in or approved by the Commission of shares of no par stock issued and actually outstanding, being the shares not held by the company, its agents or trustees, or subject to its control.

The amounts included herein shall be further divided so as to show the amount of each class of stock issued, separated as between par value and no par value stock, as follows:

(1) Common stock. Stocks which have no preference over other issues of stock in distribution of dividends or of assets.

(2) Preferred stock. Stocks having preference over other issues of stock in distribution of dividends or of assets.

(3) Debenture stock. Stocks issued under a contract to pay a specified return at specified intervals.

(4) Receipts outstanding for installments paid. Receipts for payments on account of subscriptions to capital stock.

When the subscriber has paid his subscription in full and is entitled to receive certificates representing the shares for which he has subscribed, the par value of stocks having par value or the agreed purchase price or the price authorized by the Commission of stock without par value shall be included in the division appropriate for the class for which the certificates are issued.

Each of the above classes shall also be divided into subclasses according to differences in dividend or interest rights, voting rights, or conditions under which the securities may be retired.

NOTE A: When a general levy or assessment is made against the holders of capital stock, requiring the payment of any sum in addition to the consideration agreed upon at the time of sale, the amount collected upon such levy or assessment shall be credited to account 794, "Premiums and assessments on capital stock."

NOTE B: When capital stock having par value is exchanged for capital stock without par value any sums resting in account 794, "Premiums and assessments on capital stock," with respect thereto shall be cleared to account 791, "Capital stock issued," and any amounts resting in the discount account with respect thereto shall be cleared to account 795, "Paid-in surplus"; Provided, however, That any excess over the amount of accumulated net gains applicable to the subclass exchanged included in paid-in surplus shall be charged to account 621, "Miscellaneous debits."

NOTE C: An appropriate record shall be maintained with respect to shares of capital stock showing the number of shares nominally issued, nominally outstanding, actually issued and actually outstanding.

NOTE D: For the purpose of the balance-sheet statement capital stock is considered to be nominally issued when certificates are signed and sealed and placed with the proper officer for sale and delivery, or pledged, or otherwise placed in some special fund of the accounting company. It is considered to be actually issued when it has been sold to a bona fide purchaser for a valuable consideration, and such purchaser holds it free from all control by the accounting company. All capital stock actually issued and not reacquired and held by or for the accounting company is considered to be actually outstanding. If reacquired by or for the accounting company under such circumstances as require it to be considered as held alive and not canceled or retired, it is considered to be nominally outstanding.

§ 10.792 Stock liability for conversion. This account shall include the company's liability under agreements to exchange its capital stock for the outstanding securities of companies whose physical property has been acquired under such agreements, but whose securities have not yet been surrendered for exchange.

§ 10.793 Discount on capital stock. This account shall include discount suffered in the issuance and sale of capital stock. Record supporting the entries to this account shall be kept to show the discount suffered, if any, on each subclass of capital stock.

§ 10.794 Premiums and assessments on capital stock. This account shall include the excess of the actual cash value (at the time of the sale of the stock) of the consideration received over the

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

[7 CFR Parts 923, 972, 1012]

[Docket Nos. AO-251-A1, AO-177-A15, AO-278]

HANDLING OF MILK IN APPALACHIAN, TRI-STATE AND BLUEFIELD MARKETING AREAS

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND PROPOSED ORDER AMENDING ORDER FOR APPALACHIAN MARKETING AREA AND PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER FOR THE BLUEFIELD MARKETING AREA

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was conducted at Bluefield, West Virginia, February 6-10, 1956, pursuant to notice duly published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 21, 1956 (21 F. R. 499).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Acting Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on August 1, 1956 (21 F. R. 5824) filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision and notice of oportunity to file written exceptions thereto.

Preliminary statement. A public hearing on the record of which the recommended regulatory provisions set forth below with respect to the Appalachian and Bluefield marketing areas were formulated was called by the Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, following receipt of a petition filed by the Tri-State Milk Producers Association, Inc. The hearing was held at Bluefield, West Virginia, February 6-10, 1956, pursuant to notice duly published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 21, 1956 (21 F. R. 499). The period until March 24, 1956, was reserved to interested parties for the filing of briefs on the record.

The hearing gave consideration, among other things, to the alternative possibilities of (1) expanding the present Appalachian marketing area to regulate the handling of milk in all or part of certain counties in Virginia, West Virginia, and Kentucky referred to as the "Bluefield market"; (2) expanding the present Tri-State marketing area (Huntington district) to regulate the handling of milk in all or part of such counties; or (3) issuing one or more separate orders to regulate the handling of milk in all or part of such counties.

In view of the findings and conclusions set forth below with respect to the need for regulation in the proposed Bluefield marketing area and to the location and organization of such market, it is concluded that the marketing of milk in such marketing area and that in the Tri-State marketing area do not warrant regulation on common terms. It is concluded, therefore, that the record of this hearing does not support expansion of the Tri-State marketing area or need for amendment of any other provision of the order for the latter marketing area. The extent of the relationship existing between the Appalachian and Bluefield markets is discussed below.

At the opening of the hearing, certain distributors of milk serving the proposed Bluefield marketing area moved that consideration be given on this hearing only to the evidence concerning the proper marketing area to be regulated, and that any decision on the handling of milk in the Bluefield market made as the result of the hearing be limited to a determination as to what counties or areas should be made subject to regulation. It was further moved that following a decision on the extent of the area to be regulated, the hearing should be reopened to receive evidence as to the specific regulatory terms and provisions which should be applied. These motions were renewed after the receipt of evidence on the marketing area proposals and again in the brief filed on behalf of such handlers.

Careful consideration has been given to the motions. It is concluded, however, in light of the findings and conclusions which follow, that the record provides a basis for appropriate regulation of the Bluefield marketing area as proposed herein. The motions (1) to limit the current decision to a determination of the area to be regulated, and (2) to reopen the hearing for further evidence on other issues following such a determination, are hereby denied.

Rulings on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions included in this decision, each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions herein are at variance with the exceptions, such exceptions are overruled.

Proposed amendments to the Appalachian order—Statement of issues. The material issues of record concerning proposals to amend the provisions of the order regulating the handling of milk in the Appalachian marketing area related to:

1. Whether the Appalachian marketing area should be extended so as to regulate a number of additional counties, including those proposed herein for regulation under a separate order for the Bluefield marketing area.

2. Revision of the definition of "fluid milk plant."

3. Modification of the rules relating to inter-plant transfers of milk.

4. Revision of the computation of uniform prices for base milk and excess milk.

5. Inclusion of a provision for "advance" payments to producers who are members of a cooperative association.

6. Revisions concerning the classification of milk, with particular reference to the computation of shrinkage, the allocation of other source milk, and the classification of skim milk and butterfat utilized as livestock feed or dumped.

7. Modification of the price formula for Class II milk.

8. Revision of the base-forming and base-operating periods and of rules governing base transfers.

9. The introduction of a "supply-demand adjustor" in the Class I price formula; also establishment of an appropriate price for Class I milk in the proposed expanded segment of the marketing area, and

10. Review of all other regulatory provisions and possible changes for administrative purposes.

Findings and conclusions. Upon the evidence adduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the following findings and conclusions are hereby made with respect to the proposed amendments to the Appalachian marketing order:

1. Appalachian marketing area. Producers proposed that the counties of Dickenson and Russell in Virginia be included within the Appalachian marketing area.

They testified that scheduled power plant construction and improvement in the demand for coal in Russell and Dickenson counties, Virginia, would increase the demand for dairy products in these counties. Also, that an increase in demand for dairy products may encourage unregulated handlers to distribute dairy products in these counties.

One handler testified that the principal competitors for sales in these two counties are regulated currently. He testified further that because of the rural population there is relatively little milk sold in these counties at this time.

These two counties are only sparsely populated and are not a problem area for producers. There are no milk distributing plants located in such counties. Competition between Appalachian handlers and milk distributors from the proposed Bluefield market for sales in these counties may not be considered sufficient, or to have such adverse effect on the distribution of milk by Appalachian handlers, to require regulation of the Bluefield distributors under the Appalachian order. Moreover, in the event an order for the Bluefield marketing area is made effective, distributors from such market operating routes in Russell and Dickenson counties will be subject to price regulation on terms highly comparable to those applicable under the Appalachian order. It is concluded that the Appalachian marketing area should not be expanded, as proposed by producers, to include Dickenson and Russell counties, Virginia.

There is need for clarification of the marketing area definition. In the Virginia section of the marketing area the corporate municipalities are separate from the counties in which they are located. For example; the city of Bristol, Virginia, geographically located in Washington County, Virginia, is a separate corporate municipality and a question arose at the hearing concerning whether the marketing area definition clearly includes such city. In order that the definition of the Appalachian marketing area may be completely clear as to the entire area included, it should be restated to specify that all territory geographically located within the perimeters of the counties of Sullivan, Washington, and Greene in Tennessee; Washington and Wise in Virginia; and Harlan in Kentucky is included in the marketing area.

2. Fluid milk plant. Producers proposed that plants which furnish supplemental supplies of milk to the market be included in the definition of "fluid milk plant" when any such plant supplies a monthly total in excess of 70,000 pounds of milk in any of the months of August through January, inclusive. Producers contended that such plants are a threat to the stability of the market because they are able to deliver large quantities of milk during the low production months from sources without being subject to minimum price regulation under this order.

Handlers objected to this proposal, on the basis that they would be denied the opportunity of procuring supplemental supplies from unregulated sources.

One handler receives supplemental supplies of approximately 400,000 pounds of milk per month from other regulated markets. This handler's supplemental supply of milk represents a substantial portion of the total quantity of all milk received from sources other than producers. He testified that he had not encountered difficulty in obtaining supplemental supplies of milk from regulated sources. Other handlers also receive milk from other regulated markets as well as from unregulated sources.

Three methods of defining a "fluid milk plant" in terms of its association with the market through delivery performance are possible:

(1) Exemption from regulation regardless of quantities delivered,

(2) Full regulation regardless of quantities delivered (except plants already under regulation by another order), or

(3) Partial exemption on the basis of a minimum delivery requirement.

If handlers were permitted to receive milk from outside the order in unlimited quantities a significant percentage of the market supply of milk in the fall months would not be subject in any way to the pricing and payment provisions of the Appalachian order or of any similar regulation. This could result in (1) a portion of the market supply being procured on a "flat price" basis without regard to the use of milk as distinguished from the classified-price plan provided in the order, (2) limiting the effectiveness of the pricing and payment provisions of the order as a means of encouraging farmers to produce a year-round supply of pure and wholesome milk for the Appalachian market, and (3) an incentive to handlers to use milk from sources outside regulation in preference to seeking an adequate supply of producer milk in all months. These factors would create a constant threat to the classified price plan and would not be consonant with the ends sought by the regulation.

Under the second method all plants supplying supplemental supplies of milk, even in small quantities (except those already under regulation by another order) would be regulated. Factors limiting the advisability of this method are as follows:

(1) The Appalachian order might be imposed upon plants with primary attachment to another market.

(2) Plants shipping only small, or incidental, amounts of milk would be brought under regulation, resulting in extra expense to the plant operator and increasing administrative expense without necessity in terms of attaining stabilized marketing conditions for producers' milk.

(3) Local producers of Grade A milk might be forced to share a greater proportion of their Class I market with producers shipping milk not meeting equivalent health requirements.

(4) Administrative problems would be incurred in administering the order with respect to plants located at considerable distances from the market.

In view of the above a partial exemption provision is appropriate. After consideration of the size of the plant operations in the market, the supplemental sources available, the extent to which other source milk must be relied upon to satisfy Class I requirements and the necessity for maintaining an adequate reserve of milk, it is concluded that an exemption allowance of 70,000 pounds of milk (approximately two full tank loads) is reasonable. In this connection official notice is taken of the partial exemption provision of the Tri-State order (§ 972.8) under which a supply plant is regulated if it supplies only 25,000 pounds or more (or an amount of skim milk or butterfat from which 25,000 pounds or more of Class I milk are derived) to the Tri-State market. This limitation has been operative in the Tri-State market since May 1, 1954. It is concluded that any plant should be regulated as a fluid milk plant when it furnishes milk, skim milk, or cream in fluid form in excess of 70,000 pounds for the month during the period August through January, inclusive.

3. Transfers and diversions of milk. A revision of the conditions on which milk may be transferred to nonfluid milk plants as Class II milk was proposed by producers. They would extend the distance within which a Class II classification may apply from the present radius of 50 miles to a radius of 100 miles from the marketing area. It was stated that such change would permit movements of milk for Class II use to a nonfluid milk plant 70 miles from Bluefield, West Virginia, that has been used at times as a surplus milk outlet for the Bluefield market and is accessible to the Appalachian market.

Handlers first proposed that a mileage limitation be omitted as a condition necessary to the transfer of milk to nonfluid milk plants for use as Class II milk. After further consideration specific suggestions for mileage limitations of 250 miles and 350 miles from the transferor-plant were offered. Any milk moved beyond the particular distance fixed would become Class I milk automatically. One handler reported an offer to have surplus milk hauled to a company manufacturing plant at Columbia, Tennessee, about 350 miles from Bristol, at rates which, it was stated, would make it feasible for such handler to so move the milk for manufacturing purposes.

The order provides that producer milk will be paid for in accordance with the form in which, or the purpose for which, it is used. Classification based only on the purpose for which producer milk is used would require verification of the receipts and final utilization of milk at nonfluid milk plants regardless of the distance or number of nonfluid milk plants involved. Consideration should be given to the increased administrative cost when it is necessary to verify the final use of milk, skim milk, or cream transferred to plants not under regulation.

When the market in its entirety is considered, the volume of surplus milk, even in the peak production months, is not sufficient to require milk to be moved 350 miles for manufacturing. One handler finds it necessary to import a substantial volume of other source milk for Class I use throughout the entire year. In addition, at least four nonfluid milk plants within a distance of approximately 150 miles of Kingsport, Tennessee, are available as outlets for surplus milk. In view of the administrative necessity for limiting the area within which milk may be moved for Class II purposes the interplant transfer provisions should be changed so that milk moved to a nonfluid milk plant less than 150 miles from Kingsport, Tennessee, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, may be classified as Class II milk under certain conditions.

4. Base and excess price computations. Producers proposed revisions in the methods of computing the uniform prices for "base milk" and "excess milk" to prevent the uniform price of excess milk from exceeding that of base milk. They claimed that an excess price that exceeds the base price is not in accord with the principle, involved in the base-excess plan, of providing returns to producers which are related directly to a producer's ability to deliver additional supplies of milk in the fall and winter months and relatively smaller supplies of milk during the flush production months.

The order presently provides that uniform prices for base and excess milk shall be computed for each handler for certain months of the year. When the total Class I milk of the handler does not exceed his total base milk receipts, the value of excess milk is determined by multiplying the amount of such milk by the Class II price. The value of base milk is then computed by deducting such value of excess milk from the net obligation of the handler. The order further provides that if the value of base milk computed in this manner exceeds an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of base milk by the Class I milk price, such additional amount is added to the value of excess milk.

Handlers with a high percentage of Class I utilization frequently have experienced a shortage of producer milk in relation to Class I sales in this market. In addition, audit adjustments, inventory reclassifications, and overages may increase the total value of producer milk in a given month. As a result, it is possible for the price of excess milk of a handler to increase, under present order provisions, above the level of base milk (at the Class I price level). No particular purpose is served in terms of moderating the seasonality of milk deliveries when the excess price exceeds the base price. It is concluded therefore that whenever the excess price would exceed the base price the base and excess prices should be recomputed so that they are equal to each other.

5. Advance payments. It was proposed that handlers, upon request of a cooperative association, be required to make "advance" payments to the association with respect to member milk in addition to the regular monthly payments. The advance payments would be made on the 23rd day of each month on milk received from those member producers who have requested an advance from the cooperative association for their deliveries of milk during the first fifteen days of such month. The rate of payment would not be less than the Class II price per hundredweight for the preceding month. It was testified that an advance payment for milk would assist producers in defraying production costs more promptly.

Handlers suggested that if advance payments are provided for they be made available to all producers, members or nonmembers of an association, on or before the last day of each month, for milk received during the first fifteen days of such month, at a rate not less than the Class II price per hundredweight for the preceding month. One handler testified that in past years his company had made advance payments for the milk received from farmers during the first fifteen days of the month.

Advance payments are customarily made on a voluntary basis in this market. There is no evidence that handlers have refused to make advance payments to producers when requested. There was no request for an advance payment provision which would apply to all producers. It is concluded that an advance payment provision is not necessary at this time.

6. Classification of milk. The definition of Class II milk should be revised.

Milk returned to plants from handlers' routes in this market frequently cannot be processed for resale as other dairy products. Some milk and milk products are either dumped or disposed of as animal feed. There is need, for administrative purposes, to specify additional categories of Class II milk since administrative difficulty has been encountered in determining the proper classification of products disposed of as animal feed on the basis of the wording of present class definitions. In some cases where small quantities are involved dumping is the only practical outlet. This may be particularly necessary during April, May, June and July.

It is concluded that skim milk which is dumped during the months of April, May, June, and July, and skim milk disposed of as animal feed, should be included in Class II milk. Because dumping can be verified only at the time the action is taken, the handler should be required to give six hours' advance notice to the market administrator so that the market administrator may arrange for an inspection of the dumping if he believes it advisable.

Handlers proposed that actual shrinkage not in excess of 2 percent of total producer receipts of skim milk and butterfat be allocated to Class II milk. Also, that actual shrinkage of all other source milk be allocated to such class. However, when producer milk was utilized as milk, skim milk, or cream in conjunction with other source milk, the shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat allocated to producer milk and other source milk would be computed pro rata according to the proportions of skim milk and butterfat received from such sources, respectively, to their total. It was contended that under a classified-price plan shrinkage should be in the lowest-priced class since it has no actual value in usage.

One handler suggested a modified proposal under which (1) actual shrinkage not in excess of 2 percent of total producer receipts (other than receipts from the pool plant of another handler) of skim milk and butterfat would be allocated to Class II milk, and (2) shrinkage of skim and butterfat classified as Class II milk would be prorated between producer and other source milk. Reasons given by the latter handler for the above shrinkage computation and allocation were as follows: (1) Skim milk and butterfat allocated to Class I should include only milk actually used in making sales, (2) the weights of fluid milk received compared with the fluid milk sold as computed from conversion factors (used in changing units such as quarts, etc. to pounds of fluid milk, and "make" factors used in converting manufactured milk products to their equivalent pounds of fluid milk) leave little need for the computation of shrinkage by formula, (3) a reduction in the loss of milk can be achieved only at the sacrifice of other efficiencies in the fluid milk plant operation, (4) health regulations prevent the full use of milk at the beginning or end of a fluid milk operation, and (5) handlers receive no return from shrinkage but producers would receive the Class II price if allocated to Class II milk.

In opposing, producers testified that the allocation of a maximum of 2 percent of all producer receipts to Class II as shrinkage and the proration of this shrinkage between other source milk and producer receipts of milk would reduce returns to producers for their milk deliveries. It was claimed such a provision would permit handlers selling all producer milk in Class I to pay for a portion of their milk at the Class II price even though no shrinkage could be attributed to the manufacture of a Class II product. Producers contended that if the proposal were adopted they could be penalized for the inefficiencies of a plant's operation and for inaccuracies in the handler's accounting procedures. It was suggested that the percentage of skim milk and butterfat in shrinkage allocated to Class II continue to be not greater than that which the actual quantity of producer milk utilized by the handler in Class II bears to his total receipts of producer milk.

The present provisions for the assignment of shrinkage (2 percent maximum) to Class II milk were developed in conjunction with the class price structure currently in effect in the Appalachian market. Any change in the shrinkage allowances in Class II milk would involve correlative adjustments in the class prices if producer returns are not to be affected.

Since handlers experienced approximately 1 percent shrinkage (annual average) of total receipts for 1955 the effect of the proposal, together with appropriate price adjustments, would be so minor that no significant change in the relationship of handler costs one to another would result. In view of the above, the proposal is denied.

One handler proposed that accounting periods of less than a full month be permitted under certain circumstances. It was testified that seasonal changes in supplies and sales necessitate importations of other source milk. Reference was made to the seasonal pattern of local milk production under which considerable quantities of milk are produced in the spring and summer months and substantially less in the fall and winter; also, that the opening and closing of schools causes rather drastic changes in Class I sales twice a year. In December, there is a characteristic decrease in Class I sales in the closing days of the month.

The primary purpose of the proponent in making this proposal was to provide that when producer milk became short within a period less than a month, and outside supplies were necessary, such supplies could be acquired and assigned to Class I. It was further stated that there are about three months in particular when other source milk is actually used in fulfilling Class I sales but is allocated to Class II milk under the monthly reporting and accounting system. This handler presented percentages to show that at times he needed additional milk during a given month while at other times during the same month he had an excess of producer milk. As a result, it was contended that the producer milk received by such plant was virtually all paid for at the Class I price even though some producer milk was physically disposed of in Class II products. Although supplemental purchases were restricted to a minimum, there was some surplus producer milk in the plant at different times of the month. Proponent contended that to allocate producer milk to Class I, through the monthly accounting method, results in arbitrary and inaccurate classification.

On the other hand, proponent recognized the burden of daily accounting and classification. It was proposed that, as a compromise method, handlers be permitted to report their receipts and utilization on accounting periods consisting of not less than seven days. This privilege to the handler would be applied with respect to any three months of the year. The election by the handler of multiple accounting periods within a month was not intended, however, to alter the present practice of computing his total obligation for the month or the payment of uniform prices for base and excess milk on a monthly basis.

The administrative burden to both the handler and the market administrator of daily reporting and accounting under milk orders is well recognized through the industry. The monthly accounting system has become the standard under this type of regulation and is generally accepted as the most practical method of applying the provision of the act which requires milk to be classified "in accordance with the form in which or the purpose for which it is used * * *". There are administrative limitations involved in accounting for specific "lots" of milk according to actual, or physical, disposition and allocation provisions such as those in question are necessary to distinguish the uses of "producer" and "other source milk" for classification purposes. The latter provisions eliminate the impossible administrative task of ascertaining the particular use of each hundredweight of milk regardless of source and make possible an accounting system of practical application. The extent to which producer milk may be given priority assignment of higher-valued uses has been established as the prerogative of the Secretary in formulating provisions which will provide reasonable protection to producers from the substitution of unregulated (unpriced) milk and thus promote orderly marketing. In any event, the handler is not compelled to pay producers for any greater utilization of milk than he actually makes in the particular class.

To operate a fluid milk distributing business individual handlers must choose either to maintain a sufficient volume of producer milk in reserve to meet fully the needs of their fluid milk (Class I) operation or to buy short from regular producers in the low production months with the intent of procuring supplementary supplies as necessary to fulfill Class I requirements. Although the handler buying supplementary supplies customarily pays a handling charge to the seller and transportation costs, which, when added to the price paid, increase the cost of such milk above the Class II price under the order, the handler carrying sufficient reserves to meet his needs at all times may retain such milk only at a cost, including the expense of moving such milk to manufacturing plants from time to time, which may seem a burden to his total operation, but which he determines is justified to assure himself of an adequate supply of producer milk. In either case the costs involved are not attributable to order regulation. The handler determines which method of operation is most economical in his particular circumstance. A proper method of allocation should not depend upon these relative costs.

The allocation of other source milk through multiple reporting periods would provide an incentive for handlers to use unpriced milk in preference to producer milk priced under the order. Thus, producer returns could be jeopardized and subject to considerable instability when handlers use other source milk for Class I purposes. Handlers could bring in more milk than was absolutely essential in the confidence that it would be credited at the Class I price. Such displacement of producer milk from Class I would mean that producer milk would be sold at a lower class price. As a result, producer returns would decrease resulting in less incentive to milk production, or class prices would have to be increased. Since it would not be feasible to increase Class II price to maintain producer returns, the alternative would be to increase the Class I price. Thus, the cost to consumers of maintaining an adequate and dependable supply of milk would be increased.

It must be recognized further that some handlers would not need to avail themselves of the privilege of reporting more than once a month at any time. A handler may carry in his plant all the necessary reserve of producer milk for Class I milk operations, eliminating the need to import outside milk, or may carry, as in the case of one Appalachian handler, so small a quantity of producer milk in relation to his Class I sales that such a provision would be of no significant benefit. Since the division of a month into two or more reporting and classification periods necessarily implies an accounting method which would permit proof of receipts, sales, inventories, and shrinkage for each such period within a month, the administrative effect is comparable to that involved in the longer period of a full month. The administrative functions of the market administrator's office primarily affected by this proposal are those of report processing and auditing. These are the most time consuming functions associated with order administration. They involve the bulk of the administrative cost. Thus, all handlers, rather than those electing the multiple reporting periods, would be required to bear the additional administrative cost of applying the order on the proposed basis.

In view of the above facts, the proposal for multiple reporting periods is denied. However, since it is necessary at times to allocate both regulated (priced under another Federal order) and unregulated milk from outside sources as "other source milk" in Appalachian plants, it is reasonable to allocate the unregulated milk first to the lowest-valued uses prior to the allocation of priced milk to any such use. The order has been so amended.

7. Class II pricing formula. Handlers proposed that the Class II pricing formula should be, in all months, the average of prices paid for milk received from dairy farmers at nine local manufacturing plants. At present this average price is used as the Class II price for the months of March through August only. Handlers noted, in this connection, the proposal of producers for a "supply-demand adjustment" factor to be included in the Class I price formula. It was contended that if such a provision were to develop a full year-round supply for the market there would be reserve quantities of milk in the fall months as well as in the flush production season which necessarily would fall into Class II uses. On this basis, it was argued that Class II milk should be priced in the fall months at the same level as the milk which must be used for manufacturing purposes in the months of March through August.

During the months of below-average production a higher level of prices for Class II milk should be provided so as to encourage the transfer of milk from manufacturing to higher-valued uses. In these months there are available outlets for reserve milk in cottage cheese and ice cream which among surplus uses are considered as preferred outlets. Producer receipts were sufficient in only two months during the flush production season of 1955 to cover Class I sales and to provide reasonable Class I reserves. The months of September through February are the months when substantial volumes of milk are received from sources other than local producers, to supply the Class I needs of the market as well as some Class II milk uses. Supplemental supplies of milk during the short production season are received from areas where the price of milk used in the manufacture of butter and nonfat dry milk solids is an important factor in establishing the prevailing farm values of manufacturing milk. It is concluded that the proposed reduction of Class II prices for the months of September through February is not necessary in order to achieve the orderly marketing of milk in this area.

However, it is noted that for the purpose of computing the butter-nonfat dry milk solids price formula for Class II milk and the butterfat differential for adjusting the Class II price the price of 92-score butter at New York is used in lieu of the Chicago butter price as employed in the basic formula price. Since central market pricing of butter and nonfat dry milk solids at Chicago are basic to the price structure for the Appalachian market, it is consistent to utilize the Chicago butter price in connection with the Class II price and butterfat differential computations also. In order to provide a comparable basis of pricing throughout, the Chicago butter price is substituted for the New York butter price in the Class II price and Class II butterfat differential formulas.

8. Base and excess plan. Handlers proposed amendments to the base and excess plan. They would have producers establish bases in the period of August through January as a means of providing the proper incentive to farmers to produce adequate milk for the short production months. In addition, handlers would change the "base-paying" period from the months of April through August to the months of March through July. Producers supported these changes with the exception that they be given sufficient notice of the revised "base-forming" period. They contended that farmers should be given substantial advance notice in order to change breeding programs and suggested that the handlers' proposal be made effective in August 1957.

The flush production season occurs in the months of April, May, June and July. During 1955, the production of milk exceeded the needs for Class I and reasonable Class I reserve requirements only in the months of May and June. One handler finds it necessary to receive substantial volumes of Class I milk in all months of the year. Production and Class I requirements are approximately identical in August, whereas February and March are months of short production as compared to Class I requirements. It would not be in the interest of an improved production pattern to decrease the incentive to farmers for the production of milk in February and March for a probable increased incentive in August in view of these previously stated conditions. Because the market has little surplus milk in August and production is in close balance with Class I requirements, August should be excluded from the "base-paying" period. Therefore, it is concluded that the "base-paying" period should include the months of April through July.

Producers proposed the unqualified transfer of base upon notification in writing to the market administrator on or before the last day of any month. In addition, if the base were held jointly and such joint holding were terminated, the entire base transferable by any joint holder would be his portion of such jointly held base as indicated by the joint holders. Handlers supported the proposal to remove the present limitations on base transfers provided that in each instance the base would accompany transfer of the herd.

The producers' proposal opens the possibility of abuse which could be highly detrimental to the base-excess plan. One handler in this market continuously disposes of all producer milk as Class I milk because of a deficit producer milk supply at his plant. Producers who deliver to this handler would be able, under the proposed plan, to sell or loan their bases to other producers who deliver to other handlers in the market, without loss of the base price (in this instance the Class I price) for all milk delivered during the base-paying period. A producer delivering milk to another handler and who otherwise would be paid for some excess milk as the result of his original base, thus would receive the base price for some, or perhaps all, of this excess milk under the additional base received from the other producer. In order to preserve the effectiveness of the base plan any transfer should be limited, in these circumstances, to situations where changes in the operation of a farm result because of new ownership, the death, retirement or entry into military service of a producer, or changes in partnership or tenant-landlord arrangement occur. Since the base plan is effective in determining producer payments in only four of the twelve months in each year and since all producers must establish a new base each year, other provisions than those contained in the order, and particularly the proposals considered herein, for the transfer of bases are unnecessary.

9. Supply-demand adjustment. Producers proposed that a "supply-demand adjustment" factor be included in the Class I price formula to reflect automatically changes in local supply and demand conditions. They contended that a supply-demand adjustment factor is essential in obtaining increased supplies of producer milk to meet market needs and inducing producers to remain with handlers in this market.

Handlers opposed the inclusion of a supply-demand adjustment factor in the Class I price formula. They stated that an increase in milk supplies for Grade A purposes from this production area is doubtful because of the lack of additional dairy farms.

Although a supply-demand adjustment factor in the pricing formula conceived from local data would be desirable and serve a useful purpose, it is concluded that the development of such a factor from the data available at present, would not reflect the Appalachian marketing conditions adequately and should be delayed until the Appalachian market has had additional experience under the order. Adequate market experience under regulation is desirable as a basis for determining with accuracy the seasonal patterns of production and demand for use in connection with such a formula.

In view of the discussion on the regulation of the Bluefield market under a separate order, as set forth in another section of this decision, no further consideration with respect to Class I pricing in the proposed extension of the Appalachian marketing area is necessary in connection with the proposed amendments to the Appalachian order.

10. Certain changes of an administrative nature should be made. Distribution facilities which formerly were receiving, processing, or bottling plants are in certain circumstances regulated as "fluid milk plants." The designation of these distribution facilities as fluid milk plants unnecessarily involves the classification and allocation of milk and milk products received at these facilities in finished form. It is concluded that the fluid milk plant definition should not include those buildings, premises, or facilities the primary function of which is to hold or store bottled milk or milk products in finished form while in transit for wholesale or retail route distribution.

The pricing provisions of the order should be revised so that the reporting period for the Chicago butter and nonfat dry milk solids price will conform with the period used by the reporting agency within the Department. Therefore, the reporting period designated in the order for any given month is revised to include the period from the 26th day of the immediately preceding month through the 25th day of the current month.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and all the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act:

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

3. If an order is issued what its provisions should be with respect to:

(a) The scope of regulation;

(b) The classification of milk;

(c) The level and method of determining class prices;

(d) The method to be used in distributing proceeds to producers; and

(e) Administrative provisions.

Findings and conclusions. Upon the evidence adduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the following findings and conclusions are hereby made with respect to the proposed marketing agreement and order regulating the handling of milk in the Bluefield marketing area:

Commerce in milk. The handling of milk in the Bluefield marketing area, as defined herein, is in the current of interstate commerce or directly burdens, obstructs or affects interstate commerce in milk and milk products.

The marketing area defined in the proposed order includes the counties of Mercer and McDowell in the State of West Virginia, and Tazewell County in Virginia. There are continuous and substantial movements of milk across state lines both in the procurement of milk from producers supplying this marketing area and the sale of fluid milk and milk products by handlers to consumers.

Milk produced on farms in the States of Kentucky, Ohio, Virginia, and West Virginia is inextricably commingled at a milk distributing plant located at Welch, West Virginia. Milk produced in Virginia and West Virginia is received and commingled at plants located at Bluefield, Virginia and Bluefield, West Virginia. Such milk is bottled and distributed in fluid form throughout the marketing area. Milk from farms in Kentucky and Ohio is sent to a bottling plant in the West Virginia segment of the proposed marketing area and the bottled products then are returned to Kentucky and Ohio for distribution to consumers. Similarly, milk produced on farms in Virginia is sent to a bottling plant at Bluefield, West Virginia, and the bottled products are returned for distribution in Virginia. Milk produced within the State of West Virginia and sold in fluid form within that portion of the marketing area in West Virginia is in direct competition with milk produced in other States. The same situation exists with respect to milk produced within the State of Virginia and sold in fluid form within that portion of the marketing area in Virginia.

Fluid milk bottled in Bluefield, Virginia, is distributed to consumers in Pike County, Kentucky, and in McDowell and Mercer counties in West Virginia. Fluid milk and fluid milk products move from plants in Welch and Bluefield, West Virginia, to wholesale and retail outlets in Boyd, Floyd, and Pike counties, Kentucky; Bland, Buchanan, Giles, and Tazewell counties, Virginia; and Cabell County, Ohio. One handler, who would be regulated under the proposed order receives manufactured milk products from a company-affiliated plant located in the Tri-State market (a federally-regulated area) for distribution in the Bluefield area. On a supplemental supply basis substantial quantities of milk produced in the states of Maryland, Ohio, and Wisconsin are frequently imported by handlers in the Bluefield marketing area to meet a portion of the bottled milk requirements during the low production season of the year.

The seasonal reserve of locally-produced Grade A milk is used in the manufacture of cottage cheese, ice cream, nonfat dry milk solids, and condensed milk. These products, made from producer milk, are manufactured in Virginia and West Virginia plants and are sold in several States within this section of the country.

Need for regulation. The marketing and pricing conditions in the Bluefield marketing area require the issuance of a milk marketing agreement and order to establish and maintain orderly marketing conditions. Such an order will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended. For reasons stated in this decision the regulation should be separate from those covering the Appalachian and Tri-State marketing areas.

At least six pricing plans for milk delivered by farmers are operative in the Bluefield market. In addition, the variations in milk classification methods used by handlers affect the relative prices paid to the producers. The pricing and classification plans used have caused wide disparity in returns to producers.

Certain milk distributed in this area is classified for pricing purposes pursuant to the provisions of the Federal milk orders for the Appalachian, Clarksburg, and Tri-State marketing areas. An order issued by the Virginia State Milk Commission applies to milk distributed from a Bluefield, West Virginia, plant into Giles County, Virginia. These regulatory pricing plans which affect milk marketing in this area have varying methods of milk classification for pricing purposes.

Pricing plans devised by handlers (as hereinafter defined) utilize still different methods of classification. One handler, who distributes fluid milk products in this area from a plant located in West Virginia, has established three different classes for pricing purposes, as follows:

(1) Class I—fluid milk products distributed locally (Bluefield, West Virginia and vicinity);

(2) Class I (Kentucky)—fluid milk products distributed in Pike County, Kentucky, and milk separated for buttermilk, chocolate milk drinks, cottage cheese, and for the standardization of fluid milk; and

(3) A class for surplus milk.

This method of pricing has resulted in fluid milk products in Class I distributed by such handler in the proposed marketing area being priced as much as $1.22 above the price for fluid milk products distributed from the same plant to outlets in Kentucky. The Class I (Kentucky) price of this handler is based on, and equivalent to, the Huntington district Class I price under the Tri-State order. Also, this handler purchases milk produced in Virginia and distributes milk in Virginia under the producer and resale price regulations of the Virginia State Milk Commission for the Giles County, Virginia, market. Milk produced under regulation of the Virginia State Milk Commission customarily is priced higher than that sold locally in the Bluefield market.

Another handler, with a plant located in Virginia, has established three classes for pricing purposes, as follows: (1) Class I—fluid milk products distributed in Virginia; (2) Class IA—fluid milk products distributed outside the State of Virginia, buttermilk, and ice cream; and (3) a class for surplus milk. Under this method of pricing fluid milk products in Class I have been priced as high as $6.05 per hundredweight (4.0 percent butterfat basis) when at the same time fluid milk products in Class IA were priced at $4.11 per hundredweight. The Class IA price customarily has been fixed at the level of the Tri-State order Class I price for the Huntington district (adjusted to a 4.0 percent butterfat basis by using the "producer" rather than the "handler" butterfat differential under such order), less 25 cents.

A third handler, with a plant located in West Virginia, prices all his milk as Class I, except for small amounts of seasonal surplus.

The fourth handler in the market is regulated under the provisions of the Tri-State order and thus is required to follow a classification and price plan which differs from the others as described above.

The four local handlers, to which reference has been made, were formerly regulated under a producer price order of the Virginia State Milk Commission which was applicable to the "Southwest Virginia" milk market. They have not been regulated by the Virginia control agency since late 1953, but have continued some aspects of the regulatory pricing program on a voluntary basis. However, the variations in pricing plans for fluid milk distributed in the Bluefield area have resulted in producer returns which vary in excess of $1.00 per hundredweight for milk produced by farmers with farms located in the same production area. In some instances differences in returns per hundredweight occurred among producers delivering to the same handler in the same month.

The "stated Class I prices of such handlers have varied from $4.08 to $6.05 per hundredweight (4.0 percent butterfat basis) for bottled milk products distributed competitively in the same areas during the same periods of time. In addition, different methods of paying for butterfat above and below 4.0 percent are used and there is no uniformity in the computation of producer butterfat differentials. Because of these factors, together with the classification plans used, the stated Class I prices of unregulated handlers do not reflect with accuracy the level of returns actually received by producers for milk used in bottled milk products. This lack of uniformity in pricing and classification techniques has caused inequities among producers.

It is noted further that at least three types of seasonal incentive programs have been incorporated in the prevailing price plans used by those handlers in the market who are not under some regulatory program, notably the following: (1) Variations of "the base and excess" plan, (2) a modified "Louisville" plan, and (3) combination of a modified "Louisville" plan and "base and excess" plan. Such payment plans also have resulted in inequities among producers.

Handlers using the base and excess plan as a means of obtaining a better seasonal pattern of production frequently changed the period designated as the "base-forming months" without prior notification to the producers. One of these plans provides for some producer milk to be priced as "excess" even in the short production season when the market as a whole is customarily short of milk supplies.

The modified "Louisville" plan was instituted by one handler in 1954, when $0.75 per hundredweight was deducted from the producers' price in the months of April, May, and June, and the same amount per hundredweight added to the price in the months of October, November, and December. Order proponents contend that this resulted in an arbitrary net reduction in returns to such handler's producers since the fall rate of milk production normally is less than in April, May, and June. Producers claim it was their understanding that they would receive in the fall months the full amount of money represented by the deductions made in April, May, and June.

In 1955, the plan was changed without prior notification to the producers and deductions from the producers' price of $0.50 per hundredweight in April and May, and $0.55 in June were made. The amounts subsequently added to the producer's price were $0.50 per hundredweight in October, $0.75 in November, and $0.50 in December. In addition, a "base and excess" plan was instituted in the latter year without any prior notification to producers as to the base-forming period to be used. The changes made in 1955 also resulted in arbitrary reductions in returns to the producers delivering to such handler.

Another disruptive aspect of the latter pricing practice was allocation of varying amounts of surplus among individual producers. Some producers were allocated as much as 40 percent surplus while in the case of other producers no milk was so allocated. This disproportionate distribution of surplus caused a high degree of disparity in prices among producers since the difference between such handler's Class I and surplus prices has been as high as $2.50 per hundredweight.

Many producers in the Bluefield marketing area have no effective means of insuring the accuracy of the weights and tests of their deliveries of milk to handlers. The testing programs of the cooperative and handlers seldom agree on tests made of producers' milk. Producers testified that the cooperative's tests are consistently higher, but that they usually have been unable to obtain adjustments based on the differences shown. In addition, those handlers in the market not under any regulatory program do not permit auditing of their records for the purpose of establishing (1) the accuracy of the utilization of producer receipts according to the classification plan in use, and (2) the appropriate volumes of milk to be paid for as base milk and excess milk. One handler has not paid the cooperative the dues deducted from members and has been delinquent in making payments to cooperative members for their milk.

In summary, the proponent cooperative association has been unable to bargain with handlers concerning prices to be paid for milk received from farmers. Prices paid to producers throughout the Bluefield marketing area are generally at the option of the handler. There is no uniform classification plan whereby farmers supplying the Bluefield marketing area are assured of payment for their milk in accordance with its use. Handlers arbitrarily determine producer butterfat differentials for milk above or below 4 percent in butterfat. There is little uniformity in the seasonal incentive programs now used by handlers. As the result of the producers' inability to obtain satisfactory pricing plans for milk in the Bluefield area plants some producers have shifted their deliveries of milk from this market to plants in Winston-Salem, North Carolina; Charleston, West Virginia; and the Appalachian marketing area. Since the Bluefield market is in a deficit milk production area and supplies customarily have been fairly short in relation to the Class I demand any transfer of milk from the market seriously jeopardizes the delivery of the necessary requirements of fluid milk to this market.

The Federal milk marketing order proposed herein for Bluefield will implement the declared Congressional policy of establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions by providing:

(a) A regular and dependable method for determining prices to producers at levels contemplated under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act, as amended;

(b) The establishment of uniform prices to handlers for milk received from producers according to a classified price plan based upon the utilization made of the milk;

(c) An impartial audit of handler's records of receipts and utilization to further insure uniform prices for milk purchased;

(d) A means for insuring accurate weights and tests of milk;

(e) Uniform returns to producers supplying the market and an equitable sharing by all producers of the lower returns for sale of reserve milk;

(f) Uniform rules for the operation of seasonal incentive which will encourage producers to adjust production seasonally in closer alignment with the relatively even monthly needs for inspected milk; and

(g) Market-wide information on receipts, sales, and other data relating to milk marketing in the area.

Marketing area. The Bluefield marketing area should include all the territory within the counties of McDowell and Mercer in West Virginia, and Tazewell in Virginia.

Producers proposed that the counties of Buchanan and Tazewell in Virginia; McDowell and Mercer in West Virginia; and Floyd and Pike in Kentucky be either (1) established as a separate district within the present Appalachian marketing area, or (2) established as a marketing area to be known as the "Bluefield marketing area" for regulation under a separate marketing order.

One handler proposal would enlarge the marketing area to include in addition to the above-named counties, as proposed by producers, the counties of Boone, Fayette, Greenbrier, Kanawha, Logan, Monroe, Raleigh, Summers, and Wyoming, in West Virginia. This handler, upon further consideration, abandoned the request for the addition of Boone, Fayette, Greenbrier, Kanawha, Monroe, Raleigh, and Summers counties. The same proponent further modified his proposal to include Lincoln, McDowell, Mercer, and Mingo counties in West Virginia.

Another proposal submitted by handlers would adopt all of the counties included in the above handler's final proposal and in addition would include Tazewell County, Virginia and Floyd and Pike counties, Kentucky. It was further proposed that this proposed marketing area be given consideration as an addition to the Huntington district of the Tri-State marketing area, as an alternative to the two producer proposals.

The problems complained of by the producer proponents of the order center primarily around the handling of milk in plants which either are located in or serve McDowell and Mercer counties, West Virginia. Plants located in McDowell and Mercer counties also handle a large portion of the fluid milk distributed within Tazewell County, Virginia. These three counties constitute perhaps the most populous area in the entire region under consideration and to a large extent are separated from other counties proposed for regulation by mountains and intervening areas which are only sparsely populated. The principal communities located in these counties are Bluefield, Princeton, and Welch, West Virginia, and the city of Bluefield, Virginia. Because of the numerous smaller communities scattered throughout the counties, it appears that orderly marketing can be best achieved by regulating the counties in their entirety rather than to specify particular communities for regulation.

Milk sold for consumption as Grade A milk within all three counties of McDowell, Mercer, and Tazewell must be approved by local health authorities under ordinances, practices, and procedures patterned after the model milk ordinance of the United States Public Health Service. Reciprocal agreements on farm inspections and on finished Grade A milk products for distributors prevail among the area health authorities. Current ratings of the United States Public Health Service are recognized by health authorities as a basis for acceptance of supplemental, or emergency, supplies of milk from distant plant sources. The degree of similarity of minimum health standards throughout the area justifies the uniform application of prices to all inspected milk marketed in these counties.

As previously stated, producers proposed that Buchanan County, Virginia, and Floyd and Pike counties, Kentucky, also be included in the marketing area. There is little, if any, milk distributed in Buchanan County which would not be under the regulation of either the Appalachian or Bluefield order, without the inclusion of such county in the marketing area. Sales in this country are quite limited because of its rural character. For these reasons it is not necessary to include Buchanan County within either of the defined marketing areas. The reasons for not including Floyd and Pike counties in Kentucky are discussed below in conjunction with the consideration of other additional territory as proposed by handlers.

The relatively populous counties of Logan, Mingo, and Wyoming and the sparsely populated county of Lincoln, in West Virginia, are in a region where little milk is produced locally for distribution in fluid form. This is a coal mining region and extremely deficit as to its own milk supply. Milk is transported rather long distances from the markets of Huntington, West Virginia; Athens, Ohio; Beckley, West Virginia; Bluefield, West Virginia; and Charleston, West Virginia, to serve local needs for fluid milk. The milk imported into this area from Huntington and Athens is under regulation of the Federal milk order covering those communities (Tri-State Order No. 72), and the milk from Beckley has been under the regulation of a recently issued milk order for the Clarksburg marketing area (Clarksburg Order No. 109). Charleston handlers have limited sales in this area which are of minor competitive importance. The issuance of a Bluefield order for the marketing area as adopted above would bring under regulation nearly all the remaining milk distributed in these counties.

A situation similar to that noted for such four counties in West Virginia, applies also in the case of Floyd and Pike counties, Kentucky. The milk imported into this area from Huntington and Athens is under regulation of the Federal milk order covering these communities. Similarly, milk imported into this area from Big Stone Gap, Virginia, and Kingsport, Tennessee, is under regulation of the Federal milk order covering the Appalachian market. The issuance of a Bluefield order for the marketing area as adopted above would bring under regulation nearly all the remaining milk distributed in these counties.

It should be noted that the inclusion of any of the areas discussed above in addition to the counties of McDowell and Mercer, West Virginia, and Tazewell, Virginia, would have the effect of transferring plants at Huntington, West Virginia, and Athens, Ohio, now regulated under the Tri-State order, to regulation under the Bluefield order unless some modification of the present terms of the Tri-State order were made to prevent such a transfer. Regulation of such plants under the Bluefield order would not be in the interest of orderly marketing within the Tri-State marketing area. As above stated, the inclusion of the additional counties probably also would involve a portion of the Charleston market under regulation, while a greater portion of the milk for this substantial market would remain unregulated. The application of a Bluefield order in this manner would create difficult competitive problems for the regulated milk originating at Charleston plants and is not necessary to achieve orderly marketing for producers who have primary interest in the proposed Bluefield regulation. Handlers testified that if their Class I prices were reasonably aligned with those effective under the Tri-State order no competitive disadvantage resulting from the purchase of milk from producers would result from the omission of such counties from the defined marketing area since the bulk of the milk distributed in these counties, other than that distributed by handlers who would be regulated under the Bluefield order, is at present priced under the Tri-State order. The inclusion of these counties in the defined marketing area is not required to achieve orderly marketing conditions for the producers primarily concerned with the Bluefield market plants.

The milk distributors who would be regulated under a separate Bluefield order are in competition throughout the particular counties to be regulated. In addition, some milk is distributed within this area from plants located outside the defined area at Beckley, West Virginia, and Athens, Ohio. The operator of the Beckley plant might also become a handler under the regulation. Although some milk is distributed in Tazewell County by persons regulated as handlers under the order currently in effect in the Appalachian marketing area, no milk is distributed within the confines of the latter marketing area by persons who would become handlers under a separate order for the Bluefield marketing area. It is noted also that the points outside the defined area where there is some competition between handlers to be regulated by a Bluefield order and those currently regulated under the Appalachian order are not numerous. There is substantially greater competition in outside markets between Bluefield handlers and distributors in the Tri-State market and Beckley. From the standpoint of route competition there is insufficient relationship between the Appalachian and Bluefield markets to indicate the propriety of a single regulation for handlers in both markets. Further support for this view is found in the tendency for Bluefield handlers to seek new markets generally to the west and north of Bluefield, West Virginia, rather than to compete more vigorously in Bristol and other markets to the south regulated under the Appalachian order.

Milk subject to regulation. Provision should be made in the order to designate clearly what milk will be subject to the pricing provisions of the order. For this reason, definitions of "handler", "plant" (various types), "producer", "producer milk" and "other source milk" should be provided.

A "handler" is defined to be the operator of an "approved plant". The handler is the person to whom the provisions of the order are applicable. The handler receives the milk of producers and thus must be held responsible for reporting its receipt and utilization. He is the one responsible for paying producers not less than the specified minimum prices. In case a person operates more than one plant at which milk is to be priced, he should be a handler with respect to the combined operations of such plants. If a handler also operates an unregulated plant(s), this definition is not intended to include such person in his capacity as an operator of such type of plant(s). Producer-handlers and other operators of approved plants which do not qualify as "fluid milk plants" (as discussed below) should be considered handlers in order that such persons shall report to the market administrator as may be necessary to determine their status at any given time.

The minimum class prices of the order should apply to that milk eligible for distribution as Grade A milk in the marketing area which is received from dairy farmers at plants primarily engaged in supplying fluid milk for sale on retail and wholesale routes in the marketing area. Such plants are defined as "fluid milk plants." More specifically, a fluid milk plant under the attached order is any plant from which a volume of Class I milk equal to either an average of more than 1,000 pounds per day, or more than 2.0 percent of the approved milk of such plant, is disposed of during the month on routes (including routes operated by vendors) or through plant stores or retail or wholesale outlets (except other fluid milk plants) located in the marketing area.

The order should provide also delivery performance standards for plants from which no wholesale or retail routes are operated, but which represent sources of supply for the market. There are two broad categories of plants that generally provide supplemental supplies of milk for fluid milk markets. One category includes those plants which constitute regular sources of supply and are closely associated with the market by receiving milk subject to the farm inspection of local health authorities. Although there are no such plants serving the Bluefield marketing area at present some provision should be made for the regulation of plants of this type that might become closely associated with the market in the future. Plants of this type are a normal part of the milk procurement facilities in several adjacent markets, and nothing in this order will preclude any plant wherever located from serving the market in the future should a need for its supplies arise. It is concluded that any plant in this category should be included within the definition of a fluid milk plant throughout the year whenever it may become a regular source of supply for any plant from which wholesale or retail routes are operated.

The second category of supply plants are those receiving milk not under the routine farm inspection of health authorities in the market. The Bluefield market receives supplemental milk supplies from a number of plants of this type. These plants normally provide supplemental milk to plants in various other fluid milk markets as well, and their shipments to the Bluefield area for Class I use are primarily seasonal in nature.

Producers proposed that the latter type of plant be included in the definition of a fluid milk plant when any such plant supplies to the market a monthly total of 70,000 pounds (or more) of milk for each of the months of August through January, inclusive. Producers contended that such plants are a threat to the stability of the market because they are able to deliver large quantities of milk during the low production months from other sources and locations where no minimum price regulations are in effect.

It is quite possible that as a result of handlers receiving milk from outside the order in unlimited quantities a situation could arise in which a significant portion of the market supply of milk would not be subject in any way to the pricing and payment provisions of the order. This could result in (1) a portion of the market supply being procured on a "flat price" basis without regard to use of milk as distinguished from the classified price plan provided in the proposed order, (2) limiting the effectiveness of the pricing and payment provisions of the order as a means of encouraging farmers to produce a year-round supply of pure and wholesome milk for the Bluefield market, and (3) incentive to handlers to use milk from sources outside regulation in preference to seeking an adequate supply of producer milk in all months. These factors would create a constant threat to the entire classified price plan.

It is concluded that such plants should be regulated when they furnish milk, skim milk or cream in fluid form in excess of 70,000 pounds (approximately two full tank loads) per month for the months of August through January, inclusive. In addition, these plants should be brought under regulation and made fully subject to the pricing provisions of the order when any shipments are made to fluid milk plants for the months of February through July, inclusive. This provision is similar to the comparable provision of the Appalachian order and is reasonable in view of the similarity of handler operations in the two markets. Milk subject to other orders issued pursuant to the act should not be made subject to the pricing provisions of the order at any time in order that double regulation may be avoided.

Minor quantities of milk are distributed on wholesale and retail routes from plants located outside the marketing area. Such plants generally are receiving supplies produced at considerable distances from the Bluefield milk production area and are primarily in competition with milk of unregulated handlers in markets outside the Bluefield marketing area. Regulation of such plants might place them in an uneconomic and unfavorable competitive position with respect to sales in their home markets. As long as the limit as to sales such a plant may make in the marketing area are kept relatively low, the volume of unpriced milk in the market would not present a disruptive force. It is concluded that this limit should be placed at 2.0 percent of the Grade A milk received at such plant from all sources, or an average of 1,000 pounds of Class I milk a day, whichever is less. Any plant from which a volume of Class I milk equal to more than 1,000 pounds per day, or 2.0 percent of its receipts of Grade A milk, skim milk or cream, is disposed of in the marketing area should be designated as a fluid milk plant and be made fully subject to regulation. This limited exemption is similar to that currently contained in the Appalachian order.

Any plant from which Class I milk is distributed in the marketing area, but which does not meet the standards for a fluid milk plant, should be defined as an "approved plant" and be required to file reports and submit to audits by the market administrator in order that he may verify the status of such plant.

"Producer" should be defined as any person, other than a "producer-handler", who produces milk under a dairy farm inspection permit issued by a duly constituted health authority which is customarily received at a fluid milk plant. Provision should be made, however, so that the milk of producers regularly received at a fluid milk plant may be diverted for the account of a handler to a nonfluid milk plant at any time during April, May, June and July, and on not more than 15 days during other months, and still be permitted to retain status as producer milk under the order. This will permit milk regularly associated with the market to be diverted to manufacturers during periods of flush production and over week-ends and holidays when supply and demand relationships may require some reserve and surplus milk to be manufactured in plants not regulated by the order. Producers whose milk is so diverted will continue to receive the uniform price under the order and their milk will be available for fluid use when needed. Diverted milk shall be deemed to have been received at the plant from which it was diverted.

"Producer-handler" should be defined as a person who operates a fluid milk plant but handles no milk from dairy farmers other than milk of his own production. A producer-handler should be subject to the order only to the extent that he must submit reports to the market administrator as required and maintain and make available to the market administrator, accounts, records, and facilities, so that the market administrator may verify that such person meets the definition of producer-handler. It appears unnecessary to require under the order that a producer-handler pay any particular price for milk produced on his own farm.

A producer-handler may receive milk from other handlers and still maintain his status as a producer-handler. However, the classification provisions of the proposed order should provide that any milk, skim milk, or cream transferred by a handler to a producer-handler will be Class I milk. Supplemental supplies of milk which may be obtained from other handlers, by virtue of the type of operation involved, may be presumed to be needed by the producer-handler for fluid use and should be classified in the supplying handler's plant as Class I milk. Any milk which a handler receives from a producer-handler would be "other source milk" and would, therefore, be allocated to the lowest class utilization at the fluid milk plant(s) of a handler after the allocation of shrinkage on producer milk. This method of allocating producer-handler milk will insure producers' priority on Class I sales made by the handler to whom milk is supplied. The producer-handler who, by being exempt, enjoys the full advantage of his fluid milk sales, should not also share in the Class I market of other producers.

"Other source milk" should be defined as all skim milk and butterfat contained in products utilized by the handler in his operations, except milk from producers, inventories, and other Class I products received from other fluid milk plants. This includes any non-fluid milk product from any source, including those produced at the handler's plant during the same or an earlier month which are reprocessed or converted to other products during the month in the plant. Defining other source milk in this manner will insure uniformity among all handlers under the allocation and pricing provisions of the order.

Classification of milk. Milk received by regulated handlers should be classified on the basis of the form in which, or the purpose for which, it is used, as either "Class I milk" or "Class II milk."

A classification plan of this type will insure that minimum prices for milk will be uniform among handlers according to use, that a price may be fixed for the milk disposed of as Class I at a level that will bring forth an adequate supply of pure and wholesome milk, and that a necessary reserve of quality milk may be maintained at all times (and used at prices in line with its value when processed into manufactured dairy products) without disrupting marketing and pricing conditions within the established marketing area.

The products which should be included in Class I milk are those distributed to the consumer in fluid form and required by health authorities in the proposed marketing area to be obtained from milk or milk products from approved "Grade A" sources. The extra cost of getting quality milk produced and delivered to the market in the condition and quantities required makes it necessary to provide a price for milk used in Class I products somewhat above the ungraded, or manufacturing, milk price. This higher price should be at such a level that it will yield a uniform (blended) price to producers that will encourage the production of sufficient milk to meet market needs.

Reserve milk not needed seasonally or at other times for Class I use must be disposed of for use in manufactured products. These products are less perishable, are not required to be made from inspected milk, and must be sold in competition with products made from unapproved milk produced throughout the United States. Milk so used should be classified as Class II milk and priced in accordance with its value in such outlets.

In accordance with these standards, Class I milk should comprise all skim milk (including concentrated or reconstituted nonfat milk solids) and butterfat (1) disposed of in the form of milk, skim milk, buttermilk, milk drinks (plain or flavored), cream (except frozen cream), and any mixture in fluid form of skim milk and cream (except ice cream mix, eggnog, and sterilized products contained in hermetically sealed containers); and (2) not accounted for as Class II milk.

Class I products which contain concentrated skim milk solids such as skim milk drinks to which extra solids have been added or concentrated whole milk disposed of for fluid use, should be included under the Class I milk definition. Products such as evaporated or condensed milk packaged in bulk or in hermetically sealed cans should not be considered as concentrated milk.

Skim milk and butterfat are not used in most products in the same proportions as contained in the milk received from producers, and therefore should be classified separately according to their separate uses. The skim milk and butterfat content of milk products, received and disposed of by a handler, can be determined through certain testing procedures. Some of these products, such as ice cream and cottage cheese, present a difficult problem of testing in that some of the water contained in the milk has been removed. It is desirable in the case of such products to provide an acceptable means of ascertaining the amount of skim milk and butterfat contained in, or used to produce, these products. This may be accomplished through the use of adequate plant records made available to the market administrator or by means of standard conversion factors of skim milk and butterfat used to produce such products. The accounting procedure to be used in the case of any condensed milk product should be based on the pounds of milk or skim milk required to produce such product.

Each handler must be held responsible for a full accounting of all his receipts of skim milk or butterfat in any form. The handler who first receives the milk from producers should be responsible to the market administrator to establish the classification of, and to make payments to producers for, such milk. Except for such limited quantities of shrinkage which may under certain conditions (as set forth elsewhere in this decision) be classified in Class II, all skim milk and butterfat which is received and for which the handler cannot establish utilization should be classified as Class I milk. This provision is necessary to remove any advantage to handlers who fail to keep complete and accurate records and to assure that producers receive full value for their milk on the basis of its use.

All skim milk and butterfat used to produce products other than those classified in Class I milk should be Class II milk. Included as Class II milk are products such as ice cream, ice cream mix and other frozen desserts and mixes; butter, cheese, including cottage cheese; evaporated and condensed milk (plain and sweetened); non-fat dry milk solids, dry whole milk; condensed or dry buttermilk; and any other products not specified as Class I milk.

Cream which is frozen and placed in storage should be classified as Class II milk. Such cream is intended primarily for use in ice cream mixes. Any frozen cream or other Class II products which are used later in a fluid milk plant would be considered as other source milk at the time of such use and assigned to the lowest priced utilization in the plant.

A handler proposed that Class II milk include all skim milk and butterfat disposed of as livestock feed, and skim milk that is dumped after prior notification to and opportunity for verification by the market administrator. This handler testified that (1) little recovery value is obtained from fluid milk products returned to the handler's plant and sold as livestock feed, and (2) surplus milk is separated and the skim milk dumped for lack of manufacturing facilities to use all surplus milk.

Milk returned to plants from handler routes in this market frequently cannot be processed for resale as other dairy products. Because of the limited facilities in most handler plants for processing manufactured milk products seasonal surplus in small quantities from time to time does not warrant costs associated with disposition to unregulated plants for manufacture. It is concluded that skim milk contained in any product disposed of as animal feed, and skim milk which is dumped during the months of April, May, June and July, should be Class II milk. Because dumping can be verified only at the time the action is taken the handler should be required to give advance notice to the market administrator so that adequate proof of dumping will be possible.

Handlers have inventories of milk and milk products at the beginning and end of each month which enter into the accounting for current receipts and utilization. Accounting procedure will be facilitated by providing that ending inventories of all products designated as Class I milk, regardless of whether such products are held in bulk or in packages, be classified in Class II milk. Inventories of such products on hand will then be subtracted from Class II use the following month. If any products which are classified as Class II milk because they are held in inventories or later used in Class I, the higher valued use should be reflected to producers unless producer milk was not available for such use.

Inventories of products designated as Class I milk on hand at a fluid milk plant at the beginning of any month during which such plant becomes a fluid milk plant for the first time should likewise be subtracted from the Class II utilization of such plant. This will preserve the priority of assignment of current producer receipts to current Class I use for each month.

As in the case of the Appalachian market the question of multiple reporting periods for allocation purposes was considered. The testimony offered primarily with respect to the proposed revision of the Appalachian order is equally applicable to the Bluefield market. The findings and conclusions on this matter, previously set forth in this decision, likewise are applicable in connection with the Bluefield market and therefore are not repeated in this portion of the decision.

The proposals on the amounts of shrinkage to be allowed in Class II milk under a Bluefield order were similar to those previously considered in this decision in connection with proposed amendments to the Appalachian order. For the same reasons presented earlier producers opposed the proposals made by handlers.

As in the Appalachian market fluid milk operations take the bulk of the milk delivered by dairy farmers. A high degree of similarity in plant operations exists between the two markets. The classification, allocation and transfer provisions of the two orders are substantially the same. The class prices adopted for the Bluefield market contemplate similar treatment in accounting for and classifying shrinkage. It is concluded from the above that shrinkage should be determined on the same basis as is provided in the Appalachian order. Shrinkage not in excess of 2 percent of the handler's receipts of producer and other source milk should be prorated between producer and other source milk on the basis of the pounds received from each source. Shrinkage not in excess of 2 percent of total receipts of producer milk and other source milk used to produce a Class II product should be classified as Class II milk, and any shrinkage in excess of this quantity should be classified as Class I milk. None of the shrinkage should be assigned to milk received from other fluid milk plants because shrinkage on such milk is allowed to the transferor-handler.

Classification of butterfat and skim milk used in the production of Class II milk items should be considered to have been established when the product is made. Classification of Class I milk should be established when the butterfat or skim milk is disposed of by the handler. However, since some Class I items may be disposed of to other plants for processing, specific classification procedures should be prescribed for milk transferred between plants.

Milk, skim milk, cream, or other products designated as Class I milk transferred by a handler to the plant of another handler, except that of a producer-handler, should be classified as Class I milk unless both handlers claim in their reports to the market administrator that such milk should be classified as Class II milk. However, in the latter event sufficient Class II utilization must be available at the transferee-plant after prior allocation of shrinkage and other source milk. Furthermore, the assignment to classes must be such as will result in the maximum amount of producer milk of both handlers being assigned to Class I milk. These actions will insure that the highest-valued uses should be assigned first to these producers regularly supplying the market.

Producers proposed that milk which is diverted from fluid milk plants to nonfluid milk plants within a range of 100 miles of the marketing area be considered as Class II milk. Reference was made to transfers of surplus milk from a Bluefield plant to a manufacturing milk plant approximately 70 miles away.

One handler proposed that surplus milk which is transported from a fluid milk plant to a nonfluid milk plant within a range of 250 miles of the transferor-plant be considered Class II milk. Surplus milk from this handler's plant has been moved at times to a manufacturing milk plant approximately 190 miles distant.

It is reasonable and necessary to assure that producer milk will be paid for in accordance with its utilization. This requires verification of the receipts and utilization of milk at nonfluid milk plants which receive producer milk diverted from fluid milk plants. When it is necessary to travel considerable distances to verify the use of milk in nonfluid milk plants, there is excessive administrative expense. At least four nonfluid milk plants within a distance of 200 miles of Bluefield, West Virginia, are available to serve as the major outlets for surplus milk. The costs involved in transporting milk, skim milk, and cream in bulk form are such that generally it would not be economically feasible to move milk in excess of such distance for Class II disposition.

Therefore, it is concluded that milk, skim milk, and cream disposed of to a nonfluid milk plant, including milk which is diverted (sent directly to the nonfluid milk plant from the producer's farm) should be classified as Class I milk, unless the following conditions are met: (1) The operator of a nonfluid milk plant, if requested, must make his books and records available to the market administrator for the purpose of verifying the receipts and utilization of milk in such nonfluid milk plant, (2) the nonfluid milk plant is located less than 200 miles, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, from Bluefield, West Virginia, (3) the nonfluid milk plant used, during the month, an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat in the product use indicated, and (4) in the case of cream the transfer is made without the Grade A certification of any health authority. For reasons previously stated all Class I milk and milk products transferred to a producer-handler should not be subject to the above reclassification.

One handler proposed that a provision be included under which milk custom-bottled by a handler on behalf of an out-of-area plant could be made exempt from the pooling and pricing provisions of the Bluefield order. Specifically, it was requested that, in an emergency, milk moved from Clarksburg, West Virginia, to a plant at Beckley, West Virginia for bottling purposes and then returned to Clarksburg for sale in the Clarksburg marketing area be deducted from Class I milk in allocation at the Beckley plant. Following the classification plan of the present Appalachian order, such a receipt of milk at Beckley (if the Beckley plant were regulated under the Appalachian order) would be handled as a receipt of "other source milk" and allocated in series beginning with the lowest-priced class. The exemption, under the proposal, would apply only to a quantity of milk equivalent to that returned to the Clarksburg market.

In support of the proposal proponent indicated the possibility that its plant located at Clarksburg may be subject to relocation because the land on which it is situated may be purchased by the State of West Virginia for use as a road or highway. The land has been surveyed by the state and appears to be involved in one of two highway routes under consideration. Thus, it may be necessary to process milk at another location pending the erection of a new plant by the company to serve the Clarksburg market.

A custom-bottling provision in the Bluefield order may be an appropriate method of relieving hardship in an emergency situation, as described by proponent, without inequity to other regulated handlers. On the other hand, it has been found necessary in the general application of milk orders to provide stringent rules concerning the receipt and allocation of milk at regulated plants in order to provide a clear basis on which to determine the extent of the handler's responsibility to producers. Any relaxation of an order to the point that some milk received by the regulated handler would not be controlled pricewise by the order and yet displace producer milk in the highest classification should be carefully constructed in light of a specific emergency in order that such a provision may not be utilized to avoid an order restriction in a situation for which it was not intended.

For the most part the testimony was conjectural. There is a real possibility that the potential situation described will not become a fact. In the event the Clarksburg plant is closed at some future time to give way to the new highway, there may be alternative methods under either the Clarksburg order or the Bluefield order of preventing undue hardship to proponent. For example, proponent has a bottling plant at Fairmont, West Virginia. It may be possible for farmers now shipping to the Clarksburg plant to become regular producers at the Beckley plant by securing a change in health permits. A new plant location at Clarksburg may be found. Certainly proponent will receive advance notice to vacate which will provide opportunity to review the problem presented. The necessity and nature of any relief may be more accurately appraised in light of specific facts concerning the extent and time period of the actual emergency. In view of the above, it is concluded that a custom-bottling provision is not appropriate in the present circumstances.

It was proposed further by such handler that milk transferred to any plant regulated by the Bluefield order from a plant under another Federal order be allocated on a basis comparable to the class of utilization of such milk under the marketing order which covers the transferor's plant. Proponent referred particularly to milk which might be received from plants under either the Tri-State or Clarksburg order.

It was contended that such a transfer provision would assist a handler to hold his market against the inroads of milk brought by distributors in other markets for sale on routes since it would be easier for the local handler to obtain supplementary supplies when short of producer milk. Under the proposal any such milk, classified as Class I under an order such as the Clarksburg order, would be deductible from Class I milk in the Bluefield plant.

It is recognized that through the allocation procedure of assigning producer milk under each order to the highest-priced available uses, a quantity of milk may be classified as Class I milk in the exporting market and allocated, as "other source milk", to Class II milk in the receiving market. However, the deduction of the transferred quantity from Class I milk in the transferee-plant while local producer milk remains in Class II would not be justified under the conditions which prevail in the Bluefield area.

The Bluefield market is located in a deficit production area. Likewise, the Appalachian, Tri-State and Clarksburg markets are located in deficit milksheds. Unlike the Chicago market, referred to by proponent, which is relied upon to furnish supplemental supplies to adjacent markets as needed, none of the above-mentioned markets serves as a "balance wheel" to the supply condition of another of such markets. Each market is independent of the others in supply procurement and sources of outside milk vary. Since local producers of the Bluefield market represent the only fully dependable and reasonably near source of milk for most Bluefield handlers, there appears to be no substantial reason to force producer milk into manufacturing uses while temporary, and perhaps, sporadic, supplies from outside sources are assigned to higher-valued uses. Such procedure would not assist the orderly marketing of milk in the Bluefield area.

Bluefield plants, including proponent's plant, have no substantial capacity to manufacture milk products. Milk imported from other areas is intended primarily to supplement local producer milk in Class I uses. If the need for such supplemental milk is real no handler should experience undue hardship from order requirements under which producer milk is first assigned to the highest-priced class since the bulk of the supplemental milk would be deductible from Class I milk in allocation if actually used for fluid purposes.

In view of the above, inter-market transfers should be allocated in the same general manner as any other milk which is received from sources other than producers. However, since it may be necessary at times to allocate both regulated (priced under another Federal order) and unregulated milk from outside sources as "other source milk" in a Bluefield plant, it is reasonable to allocate the unregulated milk first to the lowest-valued uses prior to the allocation of priced milk in such uses. The latter procedure is adopted.

Class prices. Class I prices should be established at a level which, together with appropriate Class II prices, will return to producers a uniform price sufficient to bring forth the required supply of Grade A milk throughout the year. Class prices established too low will result in the production of insufficient quantities of milk to meet the requirement of the market. However, if prices are too high, it will stimulate production and bring to the market more milk than is needed for Class I and reasonable "reserve" requirements. An overstimulation of production in excess of fluid milk requirements would result in the development of unnecessary and uneconomic surpluses.

Producers included in their proposals for the Bluefield area the same basic price formula now in use under Appalachian Order No. 23. The purpose of a basic price is to reflect the general economic factors underlying the price for milk. The price of milk used in manufactured milk products reflects, to a large extent, changes in general economic conditions affecting supply and demand, because the markets for most manufactured products are nationwide. For these reasons, many fluid milk markets have found it appropriate to use the prices for butter and nonfat dry milk solids, or the prices paid by condenseries (with differentials over these basic manufacturing prices), to establish fluid milk prices.

In the Bluefield market, prices for milk used for fluid purposes are related to prices paid for milk used for manufacturing purposes since the production and marketing of both types of milk are influenced by many of the same economic conditions. Farms producing milk for both fluid milk and manufacturing milk plants are intermingled to some extent in the Bluefield production area. In addition, manufacturing milk plants serve as alternative outlets for milk which is produced to meet fluid milk requirements. The recommended differential added to the basic formula price should, in general, reflect the additional costs required for Grade A milk to be produced and delivered to Bluefield market handlers in the quantities required to meet the needs for fluid milk and cream consumption in the marketing area. The use of alternative components as included in the attached order in the determination of the basic formula price will reflect the basic factors which establish the full farm value of milk for manufacturing uses at any given time.

In view of these facts, it is concluded that the basic price should be the higher of (a) the average of the prices paid by the 13 "Midwestern condenseries", (b) a price computed on the basis of the daily quotations for 92-score butter at Chicago and prices paid for nonfat dry milk solids f. o. b. manufacturing plants in the Chicago area, or (c) the average of the prices paid for milk received from dairy farmers by nine selected manufacturing plants in or near the local milkshed. This basis for pricing, identical to that in the Appalachian market, will assist in maintaining proper price alignment between the markets.

The concept of adjusting minimum class prices in response to changes in supply and demand conditions, and thereby influencing the production of milk through consequent changes in producers' blend prices, has wider geographical implications today than in the past. In earlier days producers were limited to supplying milk to local markets because of inadequate transportation facilities and the local nature of health regulations and milk distribution systems. Today the technological advances in milk production, including the widespread use of milk cooling equipment on farms; the rapid motor transportation from farms to a number of cities instead of one or two, especially through the advent of bulk farm tank milk pickup; the increased efficiency of milk processing equipment and plants; the increasing importance of paper containers for packaging milk; the use of refrigerated delivery trucks; the sale of milk through vendors and stores in distant cities; and the corollary trend among health authorities of approving sources of milk derived from a wider supply area under agreement for reciprocal inspection—all these factors enable milk to be transported and sold long distances from the point of production and processing.

These developments have been and are influencing the marketing organization and price structure for producer milk and for fluid milk products in the Bluefield marketing area. Recent highway improvements have made this area accessible from a number of markets. That these developments have affected the level of prices paid for milk in the Bluefield marketing area may be noted from the many references in the record to the need of reasonable alignment of Bluefield marketing area prices with prices in the Appalachian, Clarksburg, and Tri-State markets.

Proponents proposed Class I price differentials (over the basic formula price) for the Bluefield marketing area of $1.35 during the months of April, May, and June; $1.80 during the months of February, March, and July; and $2.25 during all other months which would be added to a basic formula price similar to that used under Appalachian Order No. 23. Producers gave the following reasons for establishing differentials in these amounts: (1) The production area for the Bluefield market overlaps the production areas of Charleston, West Virginia; Winston-Salem, North Carolina; Beckley, West Virginia; Smyth-Wythe, Virginia; Pulaski - Montgomery - Giles, Virginia; Roanoke, Virginia; Galax, Virginia; and the Appalachian market; (2) a proper relationship of prices among markets obtaining fluid milk supplies from the same general production area is of utmost importance; (3) current blend prices have not induced an adequate year-round supply of inspected milk for the market; (4) producers have shifted from the Bluefield market to some of the above-named markets which offer higher returns; (5) increased demand for coal in this area has increased economic activity and the demand for dairy products; and (6) the proposed seasonal variation in price is necessary to encourage a more even production pattern throughout the year.

One handler proposed that the price for Class I milk should be the simple average of the prices established for Class I milk under Appalachian Order No. 23 and under Tri-State Order No. 72 (for the Huntington district). This handler, upon further consideration of this proposal, and his modified marketing area proposal (previously discussed), abandoned this price formula suggestion. Another handler proposed that the Class I price should be equivalent to the Class I price as established by the Tri-State order for the Huntington district. Handlers generally stressed the importance of the proper alignment of Class I prices in the Bluefield and Tri-State marketing areas. They testified that they are in competition with handlers from the Tri-State marketing area in the Logan, Pikeville, Williamson, and Prestonburg markets as to a very large proportion of their fluid milk sales. One handler in the Bluefield market who is regulated by the Tri-State order as to part of his supply bottled at a Bluefield area plant has regularly paid at least 31 cents per hundredweight over the minimum Class I price as required for such plant under the Tri-State order.

Consideration should be given to the need for alignment of Class I prices among the marketing areas of Appalachian, Bluefield, Clarksburg, and Tri-State. In this connection official notice is taken of the price formulas of the Appalachian, Clarksburg, and Tri-State orders. The Appalachian, Bluefield, and Clarksburg markets, and the Huntington district of the Tri-State market are all in deficit milk production areas. Although the Appalachian and Bluefield milk production areas overlap in four counties in Virginia, there is very little if any overlapping of either milkshed with the Tri-State milk production area. The costs of feed, farm labor, hay and dairy ration are quite similar in the production areas of the Appalachian and Bluefield markets. Also, the costs of transporting milk from farms to milk plants are not significantly different in the two markets. The major portion of Bluefield handlers' sales, however, are in direct competition with handlers regulated by the Tri-State order. Handlers from these two areas are the major competitors in the Logan, Williamson, Prestonburg, and Pikeville markets.

Exceptions filed by producers referred to the level of Class I price differentials for months other than April, May and June. Producers stressed particularly a closer alignment of Class I prices with the prices established for the Appalachian marketing area in order not to encourage a shift of producer milk from the deficit Bluefield market. In addition, they pointed to the slightly higher level of Class I price differentials in the Clarksburg marketing area.

The Class I price should be established in the Bluefield order by adding a differential of $1.45 during the months of April, May and June; $1.70 during the months of March and July, and $2.10 during all other months, to the basic formula price. Producer supplies of milk in 1955 showed a marked decrease in both July and August when compared to the immediately preceeding flush production months of April, May and June. The production level in February was not greatly different from that in the short production months of September, October, and November preceding. The seasonal variation in Class I price differentials from months of low production to months of high production and the reverse should be at the same rates of change. Prices should be closely aligned with the Appalachian marketing area in months when supplies are relatively short for both markets in order to prevent unnecessary shifting of producer supplies. However, a wider seasonal pattern of pricing than prevails in the Appalachian market is necessary in view of competition between Bluefield handlers and handlers from the Tri-State market in a common sales area. These markets are more significantly related to the Bluefield market than is Clarksburg as to the major factors affecting the production and marketing of milk.

The average Class I price per hundredweight of 4 percent milk in 1955, f. o. b. market, would have been $5.34 as fixed under the formula. The average Class I price per hundredweight for the same period was $5.40 under the Appalachian order and $5.00 for the Huntington district under the Tri-State order. The formula adopted would have resulted in Class I prices per hundredweight of $5.67 in January and $4.87 in June 1955. The Class I prices per hundredweight in the Appalachian order were $5.67 in January and $5.12 in June, and in the Huntington district under the Tri-State order were $5.53 in January and $4.38 in June. A receiving station which receives milk for shipment to the Appalachian market is located at Rural Retreat in the Virginia segment of the Appalachian milkshed. A location differential of 14.5 cents per hundredweight is deductible from the Class I and uniform prices at this location. At this point, where the Bluefield and Appalachian milksheds overlap, the net returns to producers, after taking into account relative hauling costs, will be, on an annual average basis, in close alinement with those received by Appalachian market producers.

Producers proposed that a "supply-demand adjustment factor" be included in the Class I price formula to further reflect changes in local supply and demand conditions. Although a supply-demand adjustment factor in the pricing formula conceived from local data would be desirable and serve a useful purpose, it is concluded that the development of such a factor from the limited data available at present locally, or from experience in the Appalachian market, would not reflect the Bluefield marketing conditions adequately and should be delayed until the Bluefield market has had experience under the order. Market experience under regulation is desirable as a basis for determining with accuracy the seasonal patterns of production and demand for use in connection with such a formula. The class prices included in this order will be terminated eighteen months after this order becomes effective, providing an opportunity for review of the market situation based on more detailed information.

The Class II price formula should reflect a reasonable value of milk for manufacturing purposes in the production area of the Bluefield market. The price should be at such a level that handlers will accept and market whatever quantities of milk in excess of Class I requirements may be produced from time to time. However, this price should not be so low that handlers will be encouraged to procure or retain milk supplies solely for the purpose of converting substantial quantities into Class II products when a Class I market exists.

Handlers in the Bluefield market use most of their daily reserves of milk for cottage cheese and ice cream production. The manufacture of limited quantities of producer milk into storable products such as condensed milk and nonfat dry milk solids occurs principally in the flush season of production and at plants not operated by handlers. All products included in Class II may be made from ungraded milk.

Producers provided a tank truck to divert surplus milk from a Bluefield handler's plant to a manufacturing plant during the last surplus production season. A premium over the basic manufacturing milk price was received for such milk.

The level of Class II milk prices in the flush production season should not be below that paid for ungraded milk, since such "pay" prices represent the prevailing value in the milkshed for milk for manufacturing purposes. Handlers who need and desire the entire output of producers during periods of short supply should assume the responsibility of paying producers at least the competitive manufacturing prices for Class II milk throughout the months of flush production.

The production areas of the Appalachian and Bluefield markets overlap. Regulated handlers' outlets for surplus milk during the flush production season from the Appalachian and Bluefield markets are manufacturing plants which are the principal buyers of ungraded milk in the milksheds of the two marketing areas. Official notice is taken of the Class II price formula in Appalachian Order No. 23. The Class II price computed for the Appalachian area during the months of March through August is, and will continue to be, the average of the prices paid for milk received from dairy farmers by nine manufacturing plants in the area. These plants are located at Galax and Abingdon, Virginia; Greenville, Lewisburg, and Murfreesboro, Tennessee; Mayfield and Bowling Green, Kentucky; Statesville, North Carolina; and Chester, South Carolina. It is concluded from the above that the Class II price for the months of March through August at Bluefield plants should be the average of the prices paid for milk received from dairy farmers by the nine manufacturing plants at the above locations.

During the months of below-average production a higher level of prices for Class II milk should be provided in the order so as to encourage the transfer of milk from manufacturing uses to fluid uses during the fall and winter months. In these months there are available outlets for reserve milk in cottage cheese and ice cream which, among manufacturing uses, are preferred outlets. These are also the months when considerable quantities of milk are imported into the market. Supplemental supplies of milk during the short production season are received from areas where the price of milk used in the manufacture of butter and nonfat dry milk solids is an important factor in establishing the prevailing farm values of manufacturing milk. Therefore, it is concluded that the Class II price for the months of September through February, should be the higher of either the price computed pursuant to a butter-nonfat solids formula (4.8 times 92-score Chicago butter price per pound plus 8.2 times price per pound spray process nonfat dry milk for Chicago area, minus 75 cents per hundredweight) or the average of the prices paid by the nine manufacturing plants. This will provide alignment of Class II milk prices with the price of milk for similar uses in the Appalachian market.

As previously pointed out in this decision, it was concluded that butterfat and skim milk should be accounted for separately for classification purposes. It will be necessary, therefore, to adjust Class I and Class II prices of milk in accordance with the average test of milk in each class by a butterfat differential which will reflect differences in value due to variations in the butterfat content in each product. The basing point from which such adjustments are to be made should be 4.0 percent butterfat. This is the basis now used in both the Bluefield and Appalachian marketing areas. The values resulting from multiplying the average price of 92-score butter at Chicago by 0.120 for Class I milk and such butter price by 0.110 for Class II milk will provide an appropriate basis for adjusting such prices in this market.

The use of butterfat differentials in this manner follow standard practices in most fluid milk markets for adjusting for butterfat variations. In order that the Class I butterfat differential may be announced early each month, it is provided that the Class I differential be based on the average price of butter in the preceding month. This will permit the announcement of the Class I butterfat differential at the same time that the Class I price is announced.

The Class II price and the Class II butterfat differential will not be announced until after the end of the month. Although handlers will not know precisely the cost of such milk as it is utilized, they will know that their cost will follow that of their principal competitors for manufactured outlets. Trends in butter prices may be observed from daily and weekly market reports issued by the Department.

The butterfat differential used in making payments to producers should be calculated at the average of the returns actually received from the sale of butterfat in producer milk. The rate to be used for this purpose would be the average of the Class I and Class II differentials weighted by the proportion of butterfat in producer milk classified in each class. Thus, producer returns for butterfat will reflect the actual sale value of their butterfat at the class differentials provided in the order. The producer butterfat differential in no way affects the handlers' costs of milk but merely prorates returns among producers according to the varying butterfat tests of their milk.

Proponents originally proposed that no location differentials be adopted in pricing Class I milk for the Bluefield marketing area. It was pointed out that at present no milk is transported from receiving stations to processing plants. After further consideration, producers suggested that location adjustments should be computed on the basis of the distance between the receiving station and the Court House of either Mercer County at Princeton, West Virginia, or McDowell County at Welch, West Virginia, whichever point is nearest the receiving station. Producers gave the following reasons for establishing location adjustments in this manner: (1) The marketing area consists mainly of numerous small towns, (2) handlers' plants are not located in any one central community, and (3) the above two counties are the main centers of population in the proposed marketing area.

One handler proposed that the Class I price should be reduced for those plants which are outside the Bluefield marketing area by 10 cents per hundredweight of milk for the first 50 miles, and by 1.5 cents per hundredweight of milk for each additional 10 miles, or fraction thereof, that such plants are located from the City Hall of Bluefield, Virginia. This handler contended that a point representing the geographical center of the marketing area would be a desirable point from which to measure the cost to handlers in transporting milk to the market.

The farm value of milk for use in a market is affected, of course, by the cost of delivery to the place of utilization by the handler. Milk delivered directly to a plant located within the marketing area is worth more, by at least the cost of transportation, than is other milk to be utilized in the market but delivered to a plant located at a considerable distance from the market. Therefore, it is important to recognize the costs of transporting Class I milk from receiving stations that might become regular sources of supply for the Bluefield marketing area. In addition, it is important to establish the Class I price for milk delivered to processing plants at points in the marketing area and then provide a schedule of deductions from the Class I milk price as location differentials, or adjustments to such price.

In order to have equitable pricing of milk throughout this elongated marketing area it is necessary to provide points representative of the major communities in the marketing area from which location adjustments may be computed. This is an extended marketing area with numerous communities, or centers of population. The processing plants distributing fluid milk products in this area are not located in one central community. In addition, all plants serving the marketing area may not be located within its geographical limits. Accordingly, multiple points for fixing location adjustments should be used. These points should be the City Halls of Bluefield, and Welch, or the County Courthouse at Princeton, all in West Virginia, whichever is nearest to the plant. In view of the elongated character of the marketing area and the intermingling of routes of handlers with plants located in rather widely separated communities, equitable pricing may be best achieved by omitting location differentials with respect to any plant located less than 50 miles from the nearest of the respective points referred to above.

It is concluded that the Class I price should be reduced 10 cents for plants located between 50 and 60 miles distant, and by 1.5 per hundredweight of milk for each additional 10 miles, or fraction thereof. Such differentials as established by this decision are the same as those prescribed in the Appalachian milk marketing order and are related to the cost of hauling milk by an efficient means under conditions similar to those in this market.

Because of the low cost per hundredweight of milk involved in transporting manufactured milk products the value of milk used in manufactured dairy products is affected little, if any, by the location of the plant receiving that milk. Therefore, no adjustment should be made in the Class II price for reasons of location of the plant at which the producer milk is first received.

Type of pool. The individual-handler type of pool should be included in the order as a means of distributing to producers the returns from the sale of their milk.

Under this method of pooling the minimum prices will be uniform to all producers delivering their milk to the same handler. The "blend", "base", and "excess" prices, as the case may be, for each producer will depend on the proportions of Class I and Class II milk used by the handler receiving such producer's milk. Although each handler subject to the order will be required to pay uniform minimum prices to all the producers who deliver to him during each month the minimum uniform prices payable to producers by the various handlers will differ according to the variations among handlers in the proportion of milk used in each class.

Handlers in this market are primarily distributors of fluid milk and fluid milk products and receive little, if any, excess milk for the purpose of supplying other handlers with supplemental milk. These handlers process reserve milk and surplus milk in their own plants for sale as ice cream and cottage cheese. Seasonal surpluses of any substantial volume are transported to manufacturing plants outside the marketing area. Because there is relatively little surplus milk and because such milk is more or less proportionate among the major handlers blended returns to producers are not expected to vary widely. The proximity of the Appalachian production area (where an individual-handler pool plan is used) to the Bluefield production area should also be considered. Because of the fact that plants are rather widely separated and the marketing area is extensive geographically, each handler disposes of any excess supplies by his own means. There are no particular plants to be regulated which serve to balance supplies among plants. It is concluded that individual-handler pools in the Bluefield marketing area will result in optimum allocation of producer milk among handlers according to the Class I needs of the handlers and in maximum returns to producers from their milk.

Producer payment plan. A base and excess plan of distributing returns for milk among producers should be employed for this market.

Several handlers in the Bluefield market are now relying on various forms of base-excess plans to provide the incentive needed to induce producers to attain a more even production pattern throughout the year. Handlers have established the rules of these base-excess plans and have controlled the adjustment and transfer of bases. Although these plans performed a much-needed function, their actual operation in many cases leaves much to be desired from the standpoint of equity among producers.

Base and excess plans are effective means of improving the seasonal pattern of milk deliveries because they relate returns for milk directly to the individual producer's ability to deliver additional milk in the short production season and somewhat less milk during the season of flush production. In this market handlers' fluid milk sales customarily decline during the flush production season. In these months handlers have experienced difficulty in utilizing efficiently all seasonal excesses of milk. Distribution of producer returns under a base and excess plan will encourage a production pattern more even throughout the year.

It is concluded, therefore, that a base-excess plan similar to that in use in the Appalachian market, applied to all producers, by being made a part of the attached order, will play a useful role in stabilizing marketing and pricing conditions in the area.

The base and excess plan provided herein would provide for the calculation of the daily base of each producer by the market administrator by dividing the total pounds of milk received by all handlers from such producer during the months of September through February by the number of days from the first day milk is received from such producer during those months to the last day of February, inclusive, but by not less than 120 days. On or before April 1st of each year the market administrator would be required to notify each producer, and the handler receiving milk from him, of the daily base established by such producer. Now producers entering the market would not establish a base until they have met the above 120-day requirement in the same manner as other producers.

There are physical limitations, however, to making the reporting sections of the Bluefield order effective September 1, 1956. Therefore, the base of each producer for the appropriate months in 1957 shall be established on his deliveries of milk during the months of October, November, and December 1956, and January and February 1957, provided the producer has shipped milk to the Bluefield market for not less than 90 days in such five-month period.

During the months of August through March all producers would receive the same uniform, or average, price paid by the handler to which they deliver their milk. For each of the months of April through July, separate uniform prices for "base milk" and "excess milk" would be computed. Class I sales would be allotted first to "base milk." Base milk would be that quantity of milk delivered by each producer up to his average daily base multiplied by the number of days of delivery in the month. The "excess milk" price would be the minimum order Class II price, unless the total Class I sales of the handler exceed the total quantity of base milk received from producers during the month. In this case, the excess milk used for Class I sales would be reflected in the calculation of the excess milk price. Audit adjustments, inventory reclassification, and overages may further enhance the pooled value of "excess milk" from time to time and it is possible that without proper provision the excess milk price might be higher than the base price. As explained in an earlier part of this decision no useful purpose is served in improving the seasonal production pattern when the excess price exceeds the base price. As in the Appalachian order, the uniform prices for base and excess milk should be recomputed whenever the above condition would otherwise occur in order that the two prices may be equal.

Certain rules are necessary in connection with the establishment and transfer of bases in order to provide reasonable administrative workability of the plan. Any transfer of base should be limited to situations where changes in the operation of a farm result because of (1) new ownership, (2) the death, retirement or entry into military service of a producer, or (3) changes in partnership or tenant-landlord arrangements. Since the base plan is effective in determining producer payments in only four months of each year and since all producers must establish a new base each year, other provisions than those contained herein for the transfer of bases are unnecessary.

Handlers should make payments to each producer for milk delivered by such producer at the appropriate uniform prices. If a producer has given a cooperative association written authorization, in the form of a contract, or in any other form, to collect payments for him and association makes a written request for such payments due such producer payment should be made by the handler to the cooperative. A provision authorizing handlers to make payment directly to such qualified cooperative for milk received from producer-members is necessary to enable the association to carry out its essential functions authorized by the enabling act. A cooperative association, if it is to carry out these essential functions, must have full authority in the collective bargaining and selling of member milk. Therefore, it is concluded that each handler with respect to milk received from a producer for which payment is not made to a cooperative association should pay such producer at not less than the applicable uniform price(s) on or before the 15th day after the end of each month. With respect to the producers whose milk was caused to be delivered by a cooperative association which is authorized to collect payment for such milk, the handler shall remit, if requested in writing by the cooperative association on or before the 13th day after the end of such month, an amount equal to the sum of the individual payments otherwise payable to such producers.

In making such payments for producer milk to a cooperative association the handler should at the same time furnish the cooperative association with a statement showing the name of each producer for whom payment is being made to the cooperative association, the volume and average butterfat content of milk delivered by each such producer, and the amounts of and reasons for any deductions which the handler withheld from the amount payable to each producer. This statement is necessary in order that the cooperative association can make proper distribution of the money to the producer-members for whom it makes collections.

Proponents proposed that in addition to the regular monthly payments handlers should be required, upon request, to make advance payments to the producers' cooperative association for member milk. These advance payments would be made on the 23d day of each month for milk received from member producers who have requested an advance from the cooperative association. The payment would be made with respect to milk delivered during the first fifteen days of such month, at not less than the Class II price per hundredweight for the preceding month. Producers indicated that an advance payment for milk would assist in defraying costs more promptly.

Handlers suggested that if advance payments are included they should be made to each producer on or before the last day of each month for milk received from each producer during the first fifteen days of such month, at not less than the Class II price per hundredweight for the preceding month.

One handler makes payments to each producer twice a month on the 4th and 19th days of the month. Other handlers customarily have made advance payments to producers who requested them. The record lacks evidence of any widespread need for the proposed advance payments and, therefore, they are denied.

Administrative provisions. Provisions should be included in the order with respect to the administrative steps necessary to carry out the proposed regulation.

In addition to the definitions discussed earlier in this decision which define the scope of the regulation, certain other terms and definitions are desirable in the interest of brevity and to assure that each usage of the term implies the same meaning. Definitions for base and excess milk are included. Such other terms as are defined in the attached order are common to many other Federal milk orders.

Market administrator. Provision should be made for the appointment by the Secretary of a market administrator to administer the order and to set forth the powers and duties for such agency essential to the proper functioning of such office.

Records and reports. Provisions should be included in the order requiring handlers to maintain adequate records of their operations and to make the reports necessary to establish the classification of producer milk and payments due therefor. Time limits must be prescribed for filing such reports and for making the payments to producers.

Handlers should maintain and make available to the market administrator all records and accounts of their operations, together with facilities which are necessary to determine the accuracy of information reported to the market administrator or any other information upon which the classification of producer milk depends. The market administrator must likewise be permitted to check the accuracy of weights and tests of milk and milk products received and handled, and to verify all payments required under the order. It is provided that each handler shall report his Class I sales outside the marketing area as a separate figure. In view of the extent of such sales adequate data should be compiled for review in the event the scope of the marketing area should require revision.

In addition to the regular reports required of handlers, provision is made for handlers to notify the market administrator of their intentions to import other source milk. Such information on a market-wide basis may assist handlers in locating local sources of producer milk and expedite the transfer of such milk among handlers. It is necessary that handlers retain records to prove the utilization of the milk and that proper payments were made to producers. Since the books and records of all handlers cannot be completed or audited immediately after the milk has been delivered to a plant, it therefore becomes necessary to keep such records for a reasonable period of time.

The order should provide limitations on the period of time handlers shall be required to retain such books and records and on the period of time in which obligations under the order shall terminate. Provision made in this regard is identical in principle with the general amendment made to all milk orders in operation on July 30, 1947, following the Secretary's decision of January 26, 1949 (14 F. R. 444). That decision covering the retention of records and limitation of claims is equally applicable in this situation and is adopted as a part of this decision.

Expense of administration. Each handler should be required to pay the market administrator, as his pro rata share of the cost of administering the order, not more than 5 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe, on (a) producer milk (including such handler's own production), (b) other source milk at a fluid milk plant which is classified as Class I milk, and (c) Class I milk disposed of on routes in the marketing area from a nonfluid milk plant.

The market administrator must have sufficient funds to enable him to administer properly the terms of the order.

The act provides that such cost of administration shall be financed through an assessment on handlers. One of the duties of the market administrator is to verify the receipts and disposition of milk from all sources. The record indicates that other source milk is received by some handlers to supplement local producer supplies of milk. Equity in sharing the cost of administration of the order among handlers will be achieved, therefore, by applying the administrative assessment to all producer milk (including the handler's own production) and other source milk allocated to Class I milk.

Plants not subject to the classification and pricing provisions of the order may distribute limited quantities of Class I milk in the marketing area. These plants must be checked to verify their status under the order. Assessment of administrative expense with respect to such milk sold in the marketing area will help to defray the costs of such checks.

In view of the anticipated volume of milk and the costs of administering orders in markets of comparable circumstances, it is concluded that an initial maximum rate of 5 cents per hundredweight is necessary to meet the expenses of administration. Provision should be made to enable the Secretary to reduce the rate of assessment below the 5 cent per hundredweight maximum without necessitating an amendment to the order. This should be done at any time experience in the market reveals that a lesser rate will produce sufficient revenue to administer the order properly.

Marketing services. A provision should be included in the order for furnishing marketing services to producers, such as verifying tests and weights and furnishing market information. These services should be provided by the market administrator and the cost should be borne by the producers receiving the services. If a cooperative association is performing such services for any member producers and is approved for such activities by the Secretary the market administrator may accept this in lieu of his own service.

There is a need for a marketing services program in connection with the administration of an order in this area. Orderly marketing will be promoted by assuring individual producers that payments received for their milk are based on the pricing provisions of the order, and reflect accurate weights and tests of such milk. To accomplish this fully, it is necessary that the butterfat tests and weights of individual producer deliveries of milk as reported by the handler be verified for accuracy.

An important phase of the marketing service program is to furnish producers with current market information. Detailed information regarding market conditions is not now regularly available either to producers or to cooperative associations. Efficiency in the production, utilization, and marketing of milk will be promoted by the dissemination of current information on a marketwide basis to all producers.

To enable the market administrator to furnish such services, provision should be made for a maximum deduction of 6 cents per hundredweight with respect to receipts of milk from producers for whom he renders marketing services. Comparison of the extent of the milkshed and the volume of milk involved with that of the Appalachian market, now under Federal regulation, leads to the conclusion that this will reflect the maximum cost of such services. If later experience indicates that marketing services can be performed at a lesser rate, provision is made for the Secretary to adjust the rate downward without the necessity of a hearing.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and order and all the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and order are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Determination of representative period. The month of June 1956 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of the order amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Appalachian marketing area in the manner set forth in the attached amending order is approved or favored by producers as defined in the order, and as proposed hereby to be amended, who during such representative period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area as defined in the order and as proposed hereby to be amended.

The same month (June 1956) is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of an order regulating the handling of milk in the Bluefield marketing area in the manner set forth in the attached order is approved or favored by producers who, during such period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area specified in such marketing order.

§ 1012.40 Skim milk and butterfat to be classified. The skim milk and butterfat at fluid milk plants, which is required to be reported pursuant to § 1012.30 shall be classified each month by the market administrator, pursuant to the provisions of §§ 1012.41 through 1012.46.

§ 1012.41 Classes of utilization. Subject to the conditions set forth in §§ 1012.43 and 1012.44, the classes of utilization shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Class I milk shall be all skim milk (including concentrated and reconstituted skim milk) and butterfat (1) disposed of in the form of milk, skim milk, buttermilk, milk drinks (plain or flavored), cream (except frozen cream) and any mixture in fluid form of skim milk and cream (except sterilized products in hermetically sealed containers, ice cream mix, and eggnog); and (2) not accounted for as Class II milk;

(b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat (1) used to produce any product other than those designated as Class I milk pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section; (2) contained in (skim milk only) any product disposed of for livestock feed; (3) dumped (skim milk only) during the months of April, May, June or July: Provided, That the market administrator is given not less than 6 hours' notice of the handler's intention to make such disposition; (4) contained in inventory of products designated as Class I milk pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section on hand at the end of the month; and (5) in shrinkage assigned to Class II pursuant to § 1012.42.

§ 1012.42 Shrinkage. The market administrator shall determine the assignment of shrinkage to Class II milk as follows:

(a) Determine the total shrinkage of butterfat and skim milk in the fluid milk plant(s) of the handler;

(b) Multiply the pounds of skim milk and butterfat in producer milk (except milk diverted pursuant to § 1012.11) and other source milk by 0.02;

(c) Multiply the pounds of butterfat and skim milk, respectively, determined pursuant to paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, whichever is less, by the percentage of butterfat and skim milk classified pursuant to § 1012.41 (a) and (b) (1) (except shrinkage determined pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section) which is in Class II milk. The resulting amounts of skim milk and butterfat shall be classified as Class II milk; and

(d) Assign the shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat classified as Class II milk pro rata to producer milk and other source milk.

§ 1012.43 Responsibility of handlers and reclassification of milk. (a) All skim milk and butterfat shall be Class I milk unless the handler who first receives such skim milk or butterfat can prove to the market administrator that such skim milk or butterfat should be classified otherwise;

(b) Any skim milk or butterfat shall be reclassified if verification by the market administrator discloses that the original classification was incorrect.

§ 1012.44 Transfers. Skim milk or butterfat disposed of from a fluid milk plant shall be classified:

(a) As Class I milk if transferred in the form of products designated as Class I milk in § 1012.41 (a) (1) to a fluid milk plant of another handler, except a producer-handler, unless utilization as Class II milk is claimed by both handlers in the reports submitted by them to the market administrator pursuant to § 1012.30: Provided, That the skim milk or butterfat so assigned to Class II milk shall be limited to the amount thereof remaining in Class II milk in the plant of the transferee-handler after the subtraction of other source milk pursuant to § 1012.46, and any additional amounts of such skim milk or butterfat shall be assigned to Class I milk: And provided further, That if either or both handlers have received other source milk, the skim milk or butterfat so transferred shall be classified at both plants so as to allocate the greatest possible Class I milk utilization to the producer milk of both handlers.

(b) As Class I milk if transferred to a producer-handler in the form of products designated as Class I milk in § 1012.41 (a) (1);

(c) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted in bulk form as milk or skim milk to a nonfluid plant located in the marketing area or not more than 200 miles by the shortest highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, from the City Hall, Bluefield, West Virginia, unless:

(1) The handler claims Class II on the basis of utilization mutually indicated in writing to the market administrator by both buyer and seller on or before the 6th day after the end of the month within which such transaction occurred;

(2) The buyer maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at his plant which are made available, if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(3) Not less than an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was actually used as Class II milk in such buyer's plant.

(d) As Class I milk if transferred in bulk form as cream to a nonfluid plant unless:

(1) Such cream is transferred without Grade A certification of any health authority;

(2) The handler claims Class II in his report submitted to the market administrator pursuant to § 1012.30 on or before the 6th day after the end of the month within which such transaction occurred;

(3) The buyer maintains books and records showing the utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at his plant which are made available, if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification; and

(4) Not less than an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was actually used as Class II milk in such buyer's plant.

§ 1012.45 Computation of the skim milk and butterfat in each class. For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and for other obvious errors, the reports of receipts and utilization for the fluid milk plants of each handler and shall compute the pounds of butterfat and skim milk in Class I milk and Class II milk for such handler: Provided, That if any of the water contained in the milk from which a product is made is removed before the product is utilized or disposed of by a handler, the pounds of skim milk used or disposed of in such product shall be considered to be an amount equivalent to the nonfat milk solids contained in such product, plus all of the water originally associated with such solids.

§ 1012.46 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified. After making the computations pursuant to § 1012.45, the market administrator shall determine the classification of producer milk for each handler as follows:

(a) Skim milk shall be allocated in the following manner:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk assigned to producer milk pursuant to § 1012.42 (d);

(2) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk (that derived from milk priced under another Federal order to be subtracted last): Provided, That if the receipts of skim milk in other source milk are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, an amount equal to the difference shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(3) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk contained in inventory of products designated as Class I milk pursuant to § 1012.41 (a) (1) on hand at the beginning of the month: Provided, That if the pounds of skim milk in such inventory are greater than the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk, an amount equal to the difference shall be subtracted from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk;

(4) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class the skim milk received from the fluid milk plants of other handlers in the form of products designated as Class I milk in § 1012.41 (a) (1), according to its classification as determined pursuant to § 1012.44 (a);

(5) Add to the remaining pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; and

(6) If the remaining pounds of skim milk in both classes exceed the pounds of skim milk contained in producer milk, subtract such excess from the remaining pounds of skim milk in series beginning with Class II milk. Any amount so subtracted shall be known as "overage."

(b) Butterfat shall be allocated in accordance with the same procedure outlined for skim milk in paragraph (a) of this section;

(c) Determine the weighted average butterfat content of the Class I and Class II milk allocated to producer milk.

MINIMUM PRICES

§ 1012.50 Basic formula price. The highest of the prices computed pursuant to paragraph (a) or (b) of this section and § 1012.51 (b), rounded to the nearest whole cent, shall be known as the basic formula price.

(a) To the average of the basic or field prices per hundredweight reported to have been paid or to be paid for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department of Agriculture:

§ 1012.51 Class prices. Subject to the provisions of §§ 1012.52 and 1012.53, the class prices per hundredweight for the month shall be as follows:

(a) Class I milk price. For each month during the eighteen-month period following the effective date of this order the Class I milk price shall be the basic formula price for the preceding month, plus $1.45 during the months of April, May and June; $1.70 during the months of March and July; and plus $2.10 during all other months.

(b) Class II milk price. For the months of March through August, the Class II milk price shall be the price computed pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, and for all other months the higher of the prices computed pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph:

(1) The average of the basic (or field) prices reported to have been paid or to be paid per hundredweight for milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department of Agriculture on or before the 6th day after the end of the month:

(2) Add the amounts obtained pursuant to subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph, and subtract 75 cents therefrom.

(i) Multiply the Chicago butter price by 4.8;

(ii) Multiply by 8.2 the weighted average of carlot prices per pound for spray process nonfat dry milk solids, for human consumption, f. o. b. manufacturing plants in the Chicago area, as published for the period from the 26th day of the immediately preceding month through the 25th day of the current month, by the Department of Agriculture.

§ 1012.52 Butterfat differential to handlers. For milk containing more or less than 4.0 percent butterfat, the class prices for the month calculated pursuant to § 1012.51 shall be increased or decreased, respectively, for each one-tenth percent butterfat at the appropriate rate determined as follows:

(a) Class I price. Multiply the Chicago butter price by 0.12, and round to the nearest one-tenth cent.

(b) Class II price. Multiply the Chicago butter price by 0.11, and round to the nearest one-tenth cent.

§ 1012.53 Location differentials to handlers. For that milk which is received from producers at a fluid milk plant located 50 miles or more from the nearest of the following listed places, by shortest hard surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, and which is transferred in the form of products designated as Class I milk in § 1012.41 (a) (1) and assigned to Class I milk pursuant to the proviso of this section, or otherwise classified Class I milk, the price specified in § 1012.51 (a) shall be reduced at the rate of 10 cents per hundredweight for a distance of not less than 50 miles but less than 60 miles, plus 1.5 cents per hundredweight additional for each 10 miles, or fraction thereof, beyond 60 miles, according to the location of the fluid milk plant where such milk is received from producers:

County Courthouse, Princeton, W. Va.
City Hall, Bluefield, W. Va.
City Hall, Welch, W. Va.

Provided, That for the purpose of calculating such location differential, products so designated as Class I milk which are transferred between fluid milk plants shall be assigned to any remainder of Class II milk in the transferee-plant after making the calculations prescribed in § 1012.46 (a) (1) and (2), and the comparable steps in § 1012.46 (b) for such plant, and after deducting from such remainder an amount equal to 0.05 times the skim milk and butterfat contained in the producer milk received at the transferee-plant, such assignment to transferor plants to be made in sequence according to the location differential applicable at each plant, beginning with the plant having the largest differential.

§ 1012.54 Use of equivalent prices. If for any reason a price quotation required by this part for computing class prices or for other purposes is not available in the manner described, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to the price which is required.

APPLICATION OF PROVISIONS

§ 1012.60 Producer-handlers. Sections 1012.40 through 1012.46, 1012.50 through 1012.53, 1012.70 through 1012.72, 1012.80 through 1012.83, and 1012.90 through 1012.96 shall not apply to a producer-handler.

§ 1012.61 Plants subject to other Federal orders. A plant specified in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section shall be considered as a nonfluid milk plant except that the operator of such plant shall, with respect to the total receipts and utilization or disposition of skim milk and butterfat at the plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require (in lieu of the reports required pursuant to § 1012.30), and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

(a) Any plant qualified pursuant to § 1012.7 (a) which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act unless the Secretary determines that a greater volume of Class I milk is disposed of from such plant to retail or wholesale outlets (except fluid milk plants) in the Bluefield marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order.

(b) Any plant qualified pursuant to § 1012.7 (b) or (c) which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act unless such plant has qualified as a fluid milk plant pursuant to § 1012.7 (c) for each month during the preceding August through January period.

DETERMINATION OF UNIFORM PRICE

each class by the applicable class price; (d) add or subtract, as the case may be, an amount necessary to correct errors discovered by the market administrator in the verification of reports of such handler of his receipts and utilization of skim milk and butterfat for previous months; and (e) add the amount obtained in multiplying the difference between the Class II price for the preceding month and the Class I price for the current month by the hundredweight of producer milk classified in Class II during the preceding month, or the hundredweight of milk subtracted from Class I pursuant to § 1012.46 (a) (3) and (b), whichever is less.

§ 1012.71 Computation of uniform prices for handlers. For each of the months of August through March the market administrator shall compute a uniform price for the producer milk received by each handler as follows:

(a) Add to the amount computed pursuant to § 1012.70 the total of the location differential deductions to be made pursuant to § 1012.92;

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat content of producer milk received by such handler is less or more, respectively, than 4.0 percent, an amount computed by multiplying such difference by the butterfat differential to producers, and multiplying the result by the total hundredweight of producer milk;

(c) Add the amount represented by any deductions made for eliminating fractions of a cent in computing the uniform price(s) for such handler for the preceding month;

(d) Divide the resulting amount by the total hundredweight of producer milk received by such handler. The result, less any fraction of a cent per hundredweight, shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, f. o. b. market.

§ 1012.72 Computation of the uniform prices for base milk and for excess milk for handlers. For each of the months of April through July, the market administrator shall compute uniform prices for base milk and for excess milk received by each handler as follows:

(a) Add to the amount computed pursuant to § 1012.70 the total of the location differential deductions made pursuant to § 1012.92;

(b) Add or subtract for each one-tenth percent that the average butterfat content of producer milk received by such handler is less or more, respectively, than 4.0 percent, an amount computed by multiplying such difference by the butterfat differential to producers, and multiplying the result by the total hundredweight of producer milk;

(c) Add the amount represented by any deductions made for eliminating fractions of a cent in computing the uniform price(s) for such handler for the preceding month;

(d) Subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph (e) of this section, compute the value of excess milk received by such handler from producers by multiplying the quantity of such milk by the Class II price;

(e) Compute the value of base milk received by such handler from producers by subtracting the value obtained pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section from the value obtained pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section: Provided, That if such resulting value is greater than an amount computed by multiplying the pounds of such base milk by the Class I price, such value in excess thereof shall be added to the value computed pursuant to paragraph (d) of this section to the extent that the excess price shall not exceed the base price as calculated herein. Any additional value remaining shall be prorated to the respective volumes of base milk and excess milk.

(f) Divide the value obtained pursuant to paragraph (e) of this section by the hundredweight of base milk. This result, less any fraction of a cent per hundredweight, shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for base milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content, f. o. b. market; and

(g) Divide the sum of the values obtained pursuant to paragraph (d) and the proviso of paragraph (e) of this section by the hundredweight of excess milk in producer milk. This result, less any fraction of a cent per hundredweight, shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for excess milk of 4.0 percent butterfat content.

BASE RATING

§ 1012.80 Determination of daily base. The daily base of each producer shall be calculated by the market administrator as follows: Divide the total pounds of milk received by all handlers from such producer during the months of September through February by the number of days from the first day milk is received from such producer during said months to the last day of February, inclusive, but not less than 120 days: Provided, That the daily base of each producer for April, May, June and July 1957 shall be calculated by the market administrator as follows: Divide the total pounds of milk received by all handlers from such producer during the five-month period October 1956 through February 1957 by the number of days from the first day milk is received from such producer during said period to the last day of the period, inclusive, but not less than 90 days.

§ 1012.81 Computation of base. The base of each producer to be applied during the months of April through July shall be a quantity of milk calculated by the market administrator in the following manner: Multiply the daily base of such producer by the number of days such producer's milk was received by such handler during the month: Provided, That if the producer's milk was not received on a daily basis, the daily base shall be multiplied by the number of days during the month for which the milk production of such producer was received by such handler.

§ 1012.82 Base rules. The following rules shall apply in connection with the establishment of bases:

(a) A base shall be assigned to the producer for whose account milk is received at a fluid milk plant during the months of September through February: Provided, That a base computed for April, May, June and July, 1957 shall be assigned to the producer for whose account milk is received at a fluid milk plant during the months of October 1956 through February 1957.

(b) Bases may be transferred by notifying the market administrator in writing before the last day of any month for which such base is to be transferred to the person named in such notice only as follows:

(1) In the event of the death, retirement, or entry into military service of a producer, the entire base may be transferred to a member of such producer's immediate family who carries on the dairy operations.

(2) If a base is held jointly and such joint holding is terminated, the entire base may be transferred to one of the joint holders.

(3) The entire daily base of a producer may be removed from one handler to another handler regulated under this order.

§ 1012.83 Announcement of established bases. On or before April 1 of each year, the market administrator shall notify each producer and the handler receiving milk from such producer of the daily base established by such producer.

PAYMENTS

§ 1012.90 Payments to producers. Each handler shall make payment to each producer for milk received from such producer as follows:

(a) On or before the 15th day after the end of each month, each handler shall make payment to each producer for milk which was received from him during the month at not less than the uniform price computed pursuant to § 1012.71 for the months of August through March, and at not less than the uniform price for base milk computed pursuant to § 1012.72 with respect to base milk received from such producer and at not less than the uniform price for excess milk computed pursuant to § 1012.72 with respect to excess milk received from such producer for the months of April through July, subject to the following adjustments: (1) The butterfat differential pursuant to § 1012.91, (2) the location differential pursuant to § 1012.92, (3) marketing service deductions pursuant to § 1012.94, (4) proper deductions authorized in writing by the producer, and (5) adjustments for errors in calculating payment to such individual producer for past months: Provided, That with respect to producers whose milk was caused to be delivered to such handler by a cooperative association which is authorized to collect payment for such milk, the handler shall, if requested by the cooperative association, pay such cooperative association on or before the 13th day after the end of each month, an amount equal to the sum of the individual payments otherwise payable to such producers in accordance with this paragraph;

(b) In making the payments to producers pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, each handler shall furnish each producer from whom he had received milk with a supporting statement in such form that it may be retained by the producer, which shall show for each month:

(1) The month and identity of the handler and of the producer;

(2) The daily and total pounds and the average butterfat content of milk received from such producer;

(3) The minimum rate or rates at which payment to such producer is required pursuant to the order;

(4) The rate which is used in making the payment, if such rate is other than the applicable minimum rate;

(5) The amount or the rate per hundredweight and nature of each deduction claimed by the handler; and

(6) The net amount of payment to such producer.

§ 1012.91 Butterfat differential to producers. The applicable uniform prices to be paid each producer pursuant to § 1012.90 shall be increased or decreased for each one-tenth of one percent which the butterfat content of his milk is above or below 4.0 percent, respectively, at the rate determined by multiplying the pounds of butterfat in the producer milk of such handler allocated to Class I and Class II milk pursuant to § 1012.46 (b) by the respective butterfat differential for each class, dividing the sum of such values by the total pounds of such butterfat, and rounding the resultant figure to the nearest one-tenth of a cent.

§ 1012.92 Location differential to producers. In making payment to producers pursuant to § 1012.90, the applicable uniform prices to be paid for producer milk received at a fluid milk plant located 50 miles or more from the nearest of the following listed places, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, shall be reduced according to the location of the fluid milk plant where such milk was received at the following rate: County Courthouse, Princeton, West Virginia; City Hall, Bluefield, West Virginia; or City Hall, Welch, West Virginia.

Distance in miles	Rate per hundredweight (cents)
50 but not less than 60	10
For each additional 10 miles (or fraction thereof) an additional	1.5

§ 1012.93 Adjustment of accounts. Whenever audit by the market administrator of any handler's reports, books, records, accounts, or verification of weights and butterfat tests of milk or milk products disclose errors, resulting in money due a producer or the market administrator from such handler, or due such handler from the market administrator, the market administrator shall notify such handler of any amount so due, and payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payments, as set forth in the provisions under which such error occurred.

§ 1012.94 Marketing services. (a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler, in making payments to producers for milk (other than milk of his own production) pursuant to § 1012.90, shall deduct 6 cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding 6 cents per hundredweight, as may be prescribed by the Secretary, and shall pay such deductions to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of each month. Such moneys shall be used by the market administrator to provide market information and to check the accuracy of the testing and weighing of their milk for producers who are not receiving such service from a cooperative association.

(b) In the case of producers who are members of a cooperative association which the Secretary has determined is actually performing the services set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, each handler shall make, in lieu of the deductions specified in paragraph (a) of this section, such deductions from the payments, to be made to such producers as may be authorized by the membership agreement or marketing contract between such cooperative association and such producers on or before the 15th day after the end of each month, and pay such deductions to the cooperative association of which such producers are members, furnishing a statement showing the amount of any such deductions and the amount and average butterfat test of milk for which such deduction was computed for each producer. In lieu of this statement, a handler may authorize the market administrator to furnish such cooperative association the information reported for such producers pursuant to § 1012.90 (b).

§ 1012.95 Expense of administration. As his prorata share of the expense of administration of this part, each handler shall pay to the market administrator on or before the 15th day after the end of the month for such month 5 cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding 5 cents per hundredweight, as the Secretary may prescribe with respect to all (a) receipts of producer milk including such handler's own production, (b) other source milk at a fluid milk plant which is classified as Class I milk and, (c) Class I disposed of during the month on routes (including routes operated by vendors) to retail or wholesale outlets (except fluid milk plants) located in the marketing area from a nonfluid milk plant.

§ 1012.96 Termination of obligations. The provisions of this section shall apply to any obligation under this part for the payment of money.

(a) The obligation of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this part shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the calendar month during which the market administrator received the handler's utilization report on the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The month(s) during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists, was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to an association of producers, the name of such producer(s) or association of producers, or if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this part, to make available to the market administrator or his representatives all books and records required by this part to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the calendar month following the month during which all such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representatives.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this part to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or wilful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this part shall terminate two years after the end of the calendar month during which the milk involved in the claim was received if an underpayment is claimed, or two years after the end of the calendar month during which the payment (including deduction or set-off by the market administrator) was made by the handler if a refund on such payment is claimed, unless such handler within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

EFFECTIVE TIME, SUSPENSION OR TERMINATION

§ 1012.100 Effective time. The provisions of this part or any amendment to this part shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended or terminated pursuant to § 1012.101.

§ 1012.101 Suspension or termination. The Secretary may suspend or terminate this part or any provisions of this part whenever he finds this part or any provisions of this part obstructs or does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. This part shall terminate, in any event, whenever the provisions of the act authorizing it cease to be in effect.

§ 1012.102 Continuing obligations. If, upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, there are any obligations thereunder, the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any person (including the market administrator), such further acts shall be performed notwithstanding such suspension or termination.

§ 1012.103 Liquidation. Upon the suspension or termination of the provisions of this part, except this section, the market administrator, or such liquidating agent as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, dispose of all property in his possession or control, including accounts receivable, and execute and deliver all assignment or other instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate any such disposition. If a liquidating agent is so designated, all assets, books, and records of the market administrator shall be transferred promptly to such liquidating agent. If, upon such liquidation, the funds on hand exceed the amounts required to pay outstanding obligations of the office of the market administrator and to pay necessary expenses of liquidation and distribution, such excess shall be distributed to contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

The proposed §§ 145.15 through 145.32 include, in addition to other proposed amendments, the conference recommendation that Performance Tested Parent Stock be established as a program separate from ROP. Due to the complexity of the revisions, additions and redesignations involved by this recommendation, the publication of these sections in their entirety was necessary for clarity.

Any person who wishes to submit written data, views, or arguments concerning the proposed amendments of the National Poultry and Turkey Improvement Plans may do so by filing them with the Chief, Animal and Poultry Husbandry Research Branch, Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Maryland, within 30 days after publication hereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

STANOLIND OIL AND GAS CO.

ORDER PERMITTING CHANGE IN RATES DUE TO REDUCTION IN TEXAS OCCUPATION TAX AND SUSPENDING PROPOSED INCREASE IN RATES

On July 30, 1956 Stanolind Oil and Gas Company (Applicant) submitted for filing proposed changes in its rate schedules presently in effect subject to refund for sales of natural gas subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. The proposed changes are contained in the following designated filings which are proposed to become effective on the date shown:

Description, Purchaser, Rate Schedule Designation, and Effective Date[1]

Notice of change dated July 24, 1956; Texas Illinois Natural Gas Pipeline Company; Supplement No. 7 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 51; Sept. 1, 1956.

Notice of change dated July 24, 1956; Texas Illinois Natural Gas Pipeline Company; Supplement No. 11 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 60; Sept. 1, 1956.

By order issued January 31, 1956, in Docket No. G–9933, the Commission suspended the increase in rates and charges proposed by the Applicant in Supplement No. 6 to its FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 51 and in Supplement No. 9 to its FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 60. Such increased rates and charges are presently in effect subject to refund if subsequently so ordered by the Commission.

Applicant's July 30 1956, filings propose (1) to give effect in the rates being collected subject to refund to the reduction in the Texas occupation tax as of September 1, 1956; and (2) to reflect as of the same date a periodic increase in the price of gas sold Texas Illinois Natural Gas Pipeline Company. The increased rates and charges proposed by the periodic increase have not been shown to be justified, and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory or preferential or otherwise unlawful.

[1] The stated effective date is the first day after expiration of the required thirty days' notice, or the effective date proposed by Applicant, if later.

The Commission finds:

(1) It is appropriate and in the public interest that the change in rates proposed in Supplement No. 7 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 51 and Supplement No. 11 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 60 to give effect to the change in the Texas occupation tax should be permitted to become effective as of September 1, 1956; provided, however, that such change in rates shall in no way amend, modify or alter the rate suspension proceedings instituted in Docket No. G–9933.

(2) It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of the increased rates and charges proposed in Supplement No. 7 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 51 and Supplement No. 11 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 60 and that said supplements insofar as they pertain to periodic rate increases be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter ordered.

The Commission orders:

(A) Supplement No. 7 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 51 and Supplement No. 11 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 60, insofar as each provides for a change in rate to give effect to the change in Texas occupation tax, hereby are permitted to become effective as of September 1, 1956, subject to the proviso contained in Finding (1) above.

(B) Pursuant to the authority contained in sections 4, 5, 15 and 16 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's general rules and regulations, a public hearing be held, upon a date to be fixed by notice from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of the proposed increased rates and charges contained in Supplement No. 7 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 51 and Supplement No. 11 to Applicant's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 60; and pending such hearing and decision thereon, said Supplements insofar as they relate to the proposed periodic increased rates and charges hereby are suspended in Docket No. G–11000 and the use thereof deferred until February 1, 1957, and until such further time as they are made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(C) Neither the supplements hereby suspended nor the rate schedules sought to be altered thereby, shall be changed until this proceeding has been disposed of or until the period of suspension has expired, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(D) Interested State commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure.

Issued: August 31, 1956.

By the Commission.[1]

[SEAL] LEON M. FUQUAY,
Secretary.

[1] Commissioner Digby dissenting as to suspension.

PROCLAMATION 3154

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK, 1956

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS since the founding of our Nation, our citizens have zealously worked and sacrificed to provide schools and colleges for the education of our children, our youths, and our adults; and

WHEREAS the White House Conference on Education held in 1955, with delegates from all the States and Territories, representing millions of citizens of all races, faiths, and walks of life, re-emphasized the needs of the Nation for more and better schools and colleges to the end that our people through improved education may make a greater contribution to the progress and future welfare of America, and to the peace and well-being of the world; and

WHEREAS the setting aside of a special education week each year provides a fitting opportunity for parents and educators and the public generally to visit schools and educational institutions, to express their appreciation of the work of our teachers and school officials, and to exchange views upon educational problems and progress:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the period from November 11 to November 17, 1956, as American Education Week; and I urge the fullest possible participation in the observance of that week by the people throughout the United States. This week of dedication to education and to the efforts and achievements of teachers, school and college administrators, and others in this important area of public service is especially significant during this first year of appraisal, in terms of local community needs and required action, of the recommendations made by the White House Conference on Education. Let us all stress the need for good schools to keep America strong.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

DONE at the City of Washington this fifth day of September in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and [SEAL] fifty-six, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighty-first.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

By the President:

JOHN FOSTER DULLES,
The Secretary of State.

GENERAL

§ 725.811 Basis and purpose. The regulations contained in §§ 725.811 to 725.828 are issued pursuant to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, and govern the establishment of 1957 farm acreage allotments and normal yields for burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured, and Virginia Sun-cured tobacco. The purpose of the regulations in §§ 725.811 to 725.828 is to provide the procedure for allocating, on an acreage basis, the national marketing quota for burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured, and Virginia Sun-cured tobacco for the 1957–58 marketing year among farms and for determining normal yields. Prior to preparing the regulations in §§ 725.811 to 725.828, public notice (21 F. R. 5116) was given in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003). The data, views, and recommendations pertaining to the regulations in §§ 725.811 to 725.828, which were submitted have been duly considered within the limits permitted by the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended.

§ 725.812 Definitions. As used in §§ 725.811 to 725.828, and in all instructions, forms, and documents in connection therewith the words and phrases defined in this section shall have the meanings herein assigned to them unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires.

(1) "Community committee" means the persons elected within a community as the community committee pursuant to regulations governing the selection and functions of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county and community committees.

(2) "County committee" means the persons elected within a county as the county committee pursuant to regulations governing the selection and functions of Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county and community committees.

(c) "Deputy Administrator" means the Deputy Administrator or the Acting Deputy Administrator for Production Adjustment, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

(d) "Farm" means all adjacent or nearby farm land under the same ownership which is operated by one person, including also:

(2) Any field-rented tract (whether operated by the same or another person) which, together with any other land included in the farm, constitutes a unit with respect to the rotation of crops.

A farm shall be regarded as located in the county in which the principal dwelling is situated, or if there is no dwelling thereon, it shall be regarded as located in the county in which the major portion of the farm is located.

(e) "New farm" means a farm on which tobacco will be harvested in 1957 for the first time since 1951. If in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment was determined for the farm, any acreage of tobacco harvested in 1955 or 1956, respectively, shall not be considered as harvested acreage in determining whether the farm is a new farm. The term "harvested" as used in this part shall include the meaning described in paragraph (c) of § 725.816 with respect to 1956 harvested acreage.

(f) "Old farm" means a farm on which tobacco was harvested in one or more of the five years 1952 through 1956. If in accordance with applicable law and regulations, no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment was determined for the farm, any acreage of tobacco harvested in 1955 or 1956, respectively, shall not be considered as harvested acreage in determining whether the farm is an old farm. The term "harvested" as used in this part shall include the meaning described in paragraph (c) of § 725.816 with respect to 1956 harvested acreage.

(g) "Cropland" means farm land which in 1956 was tilled or was in regular crop rotation, including also land which was established in permanent vegetative cover, other than trees, since 1953 and which was classified as cropland at the time of seeding, but excluding (1) bearing orchards and vineyards (except the acreage of cropland therein), (2) plowable noncrop open pasture, and (3) any land which constitutes or will constitute, if tillage is continued, an erosion hazard to the community.

(h) "Community cropland factor" means that percentage determined by dividing the total cropland for all old farms in the community in 1956 into the total of the 1956 tobacco acreage allotment for such old farms: Provided, That (1) if it is determined that the cropland factors for all communities in the county are substantially the same, the county committee, with the approval of the State committee, may consider the entire county as one community, and (2) if there is only one farm in the county on which tobacco is grown, the community cropland factors of the nearest community in which tobacco is grown shall be used in determining the acreage indicated by cropland.

(i) "Acreage indicated by cropland" means that acreage determined by multiplying the number of acres of cropland in the farm by the community cropland factor.

(j) "Operator" means the person who is in charge of the supervision and conduct of the farming operations on the entire farm.

(2) Any tobacco that has the same characteristics, and corresponding qualities, colors, and lengths as either burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured or Virginia sun-cured tobacco shall be considered respectively either burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured or Virginia sun-cured tobacco regardless of any factors of historical or geographical nature which cannot be determined by examination of the tobacco.

§ 725.813 Extent of calculations and rule of fractions. All acreage allotments shall be rounded to the nearest one hundredth acre. The rule of fractions will be to round upward fractions of more than five-thousandths and to round downward fractions of five-thousandths or less (i. e., 0.0050 would be 0.00, and 0.0051 would be 0.01).

§ 725.814 Instructions and forms. The Director, Tobacco Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, shall cause to be prepared and issued such forms as are necessary, and shall cause to be prepared such instructions with respect to internal management as are necessary for carrying out the regulations in this part. ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS AND NORMAL YIELDS FOR OLD FARMS

§ 725.816 Determination of 1957 preliminary acreage allotments for old farms. The 1957 preliminary acreage allotment for an old tobacco farm shall be the 1956 farm acreage allotment with the following exceptions:

(a) If the harvested acreage (as that term is explained in paragraph (c) of this section) of flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured or Virginia sun-cured tobacco on the farm in each of the three years 1954–56 was less than 75 percent of the farm acreage allotment for each of such respective years, the preliminary allotment shall be the larger of (1) the largest acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in any one of such three years, or (2) the average acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in the five years 1952–56: Provided, That any 1957 preliminary allotment shall not exceed the 1956 farm acreage allotment or be less than 0.01 acre.

(b) If the harvested acreage (as that term is explained in paragraph (c) of this section) of burley tobacco on the farm in each of the five years 1952–56 was less than 50 percent of the farm acreage allotment for each of such respective years, the 1957 preliminary allotment shall be the largest acreage of tobacco harvested on the farm in any one of such five years, but not less than 0.01 acre.

(c) For the purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, the 1956 harvested acreage shall include any acreage on the farm applicable to the kind of tobacco involved which is devoted in 1956 to participation in the Acreage Reserve Program or the Conservation Reserve Program. Also, for such purposes, the 1956 harvested acreage shall be deemed to be the 1956 farm acreage allotment in any case, except involving flue-cured tobacco, in which (1) the tobacco planted acreage in 1956 was less than the acreage allotment for such farm, (2) the owner or operator of such farm notified the county committee not later than August 1, 1956, that he desired to preserve such allotment; and (3) no quantity of excess tobacco produced on the farm prior to January 1, 1956, and carried over or stored to postpone or avoid payment of penalty, has been reduced because the 1956 acreage allotment was not fully planted.

(d) If the county and State committees determine that a farm has been retired from agricultural production, no 1957 preliminary acreage allotment (or 1957 farm tobacco acreage allotment) shall be determined for such farm: Provided, That this paragraph shall not preclude the determination of a preliminary acreage allotment for an old farm returned to agricultural production.

(e) For the purpose of determining 1957 preliminary acreage allotments, the 1956 farm acreage allotment shall mean the correctly determined 1956 farm acreage allotment prior to reduction, if any, because of a violation of the tobacco marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year, except that the 1956 farm acreage allotment as referred to in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) of this section shall mean the 1956 alltoment after any such reduction.

§ 725.817 1957 old farm tobacco acreage allotment. The preliminary allotments calculated for all old farms in the State pursuant to § 725.816 shall be adjusted uniformly so that the total of such allotments for old farms plus the acreage available for adjusting acreage allotments for old farms, correction of errors, and for allotments for overlooked old farms pursuant to § 725.818 shall not exceed the State acreage allotment: Provided, That in the case of burley tobacco, the farm acreage allotment shall not be less than the smallest of (a) the 1956 allotment, (b) fifty-hundredths of an acre, or (c) 10 percent of the cropland in the farm: Provided further, That no 1956 burley tobacco allotment of seventy-hundredths of an acre or less shall be reduced more than one-tenth of an acre, and no 1956 burley tobacco farm acreage allotment of eight-tenths of an acre or more will be reduced to less than six-tenths of an acre.

§ 725.818 Adjustment of acreage allotments for old farms, correction of errors, and allotments for overlooked old farms. Notwithstanding the limitations contained in § 725.816, the individual 1957 farm acreage allotment heretofore established for an old farm may be increased if the county committee justifies such increase to the satisfaction of the State committee or its representative as being necessary to establish an allotment for such farm which is fair and equitable in relation to the allotments for other old farms in the community, on the basis of the past acreage of tobacco, making due allowances for drought, flood, hail, other abnormal weather conditions, plant bed, and other diseases; land, labor and equipment available for the production of tobacco; crop rotation practices; and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco. The acreage available in the State for increasing allotments as above described under this section, correction of errors, and providing acreage allotments for overlooked farms shall not exceed one-tenth of one percent of the total acreage allotted to all tobacco farms in the State for the 1956–57 marketing year.

§ 725.819 Reduction of acreage allotment for violation of the marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year. (a) If tobacco was marketed or was permitted to be marketed in any marketing year as having been produced on the acreage allotment for any farm which in fact was produced on a different farm, the acreage allotments established for both such farms for 1957 shall be reduced, as provided in this section, except that such reduction for any such farm shall not be made if the county and State committees determine that no person connected with such farm caused, aided, or acquiesced in such marketing.

(b) The operator of the farm shall furnish complete and accurate proof of the disposition of all tobacco produced on the farm at such time and in such manner as will insure payment of the penalty due at the time the tobacco is marketed and, in the event of failure for any reason to furnish such proof, the acreage allotment for the farm shall be reduced, except that if the farm operator establishes to the satisfaction of the county and State committees that failure to furnish such proof of disposition was unintentional on his part and that he could not reasonably have been expected to furnish accurate proof of disposition, reduction of the allotment will not be required if the failure to furnish proof of disposition is corrected and payment of all additional penalty is made.

(c) If any producer files, or aids or acquiesces in the filing of, any false report with respect to the acreage of tobacco grown on the farm in 1956, the acreage allotment for the farm shall be reduced, as provided in this section, except that if each producer on the farm establishes to the satisfaction of the county and State committees that the filing of, or aiding or acquiescing in the filing of, the false report was unintentional on his part and that he could not reasonably have been expected to know that the report was false, reduction of the allotment will not be required if the report is corrected and payment of all additional penalty is made.

(d) Any such reduction shall be made with respect to the 1957 farm acreage allotment, provided it can be made no later than (1) April 1, 1957 in the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia or (2) May 1, 1957 in all other States. If the reduction cannot be so made effective with respect to the 1957 allotment, such reduction shall be made with respect to the farm acreage allotment next established for the farm where the reduction can be made no later than corresponding dates to be specified in a subsequent year. This section shall not apply if the allotment for any prior year was reduced on account of the same violation.

(e) The amount of reduction in the 1957 allotment shall be that percentage which the amount of tobacco involved in the violation is of the respective farm marketing quota for the farm for the year in which the violation occurred. Where the amount of such tobacco involved in the violation equals or exceeds the amount of the farm marketing quota the amount of reduction shall be 100 percent. The amount of tobacco determined by the county committee to have been falsely identified, or for which satisfactory proof of disposition has not been furnished, or with respect to which a false acreage report was filed, shall be considered the amount of tobacco involved in the violation. If the actual production of tobacco on the farm is not known, the county committee shall estimate such actual production, taking into consideration the condition of the tobacco crop during production, if known, and the actual yield per acre of tobacco on other farms in the locality on which the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco are similar: Provided, That the estimate of such actual production of tobacco on the farm shall not exceed the harvested acreage of tobacco on the farm multiplied by the average actual yield on farms in the locality on which the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco are similar. The actual yield of tobacco on the farm as so estimated by the county committee multiplied by the farm acreage allotment shall be considered the farm marketing quota for the purpose of this section. In determining the amount of tobacco for which satisfactory proof of disposition has not been shown or with respect to which a false acreage report was filed in case the actual production of tobacco on the farm is not known, the amount of tobacco involved in the violation shall be deemed to be the actual production of tobacco on the farm, estimated as above, less the amount of tobacco for which satisfactory proof of disposition has been shown.

(f) If the farm involved in the violation is combined with another farm prior to the reduction, the reduction shall be applied to that portion of the allotment for which a reduction is required under paragraph (a), (b), or (c) of this section.

(g) If the farm involved in the violation has been divided prior to the reduction, the reduction shall be applied to the allotments for the divided farms as required under paragraph (a), (b), or (c) of this section.

§ 725.820 Reallocation of allotments released from farms removed from agricultural production. (a) The allotment determined or which would have been determined for any land which is removed from agricultural production for any purpose because of acquisition by any Federal, State, or other agency having a right of eminent domain shall be placed in a State pool and shall be available to the State committee for use in providing equitable allotments for farms owned or purchased by owners displaced because of acquisition of their farms by such agencies. Upon application to the county committee, within five years from the date of such acquisition of the farm, any owner so displaced shall be entitled to have an allotment for any other farm owned or purchased by him equal to an allotment which would have been determined for such other farm plus the allotment which would have been determined for the farm so acquired: Provided, That such allotment shall not exceed 20 percent of the acreage of cropland on the farm (50 percent of the acreage of cropland on the farm in the case of flue-cured tobacco).

(b) The provisions of this section shall not be applicable if (1) there is any marketing quota penalty due with respect to the marketing of tobacco from the farm or by the owner of the farm at the time of its acquisition by the Federal, State, or other agency; (2) any tobacco produced on such farm has not been accounted for as required by the Secretary; or (3) the allotment next to be established for the farm acquired by the Federal, State, or other agency would have been reduced because of false or improper identification of tobacco produced on or marketed from such farm or due to a false acreage report.

§ 725.821 Farms divided or combined. (a) If land operated as a single farm in 1956 will be operated as two or more farms in 1957, or is otherwise required under the definition of a farm to be divided for 1957, the 1957 tobacco acreage allotment determined or which otherwise would have been determined for the entire farm shall be apportioned among the tracts in the same proportion as the acreage of cropland available for the production of tobacco in each such tract in 1956 bore to the total number of acres of cropland available for the production of tobacco on the entire farm in such year, except that the 1957 tobacco acreage allotment determined, or which otherwise would have been determined, for the entire farm shall, if the farm to be divided for 1957 consists of two or more tracts which were separate and distinct farms before being combined within the past five years (1952–56), be apportioned among the tracts in the same proportion that each contributed to the farm acreage allotment when combined: Provided, That with the recommendation of the county committee and approval of the State committee and with the written agreement of all interested persons, the tobacco acreage allotment determined for a tract under the provisions of this paragraph may be increased or decreased by not more than the larger of one-hundredth of an acre or 10 percent of the 1957 acreage allotment determined for the entire farm with corresponding increases or decreases made in the acreage allotment apportioned to the other tract or tracts.

(b) If two or more farms operated seperately in 1956 are combined and operated in 1957 as a single farm, the 1957 allotment shall be the sum of the 1957 allotments determined for each of the farms comprising the combination, or, in the case of burley tobacco, if smaller, the allotment determined or which would have been determined for the farm as constituted in 1957.

(c) If a farm is to be divided in 1957 in settling an estate, the allotment may be divided among the various tracts in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section or on such other basis as the State committee determines will result in equitable allotments.

§ 725.822 Determination of normal yields for old farms. The county committee will determine a normal yield for each farm for which a 1957 tobacco acreage allotment was established by first obtaining the average of the three highest yields for such farms in any three years during the period 1950–55, or if tobacco was grown in less than three years of such period the yield for one year or the average yield of two years in such period. If in any case the yield so obtained exceeds 125 percent or is less than 80 percent of the county check yield (to be ascertained as hereafter provided) such yield shall be adjusted to the applicable percentage, and any yield may be also adjusted for drought, flood, or other abnormal conditions affecting the yield, but the yield so adjusted shall not exceed 125 percent or be less than 80 percent of the county check yield. If the total production extension for all farms in the county in 1956 obtained by multiplying the 1956 acreage allotment for each farm by the yield so computed for such farm in 1956 varies more than one percent from the total production extension obtained by multiplying the county check yield by the total of all allotted tobacco acreage in the county for 1956, the yield for each farm will then be factored to the extent required to eliminate any variance. Subject to the approval of the State committee, the yields may be further factored to provide a yield for each farm in the county that is not more than 125 percent or less than 80 percent of the county check yield. The yield for the farm thus determined shall be the normal yield for the farm: Provided, That if the farm has been reconstituted since 1950, the normal yield for such farm shall be determined by the county committee by appraisal taking into consideration available yield data for the land involved and yields established as heretofore provided in this section for similar farms in the community. The county check yield shall be determined by the Deputy Administrator on the basis of the average of the three highest yields in the county in any three years during the period 1950–55 adjusted where necessary so as to conform with and, except for factoring, to not exceed 125 percent or be less than 80 percent of the State check yield; such State check yield to be determined by the Deputy Administrator on the basis of the average of the three highest yields in the State in any three years during the period 1950–55, but not to exceed 125 percent or be less than 80 percent of the average of the three high year averages of all States.

ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS AND NORMAL YIELDS FOR NEW FARMS

§ 725.823 Determination of acreage allotments for new farms. (a) The acreage allotment, other than an allotment made under § 725.820, for a new farm shall be that acreage which the county committee with the approval of the State committee determines is fair and reasonable for the farm taking into consideration the past tobacco experience of the farm operator; the land, labor, and equipment available for the production of tobacco; crop rotation practices; and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco: Provided, That the acreage allotment so determined shall not exceed 50 percent of the allotments for old tobacco farms which are similar with respect to land, labor, and equipment available for the production of tobacco, crop rotation practices, and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this section a tobacco acreage allotment shall not be established for any new farm unless each of the following conditions has been met:

(1) The farm operator shall have had experience in growing the kind of tobacco for which an allotment is requested either as a share cropper, tenant, or as a farm operator during two of the past five years: Provided, That a farm operator who was in the armed services after September 16, 1940, shall be deemed to have met the requirements of this subparagraph if he has had such experience during one year either within the five years immediately prior to his entry into the armed services or within the five years immediately following his discharge from the armed services and if he files an application for an allotment within five crop years from date of discharge: And provided further, That production of tobacco on a farm in 1955 or 1956 for which, in accordance with applicable law and regulations no 1955 or 1956 tobacco acreage allotment, respectively, was determined shall not be deemed such experience for any producer.

(2) The farm operator shall live on and obtain 50 percent or more of his livelihood from the farm covered by the application.

(3) The farm covered by the application shall be the only farm owned or operated by the farm operator for which a burley, flue-cured, fire-cured, dark air-cured, or Virginia sun-cured tobacco allotment is established for the 1957–58 marketing year.

(4) The farm shall be operated by the owner thereof.

(5) The farm or any portion thereof shall not have been a part of another farm during any of the five years 1952–56 for which an old farm tobacco acreage allotment was determined, except that this provision shall not of itself make a farm ineligible for a new farm allotment (i) if it is the same farm or a portion of the same farm for which an old farm allotment was cancelled since 1951 due to no tobacco being produced thereon for five years, or (ii) if it was a portion of an old farm during any of the years 1952–56 and at time of division of the farm contained cropland but received no part of the allotment due (a) to division of the allotment on a contribution basis, or (b) to agreement and approval of all interested parties as provided in the section of this part governing divisions and combinations of allotments.

(c) The acreage allotments established as provided in this section shall be subject to such downward adjustment as is necessary to bring such allotments in line with the total acreage available for allotment to all new farms. One-fourth of one percent of the 1957 national marketing quota shall, when converted to an acreage allotment by the use of the national average yield, be available for establishing allotments for new farms. The national average yield shall be the average of the several State yields used in converting the State marketing quotas into State acreage allotments.

§ 725.824 Time for filing application. An application for a new farm allotment shall be filed with the ASC county office prior to February 16, 1957, unless the farm operator was discharged from the armed services subsequent to December 31, 1956, in which case such application shall be filed within a reasonable period prior to planting tobacco on the farm.

§ 725.825 Determination of normal yields for new farms. The normal yield for a new farm shall be that yield per acre which the county committee determines by appraisal, taking into consideration available yield data for the land involved and yields established as provided in § 725.822 for similar farms in the community.

MISCELLANEOUS

§ 725.826 Determination of acreage allotments and normal yield for farms returned to agricultural production. (a) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of §§ 725.811 to 725.825, the acreage allotment for any farm which was acquired by any Federal, State, or other agency having the right of eminent domain, for any purpose and which is returned to agricultural production in 1957, or which was returned to agricultural production in 1956 too late for a 1956 allotment to be established, shall be determined by one of the following methods:

(1) If the land is acquired by the original owner, any part of the acreage allotment which was or could have been established for such farm prior to its retirement from agricultural production which remains in the State pool (adjusted to reflect the uniform increases and decreases in comparable old farm allotments since the farm was acquired) may be established as the 1957 allotment for such farm by transfer from the pool, and if any part of the allotment for such land was transferred by the original owner through the State pool to another farm now owned by him, such owner may elect to transfer all or any part of such allotment (as adjusted) to the farm which is returned to agricultural production.

(2) If the land is acquired by a person other than the original owner, or if all of the allotment was transferred through the State pools to another farm and the original owner does not now own the farm to which the allotment was transferred, the farm returned to agricultural production shall be regarded as a new farm.

(b) The normal yield for any such farm shall be that yield per acre which the county committee determines by appraisal, taking into consideration available yield data for the land involved and yields established as provided in § 725.822 for similar farms in the community.

§ 725.827 Approval of determinations made under §§ 725.811 to 725.826, and notices of farm acreage allotments. (a) All farm acreage allotments and yields shall be determined by the county committee of the county in which the farm is located and shall be reviewed by or on behalf of the State committee, and the State committee may revise or require revision of any determinations made under §§ 725.811 to 725.826. All acreage allotments and yields shall be approved by or on behalf of the State committee and no official notice of acreage allotment shall be mailed to a farm operator until such allotment has been approved by or on behalf of the State committee.

(b) The county committee shall mail a written notice of the farm acreage allotment and marketing quota to the operator of each farm shown by the records of the county committee to be entitled to such allotment. Insofar as practical all allotment notices shall be mailed in time to be received prior to the date of any tobacco marketing quota referendum. The notice to the operator of the farm shall constitute notice to all persons who as operator, landlord, tenant, or sharecropper are interested in the farm for which the allotment is established. A copy of such notice, containing thereon the date of mailing, shall be kept among the records of the county committee, and, upon request, a copy of such notice certified as true and correct shall be furnished without charge to any person interested in the farm in respect to which the allotment is established.

(c) If the records of the county committee indicate that the allotment established for any farm may be changed because of (1) a violation of the marketing quota regulations for a prior marketing year, (2) removal of the farm from agricultural production, (3) division of the farm, or 4) combination of the farm, no notice of such allotment shall be mailed until the proper allotment is determined for the farm by the county committee with the approval of the State committee: Provided, That the notice of allotment for any farm shall, insofar as practicable, be mailed no later than (1) April 1, 1957, in the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, or (2) May 1, 1957, in all other States.

(d) If the county committee determines with the approval of the State committee that the official written notice of the farm acreage allotment issued for any farm erroneously stated the acreage allotment to be larger than the correct allotment, and the county committee also determines that the error was not so gross as to place the operator on notice thereof, and that the operator, relying upon such notice and acting in good faith, planted an acreage of tobacco in excess of the correct farm acreage allotment, the acreage allotment shown on the erroneous notice shall be deemed to be the tobacco acreage allotment for the farm for all purposes in connection with the tobacco marketing quota program for the 1957–58 marketing year, provided the acreage of tobacco harvested from the farm is not in excess of the acreage shown on the erroneous notice. In the event the acreage of tobacco harvested exceeds the farm acreage allotment shown on the erroneous notice, the acreage allotment for the farm as correctly determined and shown on a revised notice of farm acreage allotment and marketing quota shall be the tobacco acreage allotment for the farm for all purposes in connection with the tobacco marketing quota program for the 1957–58 marketing year.

§ 725.828 Application for review. Any producer who is dissatisfied with the farm acreage allotment and marketing quota established for his farm, may, within fifteen days after mailing of the official notice of the farm acreage allotment and marketing quota, file application in writing with the ASC county office to have such allotment reviewed by a review committee. This procedure governing the review of farm acreage allotments and marketing quotas is contained in the regulations issued by the Secretary (Part 711 of this chapter) which are available at the ASC county office.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of these regulations have been approved by and subsequent reporting requirements will be subject to the approval of the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Done at Washington, D. C., this 5th day of September 1956. Witness my hand and the seal of the Department of Agriculture.

Secretary of Agriculture.

Chapter VIII—Commodity Stabilization Service (Sugar), Department of Agriculture

Subchapter G—Determination of Proportionate Shares

[Sugar Determination 850.30, Supp. 11]

UTAH PROPORTIONATE SPARE AREAS AND FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop (20 F. R. 7159) as amended (20 F. R. 8772), (21 F. R. 986) and (21 F. R. 3670), the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Utah State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for dividing the State into proportionate share areas and establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 30,614 acres established for Utah by the determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such committee at 222 SW. Temple Street, Salt Lake City, Utah, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Utah. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.41 Utah—(a) Proportionate share areas. Utah shall be divided into seven proportionate share areas as served by beet sugar companies. These areas shall be designated as follows: Garland, West Jordan, Gunnison, Cache, Ogden, Layton and Holly. Acreage allotments for these areas shall be computed by applying to the planted sugar beet acreage record for each area a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the largest acreage of any of the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "ability to produce", with a floor of 98.5 percent of the 1953–54 average acreage and with pro rata adjustments to a total of 30,614 acres. Acreage allotments computed as aforestated are established as follows: Garland Area—7,024 acres; West Jordan Area—8,088 acres; Gunnison Area—6,142 acres; Cache Area—3,758 acres; Ogden Area—2,030 acres; Layton Area—2,826 acres; and Holly Area—746 acres.

(b) Set-asides of acreage. Set-asides of acreage shall be made from area allotments as follows:

(1) For new producers. Garland Area—47.0 acres; West Jordan Area—80.9 acres; Gunnison Area—79.8 acres; Cache Area—76.0 acres; Ogden Area—20.3 acres; Layton Area—21.0 acres; and Holly Area—7.5 acres.

(2) For appeals. Garland Area—93.4 acres; West Jordan Area—80.9 acres; Gunnison Area—62.4 acres; Cache Area—38.0 acres; Ogden Area—20.3 acres; Layton Area—35.6 acres; and Holly Area—7.5 acres.

(3) For making adjustments in initial shares. Garland Area—136.0 acres; West Jordan Area—0 acres; Gunnison Area—0 acres; Cache Area—196.7 acres; Ogden Area—51.5 acres; Layton Area—0 acres; and Holly Area—0 acres.

(c) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC County Office on form SU-100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(d) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares—(1) For new producers. Within the acreage set aside for new producers in each proportionate share area, proportionate shares shall be established in an equitable manner for farms to be operated during the 1956-crop year by new producers (as defined in § 850.30) by taking into consideration the availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(2) For second-year producers. For each farm operated in the 1956-crop year by a second-year producer (as defined in § 850.30), an initial proportionate share shall be established equal to the initial 1955-crop share established for such farm.

(3) For old producers—(i) Farm bases. For each farm, a farm base shall be established from the planted sugar beet acreage record of the farm by giving a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the average acreage of the crops of 1953–54, as a measure of "ability to produce".

(ii) Initial proportionate shares. Initial proportionate shares shall be established from farm bases in each area on a pro rata basis so that the total of the farm shares equals the area allotment less the prescribed set-asides and the initial shares of second-year producers.

(4) Adjustments in initial shares. Within the acreage available from the set-aside for adjustments, and from acreage of initial shares in excess of requested acreages in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in initial farm proportionate shares for old producers and second-year producers so as to establish a proportionate share for each farm which is fair and equitable as compared with proportionate shares for all other farms in the area by taking into consideration availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(5) Adjustments under appeals. Within the acreage set aside for making adjustments under appeals and any other acreage remaining unused in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in proportionate shares under appeals to establish fair and equitable farm shares in accordance with the provisions of § 850.30 applicable to appeals.

(6) Adjustments because of unused acreage. To the extent of acreage available within the allotment for each proportionate share area from underplanting and failure to plant, and unused acreage from set-asides and other sources, adjustments shall be made in farm proportionate shares during the 1956-crop season. Insofar as practicable, acreage remaining unused in any area shall be reallotted to the other areas wherein it may be used.

(7) Notification of farm operators. The farm operator shall be notified concerning the proportionate share established for his farm on form SU–103, Notice of Farm Proportionate Share—1956 Sugar Beet Crop, even if the acreage established is "none", and in each case of approved adjustment the farm operator shall be notified regarding the adjusted proportionate share on another form SU–103 if the adjustment results from an appeal, otherwise on a form SU–103–A or other similar written notice.

(8) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

Statement of bases and considerations. This supplement sets forth the bases and procedures established by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Utah State Committee for determining farm proportionate shares in Utah in accordance with the determination of proportionate shares for the 1956 crop of sugar beets, as issued by the Secretary of Agriculture.

In general, the bases and procedures specified herein are the same as those which were effective in the State for the 1955 crop. Utah is again divided into seven areas, which division is considered reasonable and appropriate considering geographical locations, the operation of sugar beet processing plants and the organization of advisory committees including grower and processor representatives. Farm proportionate shares of old producers are established under formulas which measure "past production" and "ability to produce" sugar beets. These standards are reflected in the initial farm shares established for second-year producers, which coincide with their initial 1955–crop shares, as provided under § 850.30. The procedure for establishing farm shares for new producers meets the related requirements of such section.

The bases and procedure for making adjustments in initial proportionate shares and for adjusting shares subsequently because of unused acreage and appeals are designed to provide a fair and equitable proportionate share for each farm of the total acreage of sugar beets required to enable the domestic sugar area to meet its quota and provide a normal carryover inventory.

[Sugar Determination 850.30, Supp. 12]

WYOMING PROPORTIONATE SHARE AREAS AND FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop (20 F. R. 7159) as amended (20 F. R. 8772), (21 F. R. 986) and (21 F. R. 3670), the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Wyoming State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for dividing the State into proportionate share areas and establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 34,745 acres established for Wyoming by the determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such committee at 345 East Second Street, Casper, Wyoming, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Wyoming. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.42 Wyoming—(a) Proportionate share areas. Wyoming shall be divided into six proportionate share areas as served by beet sugar companies. These areas shall be designated as follows: Lovell, Lyman-Gering, Wheatland, Worland, Torrington, and Sheridan. Acreage allotments for these areas shall be computed by applying to the planted sugar beet acreage record for each area, a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the largest acreage of any of the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "ability to produce", with a floor of 93.8 percent of the 1953–54 average acreage and with pro rata adjustments to a total of 34,745 acres. Acreage allotments computed as aforestated are established as follows: Lovell Area—6,671 acres; Lyman-Gering Area—739 acres; Wheatland Area—2,206 acres; Worland Area—9,570 acres; Torrington Area—14,966 acres; and Sheridan Area—593 acres.

(b) Set-asides of acreage. Set-asides of acreage shall be made from each area allotment of 1 percent each for new producers and appeals. In addition, acreages for making adjustments in initial proportionate shares shall be set aside as follows: Lovell Area—115.0 acres; Lyman-Gering Area—36.8 acres; Wheatland Area—330.1 acres; Worland Area—96.2 acres; Torrington Area—0.8 acre; and Sheridan Area—0 acre.

(c) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC county office on form SU–100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(d) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares—(1) For new producers. Within the acreage set aside for new producers in each proportionate share area, proportionate shares shall be established in an equitable manner for farms to be operated during the 1956-crop year by new producers (as defined in § 850.30) by taking into consideration the availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(2) For second-year producers. For each farm operated in the 1956-crop year by a second-year producer (as defined in § 850.30), an initial proportionate share shall be established equal to the initial 1955-crop share established for such farm.

(3) For old producers—(i) Farm bases. For each farm operated by an old producer (any producer except a new producer or a second-year producer) the farm base shall be established as follows:

(a) Lovell and Lyman-Gering Areas. For each farm in the Lovell or the Lyman-Gering Area, the factors "past production" and "ability to produce" shall be measured by establishing a farm base computed by multiplying the average planted sugar beet acreage for the farm for the crops of 1950 through 1954 (total planted acreage divided by the number of crops for which beets were actually planted) by the percentage shown for the category applicable to the farm and area, as follows:

	Lovell	Lyman-Gering
	Percent	Percent
Planted acreage for all 5 crops	100	98
Planted acreage only for last 4 crops	88	87

(b) Wheatland, Worland, Torrington and Sheridan Areas. For each farm in the Wheatland, Worland, Torrington or Sheridan Area, the farm base shall be computed from the planted sugar beet acreage record of the farm by giving a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production," and a weighting of 25 percent to the largest acreage of the crops of 1950–54, as a measure of "ability to produce".

(ii) Initial proportionate shares. Initial proportionate shares shall be established from farm bases in each area on a pro rata basis so that the total of the farm shares equals the area allotment less the prescribed set-asides and the initial shares of second-year producers.

(4) Adjustments in initial shares. Within the acreage available from the set-aside for adjustments, and from acreage of initial shares in excess of requested acreages in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in initial farm proportionate shares for old producers and second-year producers so as to establish a proportionate share for each farm which is fair and equitable as compared with proportionate shares for all other farms in the area by taking into consideration availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(5) Adjustments under appeals. Within the acreage set aside for making adjustments under appeals and any other acreage remaining unused in each proportionate share area, adjustments shall be made in proportionate shares under appeals to establish fair and equitable farm shares in accordance with the provisions of § 850.30 applicable to appeals.

(6) Adjustments because of unused acreage. To the extent of acreage available within the allotment for each proportionate share area from underplanting and failure to plant, and unused acreage from set-asides and other sources, adjustments shall be made in farm proportionate shares during the 1956-crop season. Insofar as practicable, acreage remaining unused in any area shall be reallotted to the other areas wherein it may be used.

(7) Notification of farm operators. The farm operators shall be notified concerning the proportionate share established for his farm on form SU–103, Notice of Farm Proportionate Share—1956 Sugar Beet Crop, even if the acreage established is "none", and in each case of approved adjustment the farm operator shall be notified regarding the adjusted proportionate share on another form SU–103 if the adjustment results from an appeal, otherwise on a form SU–103–A or other similar written notice.

(8) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

Statement of bases and considerations. This supplement sets forth the bases and procedures established by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Wyoming State Committee for determining farm proportionate shares in Wyoming in accordance with the determination of proportionate shares for the 1956 crop of sugar beets, as issued by the Secretary of Agriculture.

In general, the bases and procedures specified herein are the same as those which were effective in the State for the 1955 crop. Wyoming is again divided into six areas, which division is considered reasonable and appropriate considering geographical locations, the operation of sugar beet processing plants and the organization of advisory committees including grower and processor representatives. Farm proportionate shares of old producers are established under formulas which measure "past production" and "ability to produce" sugar beets. These standards are reflected in the initial farm shares established for second-year producers, which coincide with their initial 1955-crop shares, as provided under § 850.30. The procedure for establishing farm shares for new producers meets the related requirements of such section.

The bases and procedure for making adjustments in initial proportionate shares and for adjusting shares subsequently because of unused acreage and appeals are designed to provide a fair and equitable proportionate share for each farm of the total acreage of sugar beets required to enable the domestic sugar area to meet its quota and provide a normal carryover inventory.

PART 850—DOMESTIC BEET SUGAR PRODUCING AREA

OHIO PROPORTIONATE SHARE AREAS AND FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop (20 F. R. 7159)' as amended (20 F. R. 8772), (21 F. R. 986) and (21 F. R. 3670), the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Ohio State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for dividing the State into proportionate share areas and establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 20,367 acres established for Ohio by the Determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such Committee at the Old Post Office Building, Third and State Streets, Columbus, Ohio, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Ohio. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.44 Ohio—(a) Proportionate share areas. Ohio shall be divided into two proportionate share areas or districts comprising beet sugar factory districts as served by two beet sugar companies. These areas shall be designated "Northern Ohio District" and "Buckeye District", respectively. Acreage allotments for these districts shall be computed by applying to the planted sugar beet acreage record for each district a weighting of 75 percent to the average acreage for the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 25 percent to the largest acreage of any of the crops of 1950 through 1954, as a measure of "ability to produce", with a ceiling of 125 percent of the 1954 acreage and prorata adjustments to a total of 20,367 acres. Acreage allotments computed as aforestated are established as follows: Northern Ohio District—14,417 acres and Buckeye District—5,950 acres.

(b) Set-asides of acreage. Set-asides of acreage shall be made from district allotments as follows: Buckeye District—700 acres for new producers, 59 acres for appeals, and 992 acres for adjustments in initial shares; Northern Ohio District—1,500 acres for new producers, 144 acres for appeals, and 2,596 acres for adjustments in initial shares.

(c) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC County Office on form SU–100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(d) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares—(1) For new producers. Within the acreage set aside for new producers in each proportionate share district, proportionate shares shall be established in an equitable manner for farms to be operated during the 1956-crop year by new producers (as defined in § 850.30) by taking into consideration the availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(2) For second-year producers. For each farm operated in the 1956-crop year by a second-year producer (as defined in § 850.30) an initial proportionate share shall be established equal to the initial 1955-crop share established for such farm.

(3) For old producers—(i) Farm bases. Farm bases shall be established in each proportionate share district by giving a weighting of 50 percent to the average acreage of the crops of 1952 through 1954, as a measure of "past production", and a weighting of 50 percent to the largest acreage of the crops of 1952 through 1954, as a measure of "ability to produce".

(ii) Initial proportionate shares. Initial proportionate shares shall be established from farm bases in each district on a pro rata basis so that the total of the farm shares equals the district allotment less the prescribed set-asides and the initial shares of second-year producers.

(4) Adjustments in initial shares. Within the acreage available from the set-aside for adjustments, and from acreage of initial shares in excess of requested acreages in each proportionate share district, adjustments shall be made in initial farm proportionate shares for old producers and second-year producers so as to establish a proportionate share for each farm which is fair and equitable as compared with proportionate shares for all other farms in the district by taking into consideration availability and suitability of land, area of available fields, availability of irrigation water, adequacy of drainage, availability of production and marketing facilities and the production experience of the operator.

(5) Adjustments under appeals. Within the acreage set aside for making adjustments under appeals and any other acreage remaining unused in each proportionate share district, adjustments shall be made in proportionate shares under appeals to establish fair and equitable farm shares in accordance with the provisions of § 850.30 applicable to appeals.

(6) Adjustments because of unused acreage. To the extent of acreage available within the allotment for each proportionate share district from underplanting and failure to plant, and unused acreage from set-asides and other sources, adjustments shall be made in farm proportionate shares during the 1956-crop season. Insofar as practicable, acreage remaining unused in one district shall be reallotted to the other district wherein it may be used.

(7) Notification of farm operators. The farm operator shall be notified concerning the proportionate share established for his farm on form SU–103, Notice of Farm Proportionate Share—1956 Sugar Beet Crop, even if the acreage established is "none", and in each case of approved adjustment the farm operator shall be notified regarding the adjusted proportionate share on another form SU–103 if the adjustment results from an appeal, otherwise on a form SU–103–A or other similar written notice.

(8) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

PART 850—DOMESTIC BEET SUGAR PRODUCING AREA

WISCONSIN FARM PROPORTIONATE SHARES FOR 1956 CROP

Pursuant to the provisions of the Determination of Proportionate Shares for Farms in the Domestic Beet Sugar Area, 1956 Crop (20 F. R. 7159) as amended (20 F. R. 8772), (21 F. R. 986) and (21 F. R. 3670), the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Wisconsin State Committee has issued the bases and procedures for establishing individual farm proportionate shares from the allocation of 12,149 acres established for Wisconsin by the determination. Copies of these bases and procedures are available for public inspection at the office of such committee at 3010 E. Washington Avenue, Madison, Wisconsin, and at the offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committees in the sugar beet producing counties of Wisconsin. These bases and procedures incorporate the following:

§ 850.46 Wisconsin—(a) Requests for proportionate shares. A request for each farm proportionate share shall be filed at the local ASC county office on form SU–100, Request for Sugar Beet Proportionate Share. The request shall be signed by the farm operator or owner (or legal representative) and shall be filed on or before the closing date for such filing, as provided in § 850.30.

(b) Establishment of individual farm proportionate shares. For each farm in Wisconsin for which a request for proportionate share is filed, the proportionate share shall be established from the State allocation of 12,149 acres so as to coincide with the acreage of 1956-crop sugar beets planted on such farm.

(c) Notification of farm operators. The farm operator shall be furnished a notice informing him that his proportionate share will coincide with his planted acreage.

(d) Determination provisions prevail. The bases and procedures set forth in this section are issued in accordance with and subject to the provisions of § 850.30.

Statement of bases and considerations. This supplement sets forth the bases and procedures established by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Wisconsin State Committee for determining farm proportionate shares in Wisconsin in accordance with the determination of proportionate shares for the 1956 crop of sugar beets, as issued by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The acreage covered by bona fide requests for proportionate shares, as filed by old producers, second-year producers, and new producers, and the acreage of sugar beets actually planted are significantly smaller than the State allocation. This situation makes unnecessary the carrying out of considerable detailed procedure which would otherwise be required. It is unnecessary to apply a specific formula in computing farm shares, to make set-asides of acreage for new producers and appeals, and to make adjustments in farm shares to reflect ability to produce or to distribute unused acreage. Accordingly, this supplement provides for a distribution of acreage within the State allocation by specifying that individual farm proportionate shares shall equal the acreages planted on the various farms.
